Though at one time the dining room threatened to sever connections with the cooking department, on the whole the change of location was made without much inconvenience to Mr. Alderman or his guests.

Capt. Thos. W. Symons has answered the petition lately sent in by many of our citizens to obtain government aid toward cleaning out the slough. The captain writing to Claude Thayer states that, much to his regret he can not accede to our request because the money in his hands is appropriated exclusively to the improvement of Dry Stocking and Junction bars. This is very much to be regretted, although Captain Symons, of course, must be bound by the system of elaborate red-tape characterizing our governmental system.

About six o'clock Wednesday evening G. W. Wallace's house at Beaver was burned and but little saved. Mrs. Wallace was sick and a Mrs. Peters was doing the household work, Mr. Wallace being away. The fire caught from the kitchen stove flue and spread very rapidly. A sewing machine and a few other household effects were all that were saved. While the house was not very valuable the loss of household goods and clothing was considerable. The family is at Mr. E. F. Lyster's at present. We understand that Mr. Wallace will rebuild at once.

The citizens of the South part of the county custom by postponing their celebration of Independence day till the 6th of July.

This was done in order to secure music for the occasion as all the bands available were engaged for the Fourth.

The exercises commenced with anvil and fire works, on the evening Wednesday and continued with noise and fun and music and dancing until the morning of Friday.

The exercises proper commenced with a procession formed by A. D. Sanders, marshal, headed by the Amity band, which marched to a grove where the grounds had been neatly arranged. The customary programme was gone through with, the oration being delivered by T. B. Handley of this place. After dinner there were games, races, dancing and a show, followed at night by the Odd Fellows, at their hall.

The only complaint was caused by a lack of seating room, the crowd being so much larger than was expected. There were a great many visitors from Yamhill and Polk counties. One pleasantly conspicuous feature was the absence of intoxication, and another the universal good will and jollity of the assemblage. The Woods celebration was unanimously voted a success.

Headlight changes Hands. Having sold the HEADLIGHT, printing office, fixtures, subscription list, good will and all of its dips, spurs, angles, and every appurtenance thereto appertaining, I wish to announce to the people that I am ready, willing and determined to collect all that is due me before August 1st, 1883, A. D.

I will be in the office until that time, after which I will be elsewhere, therefore it is necessary that you settle at once. Those who do not make satisfactory arrangements before July 20th will find their accounts in the hands of an attorney.

Those who have bills against me should present them before I get away. Respectfully but earnestly, W. F. D. JONES.

The Equine Paradox. On Monday the town was invaded by a show entitled the "Equine Paradox," which has been traveling through the Willamette Valley for some time. Their entertainment consists of trained dogs and horses, rope throwing, tumbling and contortionist feats. A large crowd turned out to witness the entertainment.

The band kindly consented to assist with a little music, which proved an enjoyable part of the show. In return for the courtesies shown them the Equine Paradox troupe announce that this evening they will give an exhibition for the benefit of the Tillamook Fire company. The receipts of that evening will be given to the company and after the entertainment the floor will be cleared for dancing.

Over ninety persons, including some from other neighborhoods, met at the school house in Sand Lake settlement on the 4th of July to celebrate the day. Netarts.

Old Sol has once more gained ascendancy in the elements and weather is fine.

Miss Lillie Wiley is home again, health somewhat impaired after a nine months' close attendance at school.

But few coasters yet arrived, bad roads the hindrance.

The last ten days have been greeted as the dawn of a new era of prosperity for Netarts bay. The safe and easy entrance and departure of the steamer Harrison, and the final opening of the bay shore and coastline wagon road to Cape Look-out, have been hailed with delight.

Sloughs and streams have been bridged, immense tree uprooted and mountains dug down and though the road in places may be as narrow as the road to Glory, it is much safer. No occasion for being eternally lost. And we extend to the outside world a hearty welcome to our hospitable shore.

The Fourth came and went as usual, and with it one of the most agreeable celebrations ever held in the county. Too much credit cannot be given to the women of the vicinity for the grand success. The audience to the number of about 100 began, to congregate in a beautiful grove near C. B. Wiley's, suitably arranged for the occasion. The forenoon was occupied principally, the matrons arranging and decorating the tables with floral wreaths until the Lillies which eclipsed the glory of Solomon would have been forced to droop their heads in envy at the sight.

Tall iced cakes interspersed with bowls of strawberries and cream raised their timid heads like white plumed mountains, emerging from beneath a wilderness of flowers. And all did eat and were filled, and not only twelve baskets full of the fragments were taken up but oodles. The younger gentry amusing themselves swinging, etc.

The evening entertainment opened with a quartette by Miss Swanson, Pagenkopf and others.

Recitation by Miss Eichinger. Duette by Messrs. Loden and Latourette. Recitation by Miss Jennie Page. Duette by Miss Swanson and Pagenkopf. Recitation by Nettie Morgan. Solo by Miss Jose Page. Recitation by Nellie Richinger. Solo by Mr. West. Recitation by Master Gid Farmer. Solo by Miss Crutchen.

Concluded by a general snatching and taffy-pulling gotten up in apothecary style by Wm. E. Page and all concluded it was well to be there.

Oretown.

There are not as many coasters on this beach as usual at this time of the year.

Misses Nannie and Katie Wilson returned to their home from Portland last week.

A. O. Yates' horse was burglarized during his absence to the Valley and all of his silverware stolen. There is evidently a candidate for the penitentiary in the neighborhood.

The new proprietors of the Little Nestucca cannery have ordered all work stopped and it seems quite probable that the cannery will not run this fall after all. This will be a great disappointment to most of the settlers here as many were depending on fishing for a living.

The people of Little Nestucca intend testing in the Circuit Court the legality of the Baxter toll road in charging toll across the Grand Ronde Indian Reservation. A part of this road was built over thirty years ago and the Agent says they have no lawful right to collect toll there. Times are hard and money scarce, which makes a strong incentive to fight against extortion.

Yamhill County.

Cato Sullivan, of Tillamook, was at this place Thursday morning.

The boys say that Gid Ely got the camus knocked out of him, at Sheridan on the evening of the 4th.

Prof. Washburn, E. V. Littlefield, Harry Edmiston and Dick Bird returned from Tillamook Saturday last, and report having a way up time.

We hear that the narrow gauge iron that is being taken up, will be used in an extension of the road from Sheridan on through to the coast. This, if done, will open up a fine country, that is rich in timber, it will also be a great convenience to coasters, as they can go over on the cars for less than what horse feed would cost, if they should go by private conveyance. This if true, will be good news to those who go over to Tillamook each year for pleasure, but it will be tough on the parties who own and are building toll roads.

People are passing by for the Coast. Large numbers of Portlanders come as far as Sheridan on the train and go over to Woods by conveyance from this place.

In the eight round boxing contest given here on the night of the 4th, Harry Jones defeated Gid Ely. The Tillamook champion wasn't in it from the start, 'tis said.

The Indian base ball club at Grand Ronde went to Siletz to play the Siletz boys for fun, money or coin-bides. Quite a number of our fellow citizens from Grand Ronde put in the day at this place, and seemed to enjoy themselves very much.
