Twenty or Twenty-Five Boys and Girls May Participate in Pastime While Clasping Hands.

This game may be played at recess with as many as twenty or twenty-five girls and boys taking part in it. All of the players except three clasp hands and form a circle. Inside the ring is the orchard where the fox, one of the players, takes his place. The farmer, another one of the extra play-ers, stands on the outside of the ring and calls to another player, who is outside the ring, saying: "Bruno, a outside the ring, saylig: "Bruno, a fox is in the orchard." Then the fox runs from the circle beneath the players' uplifted hands. Bruno chases him, first entering the circle and then fol-

If the fox jumps up to touch the branch of a tree Bruno must imitate. Sometimes the fox does many stunts which amuse the ring players very much and which make it hard for the dog. If the dog does not follow he cannot go on join the ring. Then the fox becomes dog and a new fox is chosen. When the dog captures the fox he become the fox for the new game and the fox goes into the ring. Then a new dog is chosen. When the ring is very large there may be two foxes within the circle and two dogs to chase them.

The Word "Yankee."

The origin of the word "Yankee" has been variously explained. Some authorities think it is a corruption of the word English, as it was pro-nounced by the American Indians who called the white people "Yenghies." It seems first to have been applied to the British soldiers about 1775, as a term of reproach to the New England-ers who afterwards adopted it themselves.

Others hold that Yankee is a corruption of Jankin, or John, a nick-name given to the English colonists of Connecticut by the Dutch settlers of New York. The song "Yankee Doodle," was originally "Nankee Bees are geometricians. The cells Doodle," and was applied to Oliver

Alfalfa Wilt Has No Known Remedy.

That no remedy is known for plants attacked by alfalfa wilt, a common disease, is the conclusion of the Oregon Agricultural College experiment If she can have the comforts and constation experts. On account of the nature of the plants upon which the disease lives, it is probable that no practical remedy will be developed. Where the disease has become serious, the college advises rotation of crops. The trouble seems more prevalent on heavy soils, particularly where the drainage is slow. Such soils should be avoided by alfalfa growers.

Wilt, or stem rot, was first des-cribed in Europe but has been found in widely divided sections of this out of print. country. Both New York and California have reported it as serious, and recently it has been found to be common in Oregon also. It is most abundant and spreads most rapidly in the fall when the surface soil is constantly Pour out about half a cup of the sour wet. It is more serious, too, where the stand of alfalfa is heavy. It attacks clover almost as seriously, and it is thought it is probably one cause of the difficulty in obtaining and holding a stand of either in wet climates.

Rot develops on the stems at the surface of the ground, or some distance above, causing wilt, and frequently killing the plant. Large areas may be found in fields where the plants have been entirely killed out. The roots are not always destroyed, and may throw out new sprouts.

A white, cottony mold grows over the surface of the stems and leaves attacked by the rot, and the ground around the base of the plant. In it are developed abundantly black, irregular-shaped bodies of fungus tissue called sclerotia, sometimes as large as a pea. They are also found inside the stems of some of the plants killed.

The fungus is like that causing lettuce to drop. It develops no summer as apothecia develop from the sclerotia, commonly in the spring, but in very wet climates in the fall.

UNUSUAL RESOURCE OF BOY

Lad With One Roller State Attachee It to Box and Secures Bigger Load of Wood Than Others.

Small boys were collecting firewood, where it had been thrown out for them, at the side door of a large gro-cery establishment on upper Broadway. There was something of a rush to see who would get the most, and the proud possessor of one roller skate came out ahead in the scramble, says the New York Sun.

Seizing an orange crate, he strapped his skate to one of the bottom slate and, filling the crate with wood, rolled it away on the four wheels of the skate, while others were left to drag or carry their smaller loads.
