A Walk in the Winter Greenwood.

The warm fir wood is dark and low
Within a sheltered valley deep.
When o'er the hills the night winds blow,
They seek its happy tribes to sleep.
A thousand tiny tracks are made
Upon its carpet soft and white,
And through its thick and fragrant shade
Ere the wings of angels in sudden flight.
Here feasts are spread and mouths are fed
Where seeds and buds are scattered wide,
And many a warm and cozy bed
Is leaped where dreaming sleepers hide.
Sometimes a golden streamlet strays
Within the light of green and white;
Sometimes at night the full moon's rays
Fit these dim aisles with silver light.
But we are interlopers here!
Our steps are strange, our voices loud,
The dwellers shy look forth in fear
And vanish with a swift and sudden stride.

Electrical Reporting.

Electric Power describes a new system of reporting baseball and other games by means of an ingenious electrical apparatus. The special object of the apparatus is to enable a full report of games to be made in sight of a large number of people and at the same time to dispense with one or more of the assistants now required in reporting such games. This device is intended not only to indicate the progress of distant games, but actually to be used at the opposite end of the ball field from the grand stand, in order to enlighten the spectators on many points on which they are liable to be momentarily in doubt. Spectators coming in late are often unable to ascertain the number of innings played, the striker at the bat, the number of balls and strikes called, etc., and even those already on the ground sometimes find it difficult to determine whether the umpire has called a strike or a ball. All these weighty issues, upon which the baseball enthusiast spends such intense solicitude, can now be clearly and reliably recorded, and all anxiety and uncertainty can be removed by a glance at the exhibition board placed in sight of the spectators, the indicators on which are electrically controlled and operated by an experienced person located close to the diamond.

Eclipses in 1891.

This year's eclipses will be somewhat beyond the average. On the evening of May 23 the moon will rise in eclipse at five minutes to 8, but the shadow will for the greater part have already passed away, and it is only in eastern countries and at the antipodes that her face that evening will be seen wholly obscured. It will be otherwise with the total eclipse of our satellite, which will begin at thirty-five minutes past 10 on Nov. 13 next. This is the annular eclipse on Nov. 15 which will be "centrally visible at Greenwich," whither, no doubt, the legendary cockney will once more betake himself in time to witness the phenomenon.

Old John of a Tree.

A stately elm tree is being moved several miles to Gracefield cemetery, and since it began its travels, which are about half over, it has killed one man and slightly injured several others. The tree grew about three miles from Grace Point, and is destined to adorn a lot where a Mr. Lathrop is buried. It was dug up about a month ago, the earth around its roots boxed up, and it was placed in a standing position upon a platform moving upon rollers. During the process of changing the supports the other day a laborer was crushed to death under a falling beam. It is estimated that when placed in the cemetery the tree will have cost not less than $2,000.—Chicago Tribune.

To Protect Lamp Chimneys.

The season is just on us when lamp chimneys break in spite of all precautions, and cause people to use bad language who are usually above such weakness. The usual remedy or preventive recommended is to chip a fragment out of the glass to allow for expansion. Nine times out of ten the glass is cracked by the expansion and destruction expedited. The chimney is washed in coal oil and never covered with a damp cloth it will be practically indestructible, and will smoke jet black before it will crack. I have recommended this remedy to customers for years, and have never heard of the failure. Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Outrage Reported at Lewiston.

A man who signed himself "Citizen," and who is a way off an spelling, writes the Lewiston city marshal that he has been bit by two scorpions thus far this season, which he thinks were maliciously aimed at him by some bad boys. He notifies the city marshal that this throwing of snowflakes at him must cease at once, or there will be trouble in the Androscoggin valley in the very near future.—Lewiston Journal.

Will Pay His Respects.

Napoleon McDaniell, a noted train robber, recently convicted at Texarkana, Tex., and sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary, has escaped from jail. Two eminent criminal lawyers who unsuccessfully defended him are now living in daily dread, having received a message from McDaniell that he intends to kill them "because they did not do their best in his defense."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Paw's Innocence.

Old Gentleman—There goes young Brosh. His father was a very eminent man, but I see no hope for the son. He appears to have inherited none of the elements of greatness.

Oyster Shuckers' Eye Disease.

"The oyster shuckers' eye disease" is the title given by the professional staff of the Presbyterian Eye and Ear hospital to a trouble affecting a large number of their patients at this season of the year. It is believed that the peculiar kind of ulceration of the eyeball which is known by this title is caused by the juice of the oyster touching the corner of an eye which has previously been slightly injured. The doctors say they can tell exactly when the oyster season is at hand by the appearance of patients with this complaint within twenty-four hours after the opening of the packing establishments, and they claim that this complaint disappears promptly with the close of the oyster season.

A Tale of Summer Days.

A tale of roses and roguery is waded from the latest midsummer days. It was at a seaside resort, and a young man, a veritable Prince Charming, before whom all women go down and who cannot help "practicing" when he is near a pretty girl, was at his usual occupation—devoted to several of them at once. He counted, in fact, this time four victims to his attractions. As two, however, were at the hotel on the beach and the other pair in separate cottages in different directions, he had managed to make all happy without any clashing. Just before the season closed, however, the fair cottagers went with their parents to pass a few days at the hotel en route to their city homes. Four sweethearts under one roof were too much for even this clever campaigner. He concluded that the situation was too complicated for him, and a prompt departure was arranged for. The evening he left he managed to see each girl separately and to murmur in her ear a tender tale of love. He would take no decided answer then, but if his affection was returned he begged her to wear at breakfast the next morning a red rose which he gently pressed upon her. The last interview took place about 11 p. m., and the midnight train bore the young scamp to New York.

Youthful Suicide Mania.

The Hospital, commenting upon the suicide mania among schoolboys in Vienna, which it attributes to the senseless mania for over-intellectual culture, says: "In these days the tyranny of learning is driving the world to madness. Professors of all sorts have got the upper hand, and their supremacy threatens to be fatal to the rest of the world. Here is an opportunity for medicine. If doctors were large minded and capable men like Shakespeare and Bacon they would see the truth and assert their scientific authority. But what are they doing? Nothing at all to guide the world in the matter! They are the worst offenders of all in the way of inflicting upon young men unlimited intellectual tasks, the doing of which is of no practical service to anybody. Sleeplessness, nervousness, a mania in every form are upon us, and nothing is done. The whole medical world itself is in full cry striving who shall be first to put salt on the tail of the tubercle bacillus. It is as if all the forces of the empire should be sent to arrest a lunatic at Wick while a foreign army was in possession of Penzance."

A Deck Hunter's Adventure.

Martin Boland, of North Lyme, had an exciting experience while duck shooting Monday, and thanks his lucky stars every morning for the fact that he is still in the land of the living. He had been about the mouth of Lord's Cove nearly all the day and had met with fair success, and had loaded his decoy into his small duck boat, intending to start home. Just then he heard the loud "honk" of wild geese, and a moment later saw a flock of some twenty of these waterfowl settle in the river about half way from shore to shore.

A Ghostly Cargo.

A special train of three cars arrived in the Union Pacific depot at Walla Walla, Wash., last week with a ghostly cargo, consisting of the entire contents of the military graveyard at Fort Lapwai, Idaho. They were covered up with sixty caskets, nearly all receptacles of soldiers' bones. The reported reason for the removal is that the land whereon the cemetery was located had been taken up by settlers, who show a disposition to level the graves and plant their seed over the remains. Uncle Sam's guardians didn't relish this idea, and hence the transfer. The Fourth cavalry, with the land, in full dress and accoutrements, were at the depot to meet and conduct the military procession to the cemetery at Fort Walla Walla, where the remains were reinterred with military ceremonies.—Philadelphia Ledger.

To Shorten the Time.

The journey from London to Berlin will soon be shortened by more than an hour. The Great Eastern, which has done so much to cheapen continental traveling, intends starting a new daily service between Harwich and Hook with Holland. The whole matter was recently settled at a confidential conference in which the representatives of all the Dutch railways took part. The Hook line will prove a powerful rival to Ostend.—London World.

Taking Advantage of His Falling.

Mrs. Hasly—You say you haven't put a stove in Mr. Prethly's room. How does he keep from freezing?
Mrs. Tarty—I put a couple of mirrors in his room.
Mrs. Hasly—But they won't compass him for the lack of a stove.
Mrs. Tarty—They do. He keeps himself warm by constantly walking from one mirror to the other to look at himself.—Harper's Bazar.

By the burning of his country home in Howard county, Md., Senator Gorman lost his valuable library and all his personal diary and family relics.

His personal diary, in which there were entries dating back to his entrance into public life, was also burned, with valuable political papers that can never be replaced.

Valentine's bronze statue of Stonewall Jackson has been completed and will be unveiled at Lexington, Va., the 21st of next July.

Jackson's grave is in the little cemetery near Lexington, where it is marked by a plain marble headstone three feet high. The mound is frequently covered with bunches of flowers.

The Brazilian government has failed to obtain recognition by Germany, Spain, Austria and Russia.

At St. Petersburg the czar announced that nothing would induce him to recognize the republic during the lifetime of Dom Pedro.

French Canadians have been attracted by the accounts of deserted farms in Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine, and report that it is by that spring the great bulk of these lands will have passed into their possession.

Ex-King Milan is to be allowed $20,000.

And More, Too.

The supreme court of this state has just decided a lawsuit begun twenty-one years ago, and involving the title of a $2,700 farm. The lawyers have not only eaten up the farm, but all the contestants could rake and scrape as well.

Paris is to see "Joan of Arc" upon the stage once more.

The town council has voted $200 to bring out, at the Chatelet, Deputy Fabre's drama called after the national heroine's name. The play manager, if he does justice to the stage in providing fitting accessories, is to be rewarded with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, an honor which has been granted to M. Duguesne, of the Porte Saint Martin, and M. Honcke, of the Hippodrome, for the intelligent pains they took in bringing out "Joan of Arc" at those places.—Cor. London News.
