Every hour. Every day.
Columbia 9-1-1 is there for every one.

When you face an emergency, it's comforting to know there's someone you can call who will always be there, night and day. Columbia 9-1-1 dispatchers are highly trained to ask the right questions and send help on its way immediately.

In the last year alone, Columbia 9-1-1 answered more than 85,000 calls. That's an average of 233 people calling for help each day. And that's more than five times the calls we handled when the District was formed just 18 years ago.

Columbia 9-1-1 has coordinated dispatching all of the police, fire and emergency medical agencies in the county since 1991. Citizens have approved operating funding for Columbia 9-1-1 to provide this vital service. The Board and staff take this trust seriously.

Our 9-1-1 Communications is more than a number to call. It's an essential, cost-effective service connecting people who can help with people who need them. When seconds count, call 9-1-1 first.

On November 4, voters have the opportunity to keep this essential 9-1-1 service working for all of us. The renewal measure on the ballot would maintain this valuable service at a rate lower than voters first approved in 1998. Please vote and return your ballot in time for it to count. Thank you.
