

Left top; A standing-room-only crowd packed the Banks High School cafeteria Thursday, December 13, as band and choir students performed for parents and the community for the Banks Winter Music Concert. Beginning band students, from fifth through seventh grades, intermediate junior high concert band and the high school band alternated with the junior high and high school choirs, for an evening of holiday music. Festival Brass, a Portland area band, played before and after the concert and while groups were changing. Janet Lea directed the choirs, and Ronnie LaGrone directed the bands. Pictured here is the beginning band performing. Additional picture on page 28.

Left bottom; December 15 at Santa's breakfast, an annual fundraiser for the Banks Junior High School, saw many children sitting on Santa's lap and many others demonstrating their skills. The junior high and high school choirs sang, dancers from the Banks Dance Academy danced, and students from the School of Traditional Taekwon do demonstrated kicks, forms and board-breaking skills. Artwork from the elementary school decorated the walls and stage. Junior high volunteers served the food and drink. This picture is of the combined junior high and high school choir.
