MEMBERS OF THE TILLAMOOK FAIR ASSOCIATION

was held in the City Hall last Monday.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Geo. Cohn, President.
L. H. Brown, Vice President.
Claude Thayer, Treasurer.
A. P. Wilson, Secretary.

W. C. King, L. H. Brown and L. L. Stillwell, Directors.

It was decided to enforce collection by suit against all who were in arrears on subscription and assessments for stock.

The fair this year will be pre-eminently for the farmers, and preparations are already being made for the event, the time of which will be announced later.

The stockholders decided by resolution to hold a Fourth of July celebration on the Fair Ground, also, and to have racing at that time.

It is well enough to remark right here, that the Association is not a money making institution, and that the $50 paid in on each share by the stockholders, together with the profits, has gone toward paying for the grounds and erecting buildings. All the profits will be invested in this way for a long time to come, and other assessments for the same purposes are likely to be made, so the promoters are not speculating, but are supporting generously an institution that benefits the whole county.

On the other hand, the money paid by shareholders is not thrown away, as it will not be long until the shares will be valued at or above par, as the land owned now by the corporation is worth much more than it cost. Every influential business man and farmer should help the enterprise all he is able, and we believe no one will lose in the end.

CONGRESS

At Last Takes Action.

A bill has been introduced at Washington requiring all baking powders containing alum and ammonia to be so labeled. This is a step in the right direction, and has been foreshadowed by the action of state legislatures, boards of health, food commissioners, etc., in this matter. The bill affords needed protection to the public, for the evidence as to the injurious effects of alum and ammonia is very heavy; but it will nevertheless be fought most bitterly by the manufacturers whom it affects, who are accustomed to sell their goods as "pure Cream of Tartar," "absolutely pure," etc.

The bill is something needed. If a maker uses a drug in his powder, the name of which he does not wish printed on his label, it is prima facie evidence that there is something wrong. We hope the subject will be vigorously prosecuted all over the country, not only as regards baking powder, but also all other food adulterations.

This bill may incidentally benefit the makers of pure articles, but if it should, this would be only an additional point in its favor.

Attention, Republicans!

FAIRFIELD, WES., APRIL 18, 1892.

To the Republican voters of Tillamook County:

Whereas, it has come to our knowledge that our former townsman, J. R. Harris, now of Tillamook County, Ore., has received the Republican nomination for Sheriff of said county, and further, that a false report has been circulated, to his great detriment and damage, that he was a Free Trader and endorsed Democratic doctrines, as they are advocated and promulgated by the Democratic party.

Now, this is to certify that we, his former fellow citizens, regardless of party, do solemnly affirm that, while with us, he was a firm, unflinching and staunch Republican, that he was a good officer, a good citizen, and in a political sense, a perfectly honorable and trustworthy Republican.

We therefore do most cheerfully recommend Mr. Harris to the kind consideration of his fellow citizens in his new home, and assure them that he is a person worthy of their confidence and franchises, and that any office to which they may elect him will be administered with faithfulness to the trust and honor to his constituents.

H. V. V. JOHNSON, B. C. LAMB.

W. C. KING.

DEAR SIR:—Yours of the 11th at hand, and in response must say, that I think know Mr. J. R. Harris quite well and have great confidence in him. I first made his acquaintance eight years ago, and partly through my influence he was given a responsible position where I was really the Superintendent. I made very thorough inquiries as to his antecedents and was satisfied, and for three years we were most intimately associated in business. His position which was under my supervision, he filled fully to our satisfaction. He was intelligent, diligent, trustworthy, competent and efficient. As to his politics, while I knew him he was a "red hot" Republican, while I was one of the few Democrats who believe in Tariff for Protection. We agreed on the Tariff question but not the other. My views were a matter of education, I having been a Silver Gray Whig. I think the Republicans of your section will not regret his nomination or election. Certainly, were I there, I would give him my vote. I was glad to hear from you, as I had lost track of Mr. Harris' address and enclose a letter to my old friend which you will do me a favor to enclose and send or deliver to him.

Yours very truly,
W. H. LATIMER.

Some Pointers of Value to Those Living Where It Prevails.

The month of April opened with storms in the west over a wider area than has been known for many years, and from Lake Michigan almost to the Rocky mountains there were many lines of destruction. The people have not yet learned how to guard against these destructive phenomena, though scientists insist that much may be done in that direction. They are called cyclones, but are in fact tornadoes and hurricanes, as the cyclone occurs only on the ocean.

Their causes are plain enough: a vast stretch of country without mountains and a climate in which extreme heat often prevails for several days. America is thus the natural home of the tornado, while Europe is exempt because mountain chains extend in nearly all directions from the central upheaval, so to speak. In the United States for the same reason West Virginia is exempt, and Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky nearly so; but as soon as we pass the southern limit of the higher Alleghenies we find a broad tornado belt from central Mississippi to North Carolina.

Lieutenant John P. Finley, of the United States army, has compiled the results of observations for two centuries and presented a map of storms which is in the highest degree suggestive. The storm center of the United States is thus shown to be in northwest Missouri and the adjacent regions. In southeastern Missouri and the neighboring portion of Arkansas, on the other hand, such storms are very rare, even as low an elevation as that of the Ozarks giving great protection. It is much more to the purpose to learn from Lieutenant Finley (and many people had already learned it by observation) that tornadoes and hurricanes can generally be foreseen and to a great extent escaped.

The key facts are these: They almost invariably travel from south of west to north of east, their track is generally very narrow and they are preceded by signs which any intelligent person can recognize. First there is a dead and sultry calm, usually with puffs of hot wind as if from a furnace. When this has lasted an hour or so clouds "boiling up like muddy water" are seen in the southwest; above them the clouds are sometimes gray and sometimes like the smoke from a burning building. In either case the general appearance is so unusual as to be alarming.

It is then time to get into your "storm pit," if you have one, or into the cellar and close into its southwest corner. But generally the open air is best, for if the coming terror is a funnel shaped hurricane it is very rarely more than a few rods wide. If you see that it is coming on like a narrow column of cloud then run to the northwest or southeast. Never in any other direction. The "funnel" may always be avoided thus, but in the case of a tornado the "storm pit" is your refuge.

Presented to the Queen.

The presentation to Queen Victoria by Mrs. Juliana Richards Carson, an American lady, of Frank G. Carpenter's historic painting, "International Arbitration," and its acceptance by her majesty with every indication of sincere pleasure, are straws indicating that the winds of public opinion are setting in the direction of arbitration as a substitute for war. The incident is also noteworthy from the fact that it tends to knit together more closely the two great English speaking nations of the world. The painting contains the portraits of Earl Ripon, Sir Stafford Northcote, Sir John Macdonald, Sir Edward Thornton, Professor Montague Bernard and Lord Alfred Tenterden, commissioners on the part of the British government, and Secretary of State Hamilton Fish, Justice Nelson, General Schenck, Attorney General E. H. Hoar, Senator Williams and Hon. Bancroft Davis, United States commissioners, who signed the treaty for the settlement of the Alabama claims in 1871.

Mrs. Carson's gift to the queen has been transferred from Buckingham palace and now hangs on the walls of St. George's hall, which is the official designation of the banquet room of Windsor castle. "International Arbitration" is, however, worthy of praise apart from the lesson taught by it. The execution is said by competent critics to be remarkably good and as a work of art alone it is highly commendable.

The artist, Mr. Frank G. Carpenter, won fame some years ago as the painter of the picture commemorating President Lincoln's emancipation proclamation. This work now hangs in the national Capitol and is greatly admired by visitors. Mrs. Carson's thoughtfulness in securing "International Arbitration" for the purpose of presenting it to the queen on behalf of American women has been commended everywhere.

Congressman Bland is almost as celebrated in Washington for his trousers as for his silver bill. They are described as a dream, of the nightmare variety. He is short and rather inclined to corpulency, so the defects of his nether garments are therefore conspicuous.
