TILLAMOOK, ORE., JULY 7, 1892.

our vengeance is no recompense, and, any way, belongs to a much higher tribunal than the bar of one poor weak man's judgment. That such encounters as the one which of late near this place led to so lamentable and bloody an issue, can be avoided, is a fact too obvious for argument. And back of this fact, too, lies this other, most apparent, that were it not for the existence of a certain laxness in the public sentiment concerning the righting of wrongs by violent means, this misguided man, who now lies in a felon's cell, would be at liberty to breathe the free air of heaven, his hands unstained by the blood of his fellow-man, and the widow and orphans would not now mourn the loss of a husband and a father. Where talk of shooting for this or that offense offered is freely indulged in, and goes unrebuked of all, what wonder if some ignorant and passionate man puts into practice the theory of which this violent language is the expression, the more reason too for him as he sees guns and knives almost openly carried and shown as proof of purpose, and no man lifts his voice in reprobation of such dangerous and demoralizing practices.

OUR TREAT.

The Frankfort Chronicle has a just grievance against this paper for getting a notice of it mixed up with a sling at Gov. Penoyer. Yes we took the erring typo to account. We gathered the sleek of his sinister auricular appendage between the thumb and finger of our dexter hand, led him to the rear door, and with our good right pedal extremity imparted a propelling force, a vis a tergo, so to speak, against his gluteal development that wafted him into the far beyond.

A HELL-BOUND LOOSE.

The rape fiend Charles Wilson, who murdered little Mammie Walsh, escaped from the officers, Sheriff Kelly and Deputy "Billy" Morgan, Saturday evening, as they were conveying him from McMinnville to Salem. Fearing mob violence it was thought best to transfer the wretch to the penitentiary at Salem. He was brought to McMinnville on the train, Saturday evening and from there was taken cross country in a double carriage the same night. While passing through a dark canyon, about half-way between McMinnville and Salem, the prisoner, who was unironed, hands and feet free, saw his opportunity, made a quick leap for liberty, and was out of sight in a second. The country was aroused and strict search was made for the scoundrel, but so far, without success, though his capture ultimately, is considered certain as every man in that vicinity, is on the hunt. The officials whose blundering carelessness has let this brute loose upon the community, have certainly gotten themselves into a pretty boggle, to say the least.

ROADS.

Agitation for better public highways has been carried on in Illinois quite freely for a year, and it was supposed that the farmers were in favor of building good roads; but the supposition was without foundation. They do, indeed, want hard, dry roads, but they do not want to pay for them. Fearing that something might be done to give vitality to the proposition that had been for some time urged, to issue state road bonds for the purpose of building better roads, the farmers sent committees to both conventions last spring, and succeeded in preventing them both from putting road planks into their platforms. The spring and early summer have seen an unusual amount of rain, and the roads have been almost impassable to wagons of any kind. It is estimated that the loss to the farmers of the state, by reason of bad roads since the convention, has been greater than the interest for several years on enough road bonds to give good roads to the entire state. This would probably be the first outcome of an effort to make good roads in Oregon. It is easy for the farmers to growl about impassable highways, and to declare that bad roads cost them a great deal of money, but when it comes to increasing the taxes a few dollars for the purpose of building better roads, they would doubtless oppose it as strongly as their Illinois brethren.—Oregonian.

We trust that the disposition of Tillamook county farmers is not such as is attributed to Oregon farmers in general by the journal from which we quote the foregoing

The contract for the building of the new school house, has been let to Wm. Mills.

W. Connor got his hip badly bruised by a fall coming from San Francisco on the Str. Homer.

Mr. St. John and family will leave for McMinnville in a few days.

H. F. Kirry is erecting a residence at the rear of his blacksmith shop. We wonder if Henry is going to keep bachelor's hall?

Quite a number of the Bay City boys will leave, this week, for Willamette Valley, where they will remain through haying and harvesting.

George and Lyman Lamb are visiting with friends at this place.

Mr. W. B. Livingstone will leave in the near future, for Kootenay Lake, B. C.

Chas Young is erecting a residence, east of the Winfield House.

John Gibich left for McMinnville last Saturday.

Mr. Joplin will soon be prepared to furnish everybody ice cream.

Those of our citizens who celebrated the Fourth at Tillamook report a very pleasant time.

Prof. E. K. Barnard returned from Portland Monday, where he had been attending the teachers state convention.

The band boys report a pleasant Fourth at Nehalem.

Glenora.

GLENORA, July 5.—Everybody is rejoicing at the prospect of having a road.

The Fourth passed off very pleasantly. We had a picnic in the woods which was a very enjoyable affair.

Grass, potatoes and all vegetables are looking fine.

W. J. Smith and family spent their Fourth in Tillamook.

John Jack.

The entertainments given by the celebrated comedian and his company on Monday and Tuesday evenings were worthy of these noted artists and of the best talent the stage affords, and worthy also, of a much more extended and discriminating notice than our time, space or ability affords. In particular Miss Firmin's Parthenia in "Ingomar" was a most notable presentation, in the naive simplicity and witty coquetry of the pretty captive, and also as Juliet in the portion scene the power and pathos there displayed was sufficient to mark Miss Firmin's place as a star of the first magnitude in the theatrical galaxy.

This evening the company will present a bill full of the choicest attractions, among which will be the presentation of "East Lynne" in which they will be assisted by Mr. Evans, Miss Myrtle Reynolds, Mr and Mrs. Wilson and A. W. Severance, all of the best of our local talent.

Quick Transportation.

The Steamer Elmore sails from Astoria to Tillamook bay on Monday and Thursday mornings, on arrival of the Union Pacific steamer leaving Portland on Saturday and Wednesday nights at 11:30. Through tickets can be had at U. P. ticket office, 254 Washington St., corner Third. Sails from Tillamook bay Tuesday and Fridays. Good passenger accommodations and through freight rates, as low as by any other line. This is by all odds the quickest way to get from Tillamook to Portland, and enables our merchants to telegraph for goods and get them here on short notice. No such time has ever before been made between Tillamook and the outside world. St. J.

The Campaign.

The fight between Cleveland and Harrison will be one of the hottest on record. Protection, Free trade, Reciprocity, and every phase of the Tariff Question, the Silver Question and other national issues will be discussed in every city, town and hamlet from Maine to California. The whole country is aroused and the interest is already at a white heat—nothing else seems to be talked of. The History Company of San Francisco, recognizing the immense demand for political literature, have issued two beautiful new books which will sell like wild fire. One is the lives of Cleveland and Stevenson, with able discussion of Democratic principles—the other, the lives of Harrison and Reid, with splendid articles by equally eminent Republican leaders. Every voter should have these books. The sale promises to be enormous. The publishers want live agents, as will be seen from their advertisement in another column. Such a splendid chance for rapid money-making is rarely offered, and those who would take advantage of
