Top, a composite picture of the wetland taking shape at the old mill site. The work for the year is about finished, with the final touches to be seeding of an annual grass to control erosion until the final plantings can be put in place starting next June. Above left and above, kids working on their pumpkin art during this year's Salmon Festival, held October 1. In addition to pumpkin carving, there was fishing, fish viewing, scarecrow building, hay rides, food, craft and information booths, along with multiple raffles, Claudia the educational salmon, and exhibits in the Scout Cabin. Mark your calendars now for next year's 10th annual Salmon Festival.
