RABBIT SKINS FOR MARKET.

Long Eared Pelts Imported from Australia and New Zealand.

"Here is a set of sables fit for a princess," said the dealer; "fifteen dollars seems cheap for them, does it not? That is because they are really made of rabbit skins from Australia. The fact is that there is hardly any fur in the market at present that is not imitated closely by the skillful preparation of these same long eared pelts. New Zealand also exports them to the number of 10,000,000 yearly. Their production is one of the most important and profitable industries of that colony.

"Most of them are shipped to European cities, where they go through the necessary processes of manufacture before being disposed of to the retail merchants. The art of coloring rabbit hair has attained such a high degree of perfection that it can be made to counterfeit seal, otter, ermine or almost any other sort of fashionable fur. The skins are largely made into felt hats, which are very beautiful and soft to the touch. When the fur is long it is sometimes cut in two and the finer or inner portions are mixed with wool. Various machines have been invented for constructing hats of rabbit pelts, some of which distribute the hair with marvelous rapidity and evenness on revolving metal cones.

"The rabbits are skinned immediately upon being killed, the heads, feet and all the fat being removed. If the weather is fine the pelts are dried in the open air, but in bad weather they are hung up under sheds. When thoroughly dried they are turned outside in to protect the fur from injury, and then they are tied in bundles of a dozen to twenty each and packed in bales, each of which contains from 3,000 to 3,500 skins. A little carbolic acid powder is used in the packing to preserve them from attack by insects. In this crude state they are worth from fifty to eighty cents a dozen, according to quality.

"The history of the rabbit's introduction into Australia and New Zealand affords an illustration of the damage man may do by interfering with the distribution of animals which nature has chosen to make in the world. When Captain Cook, the celebrated navigator, first visited those countries he found a fauna entirely different from that of any other part of the world. In Australia gigantic marsupials, like the kangaroo, were chiefly conspicuous, while in New Zealand the only land mammals were two varieties of the rat and one of the common bat.

"Since then 'acclimatization societies' have done their best to introduce there all sorts of creatures on four legs and two legs that could be brought from elsewhere. In many instances these efforts resulted most unfortunately. Several years ago some dozen pairs of common gray rabbits were imported for the purpose of supplying sportsmen with an object for the chase. The occasion of this interesting experiment was made one of rejoicing, and the beasts were let loose with speeches and banquets to welcome them. They multiplied so fast that the people did not have to wait long for all the sport of that kind they could desire.

"In fact, they soon overrun the country in such numbers that it became a question whether they or the colonists should occupy the land. Great areas were entirely denuded of vegetation by them, so that the sheep died by millions and the raising of crops became almost an impossibility."—Washington Star.

Two Broken Hearts.

As she was to be married on the 15th, Maggie the chambermaid, strait laced in her lily white gown and apron, quitted on the first of the month. A week after she came back:

"It broke my heart, madam, but I broke the engagement. I discovered that he had a white liver."

"And what is a white liver, Maggie? And how did you make this awful discovery?"

"I discovered it by the stare in his eyes. If you marry a white livered man you die within a year. I returned the engagement ring to him, and the watch marked with my monogram, and the scarfpin. He said, 'I will go to fifty physicians with you, Maggie, and prove that I haven't the white liver.' But I shook my head and ran."

And the tears scintillated on Maggie's pale cheeks as the dew in the sun on the petals of white roses.—New York Times.

American Geography.

The confusion which foreigners make of our geography is well illustrated by a German poem which appeared several years ago. The poet, with utter unconcern about locations and distances, makes such amusing blunders that its literary value is entirely lost. The argument is something as follows:

Under a palm tree on the shore of Lake Erie the hero is devoured by an alligator. The heroine, hearing of his fate, rushes from her home in the everglades of Florida on the banks of Lake Superior, captures the alligator, extracts the hero's body and buries it with magnificent pomp in Greenwood, in the city of New York, in the state of St. Louis.—Youth's Companion.

Deep Sea Creatures.

There must be myriads of fish living in the depths of the sea whose form and characteristics we can never even guess at, for, should specimens be successfully hooked, they would burst into pieces before they could [illegible]

MARLIN SAFETY REPEATING RIFLES EVERYWHERE

MADE BY THE MARLIN FIRE ARMS CO. NEW HAVEN, CONN. U.S.A.

WHAT TILLAMOOK CITY HAS.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS.—The city is lighted throughout by electricity, the streets with arc lights and the dwellings and business houses with incandescent lights. The plant is first-class in every respect, and capable of lighting a city of 10,000 inhabitants.

SIDEWALKS.—Miles of good, wide, substantially constructed sidewalks, forming a network extending to and connecting all parts of the city.

GRAVELED STREETS.—A first-class system of graveled streets, with a deep covering of good gravel, which is obtained in the city limits.

CITY HALL.—A neat substantial structure, containing city offices, council chamber, city jail and rooms for Fire Company. There is a good fire bell in the tower, and the building presents a good architectural appearance.

TELEGRAPH.—The Tillamook & Bay City Telegraph line connects with the Western Union at Forest Grove, and will be extended on this end to Nehalem and Clatsop.

TOWN ITE.—The location of the city is remarkably beautiful, and is just sloping enough to secure good sewerage and drainage. An excellent system of water-works can be put in at reasonable cost, also. The townsite is laid off regularly, and with wide streets.

BUILDINGS.—There are many costly and beautiful dwelling houses in the city, and many substantial business houses. The school house is a credit to the city.

BUSINESS.—The city has four wharves, a saw mill, three blacksmith shops, two livery stables, three good hotels, several wood-working shops, two hardware stores, a jewelry store, a book-store, a shoe store, three saloons, two barber shops, a temperance resort, a feed store, two drug stores, agricultural implement store, meat market, bakery and restaurant, photograph gallery, cooperage shop, millinery store, seven general merchandise stores, a bank, a furniture store, a newspaper, machinist's shop, real estate agents, lawers, doctors, ect., ect.

FAIR GROUNDS.—The Tillamook Fair Association has fine grounds, an excellent half-mile track, grand-stand, pagoda, pavilion, ect.

CHURCHES.—The Catholics, the Methodists Christians, M. E. Church South, and other denominations are well represented here.

SOCIETIES.—The Odd Fellows, Masons, Grand Army, and other orders have lodges here.

EDUCATION.—The school employs four teachers. Private schools are often conducted. Two or three church institutions are in embryo, and good inducements are held out for a college. Literary societies and reading circles are maintained.

MAIL FACILITIES.—There are daily mails from the S. P. R. station at North Yamhill; also to Bay City and points on the Bay, and tri-weekly mails from this place to many other points in the county.

ADVANTAGES.—Tillamook City is the county seat and commercial metropolis of Tillamook County. It holds the key to the farming region and to traffic on the Bay, and is backed by magnificent resources in the way of lumbering, dairying, fishing, ect.

TANSPORTATION.—Steamers ply between this place and Astoria and Portland; also between the bay and San Francisco. The steamers have good accommodations for passengers, and carry freight at cheap rates. There is a daily stage between this place and North Yamhill (on the S. P. R. R.) in the summer, and new stage routes will soon be
