NEW LAWS

SOME OF THE MEASURES PASSED BY THE LEGISLATURE.

The Governor Vetoes a Number of Bills. Among them the Durham Bill.

Among the excellent measures enacted into law by the late legislature was the bill of Mr. Manley providing for one assessment and one collection of taxes. This bill abolishes city and school district assessors, and provides for the levying of taxes by city and district authorities upon a certificate from the county assessor of the total amount of assessable property on the rolls lying within the boundaries of the city or district. The assessor then extends the city and district taxes opposite the state and county taxes, and then collects them all at one time, paying them to the treasurer, who keeps them in separate funds. The great advantages of this system are apparent. It is not a new one, but the one prevailing in the majority of the states where the tax laws are systematized.

Under the old law the unfortunate property-owner was put to much trouble to pay the taxes. He had to go to the courthouse for his county taxes, to the city hall for his city taxes and to some uncertain place for his school taxes. He was assessed at a different valuation in each place and the collection began at different times, so that he could seldom make one job of it. In addition to this, the three assessment rolls made it necessary for attorneys to go to three places to ascertain whether property was delinquent for taxes, increasing the labor and expense of real estate transfers and the uncertainty of titles. Furthermore, there might be three distinct sales for delinquency in one year, adding a needless cost for redemption. By the new law cities and school districts will be saved the cost of assessing and collecting taxes, property owners will be able to pay their taxes all at one time and place and obtain one receipt for the entire amount, the number and cost of delinquent sales will be reduced, the uncertainty of titles by reason of tax sales be lessened and a needless annoyance and burden upon real estate transfers removed. That the number of men who will take toll from taxes gathered will be reduced is by no means an objectionable feature incident to the operation of the law.

Road Laws.

Two bills have been passed by the legislature. One of these is a general road law and the other is a special law for the construction of special roads at the expense of the property owners residing within three miles of the line, and allowing them ten years in which to pay the cost of doing the work. It compels no county or district to build macadamized or graded highways unless it so desires, but if it so desire, it gives them power to do so and pay for the work in installments covering a period of ten years.

The other bill amends the present road law for the purpose of raising a general county road fund for the construction and maintenance of ordinary public highways. This bill places road work more completely in the hands of the county court. A county court actuated by a sincere desire to keep the roads in good condition has the power to do so. Counties may raise a tax by a cash levy not to exceed 5 mills. The court appoints all district supervisors and designates the districts. All money is paid into the treasury and is not disbursed by the supervisors. Road masters may be appointed, and to this office the court may appoint a competent engineer, and require that all work be done under his general supervision. No new road can be laid out until this road master has examined the locality and grade and reported favorably upon it.

It will now depend upon each county, both the people and the county court, whether the roads will be permanently improved or not.

Legislative News.

Senator Cross' bill, which has become a law, relative to county assessors, provides that the fees of the assessor shall be $3.00 per day, except in the counties east of the Cascade mountains; also Jackson, Josephine, Douglas, Tillamook, Clackamas, Clatsop and Marion, where they are to receive $4 per day. There is no change in the salary of Multnomah county's assessor, he receiving $6000 a year. The per diem of the county commissioners is $3 when employed, except in Douglas, Lake, Klamath, Jackson, Yamhill and Gilliam, where it is $4 a day. In Union the assessor is to receive $6 per day.

Senator Bancroft's tres-pass bill makes it unlawful for any person, other than arm, to go or trespass upon any enclosed premises or lands, without consent of an officer on lawful business bent, being armed with a gun, pistol or other fire-weapon or possessor. No one may shoot upon or from public highways, or, if armed, allow an accompanying dog to go upon such premises, unless in pursuit of deer or "varmint." The penalty for violation of the act is $5 to $50 fine, or equivalent imprisonment. Justices of the peace have jurisdiction.

The governor has filed six vetoes with the secretary of state. Senate bill 55, Bancroft's school district bonding act, is vetoed, as being similar in its provisions to house bill 154, already filed. House bill 180, a duplicate of senate bill 86, relating to fish, game and wild fowl, is vetoed for the same reason. Then there are vetoes of the Durham ballot bill, Paxton's amendment to the lien foreclosure law, Gowan's artesian well act and another house, fish and game bill.

Senator Cogswell's branding bill became a law. Its most radical provision, to which Senator Huston objected, is that no evidence of ownership by brand shall be permitted unless the brand has been duly recorded with the county clerks. The brand must be burned on a piece of leather, and this filed, giving the owner the exclusive right to such brand. It must not have been previously recorded, but if two should now apply with the same brand, the one who first had used it is to have it. Earmarks are also provided for. In equity or criminal trials recorded brands are prima facie evidence of ownership. The clerk's fees are the same as those for filing chattel mortgages.

Many newspapers throughout the state, whose utterances are always subservient to partisanship, are attacking the "enormous appropriations" made by the legislature at the recent session, and predicting that this "profligacy" will elect a democratic legislature two years hence. At the same time no single item of the appropriation is attacked; no appropriation is specified as one that ought not to have been made. Just tell us, brethren, what appropriations ought to have been omitted. Will the Salem papers object to $190,000 for the state jute mill? Do the Eastern Oregon papers condemn the $165,000 for a branch insane asylum? Let us have something specific.—Oregonian.

The Salem Statesman is putting in machines to do its type-setting. Two machines are expected to take the place of its present force of compositors and to largely increase the amount of reading matter. The machines are not exactly type-setters, but are what is known as the linotype, which casts the matter a line at a time. It will require a higher degree of intelligence to operate them than is needed to set type, since errors are not so readily corrected as in the use of type. Unskilled and uneducated labor is being crowded to the rear in the printing office as well as every other place of human occupation, and the great social problem of what will finally become of the unskilled and uneducated, looms into greater prominence every day.

Cleveland's Cabinet.

Walter Q. Gresham, of Indiana, secretary of state.

John G. Carlisle, of Kentucky, secretary of the treasury.

Daniel S. Lamont, of New York, secretary of war.

Hilary A. Herbert, of Alabama, secretary of the navy.

Hoke Smith, of Georgia, secretary of the interior.

J. Sterling Morton, of Nebraska, secretary of Agriculture.

Richard Olney, of Massachusetts, attorney general.

Wilson S. Bissell, of New York, post-master general.

A Big Swindle.

The "Resources of Oregon" a 230-page book published at state expense, is of little value if its description generally are as incorrect as they are for Tillamook county. In the first place the oft repeated error of showing the Nehalem river as the north boundary of the county is made in its map, and the whole description is old, something we read in a pamphlet five years ago, before we came to the state. It would have been an easy matter to get a better and later descriptive article. It states that Tillamook city has excellent water works, and that Delphi, Ore., town and Netarts are towns that are building thrifty, etc. The whole thing is full of such glaring errors, and the accompanying map is inaccurate in every particular.

Cleveland will not recognize the old chronic politicians and office holders of his former administration. He will select new men throughout, so he announces.

"I mistook the servant girl for my wife last night, and kissed her. You can imagine my feelings." "That's nothing. I mistook my wife for the servant girl the other night, and kissed her. Just imagine my feelings."—Ex.

It is said that the once extensive forests of oak, in Curry county, Oregon, are being rapidly denuded by the tan bark men. The trees are left to rot upon the ground by these searchers after bark, the idea of the timber having a merchantable value not having entered their heads.

Four years ago Grover Cleveland rode to the capitol sitting on the right of Benjamin Harrison, and a quarter of a million people looked on. This time Mr. Harrison will sit on the right of Mr. Cleveland during the short ride, and it is thought that half a million people will see them.

Illinois, Iowa and North Dakota are the heaviest buyers of Pacific Northwest lumber. The record for the last three months of 1892 was: Illinois, 55 carloads of lumber and 394 of shingles; Iowa, 47 carloads of lumber and 385 of shingles; North Dakota, 93 carloads of lumber and 277 carloads of shingles.

Governor McKinley of Ohio indorsed notes for friends, and as a result has to pay over $100,000. He and his wife have turned over all their property, but it is not enough to settle the claims. He refuses financial aid from his friends, and says he will retire from politics and practice law in order to retrieve his lost fortunes.

It is rumored that the reason the lawyers of Multnomah county enjoined the state from making the state levy is that they hoped thereby to enable Portland's bloated bond holders to escape paying the last year's tax on mortgages, by claiming that the new tax law became effective before the state levy was made.—Reporter.

The Sheridan Courier says:—A newspaper office is not a loafing palace. We are always glad to see our friends, but we do not keep a free reading room. Parties desiring reading material will be supplied with a reasonable amount to take away after we are done with, not before. Long or continued stories that take up the time of the editor and printer may be told on the outside of the building. We mean all right, but business is business.

The work of this session of the Oregon legislature is the best in years. Several reformatory laws have been passed that bear the stamp of common sense. They look well in theory and will no doubt be good in practice. The state is growing and each year brings a greater expense of administration, and legislators should not be cursed until the laws are in operation and the expenditures, or a portion of them, are made. More honest work has been done than in years past, and in all probability the seventeenth biennial session of Oregon will be looked at, in the years to come, as one benefiting the people in a marked degree. Some mistakes have been made of course, but the present moment is not the one in which to judge them. The new laws are theories now; they will be facts in the course of three months.—Telephone-Register.
