FROM WASHINGTON.

DOINGS OF OUR LAW-MAKERS.

An Interesting Budget of News from the National Capital.—Pertinent Comment.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 19, 1890.

It is most interesting to look down from the press gallery of the House of Representatives upon that great national assembly in session and observe the varying peculiarities of hirsute adornment affected by the members. Take Tom Reed, the Speaker, for instance. You will notice that his mustache is decidedly the poorest affair of its kind in the House. It is rather undergrowth, stubby and turned down at the mouth; in fact, its owner would be a better looking man without it. As your eye wanders over the assemblage of legislators sitting row upon row at their desks as if so many schoolboys, with Speaker Reed for a teacher and each pupil taking his turn to recite, you notice that a majority of the members have mustaches and are clean shaved otherwise. With the younger ones this is the almost universal fashion, though Henry Cabot Lodge of Boston, dilettante society man and framer of the famous Force bill, is a notable exception, with his short light-brown beard usually trained to a point. On the whole, Harry Bingham of Philadelphia has the fiercest mustache in Congress, though it is not very big. It is always pulled straight out horizontally and has an expression of its own. Benjamin Franklin Shively of Indiana must expend more wax upon his mustache than any of his fellow Representatives. The ornament is petered out, so to speak, into ends four or five inches long, which are trained upward. One of the prettiest mustaches in the House is a blonde one that is the property of Walter I. Hays of Iowa. Mudd of Maryland is another of the many who turn their mustaches up instead of down.

Elijah A. Morse of Massachusetts, the stove-polish man, has the finest whiskers in Congress, though Buchanan of New Jersey runs him close for the honors. Not to be forgotten is the full iron-gray beard of the redoubtable is Bill Springer, the inveterate kicker from Illinois whose fighting capacity is such that even Speaker Reed is unable to put him down.
Looking over the heads of the members you notice that many of them have lost more or less of their natural covering from the place where the part ought to be. Bingham of Philadelphia, Hitt of Illinois, Culbertson of Pennsylvania and many others all brush their hair with a towel. You can see for yourself from the examples they afford that baldness is not beautifying. That is the reason, it is said that Vice-President Morton wears a wig. One thing you will notice, there is very little baldness in the Senate considering what a venerable body it is, and the average Senator, whether for the sake of dignity or for other reasons, wears more hair on his face than does the average Representative.

Now that the President has joined the other members of the Executive household at Cresson, for a few weeks of needed rest, the extensive repairs which have long been contemplated at the White House will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible. The repairs will cost about $13,000, not including the 800 incandescent lights which are also to be put in.
The plans for these much needed improvements were prepared in accordance with suggestions of Mrs. Harrison. The south portico opening out of the Blue Room is being beautified with a new tile floor, which takes the place of the ancient sandstone and will be one of the finest and most artistic pieces of flooring to be seen in the country. The central figure in the floor will be the national coat of arms in blocks of red, white and blue. The work is the style known to tile men as "Roman mosaic," differing very materially from the genuine old mosaic. One of the most important improvements to be made will be in the Blue Room, the walls of which are to be most artistically finished in rich American silk, figured to correspond to the work in relief above and below.

The outside of the building which has not been painted for four years, also comes in for two coats of white lead, which are to be laid on immediately.

It has been asserted that Representative Kennedy's tirade against the Senate and Senator Quay in particular was made with the consent of the Speaker and an overwhelming majority of the Republicans of the House. That Mr. Kennedy made his speech with the consent of the Speaker and an overwhelming majority of the Republicans of the House, is incredible. Equally preposterous is the assumption that an overwhelming majority of the Republicans of the House would assent to a tirade of this character, else they would not have left their spokesman to talk to the bare walls of the Chamber, with less than thirty members present. What possessed Mr. Kennedy to make such a deliverance is only to be accounted for upon the theory of pure "cussedness."

It is said that Senator Quay's friends will be satisfied if Mr.
Kennedy will revise the objectionable features out of his speech.
This would involve an amputation very close behind the ears.
Erstwhile-Representative Breckinridge of Arkansas is looking for a job.

SHORTS.
Work on Salem's big bridge has stopped for lack of cement. The delay will be for a day or two only.
William Foster of Elmira, while running a race, collided with another man, breaking his left collar bone.
A man named John Wolverline was knocked down and scalped by two drunken Indians near Spokane Falls last week. He may die.
Hop pickers on the Sound ask $1.25 a box, an increase of 25 cts.
Help is scarce and the growers will have to comply with the request.
Halsted street Chicago is one of the longest streets in the world, being about eighteen miles in length in a perfectly straight line within the city limits.
A young blood from Howell prairie started out hop-picking this week, and in packing up, his outfit consisted of two packages of cigarettes, a bottle of whiskey, a pack of cards, a revolver and a pair of blankets.
D. W. Matthews, who has just been appointed agent of the Klamath Indians, has been a resident of Salem for many years. He is well fitted for the position, says the Capital Journal, and will fill it with credit.
The Myrtle Creek Hydraulic Gold Mining Company are busy digging their ditch. About forty men are engaged on the works, and a number more are engaged.
The company are pushing work as rapidly as possible, so they will be able to utilize the water this fall.
Quite a number of Eugene citizens own stock in the company, and persons who have been down to see the mines speak in the highest terms of them. One can procure from 1 to 25 cents from each pan of dirt, which is considered to be first-class diggings for hydraulic methods of working mines.
