BANKS SUSPEND.

PORTLAND AFFECTED BY THE FIN-ANCIAL CRISIS.Six Banks in Portland Suspend payment Temporarily.

Never in the history of Oregon has there been witnessed such an experience as that of the past week. The proud boasts regarding the strength of Portland financial institutions have proved fallacious and six banks have been forced to close their doors. The first intimation of the crisis was when the Oregon National bank closed its doors Thursday.
This was not unexpected as the bank has been considered shaky for some time. The closing of the North West Loan and Trust Company followed, John B. Markle being president of both institutions.
The principal depositor in the Oregon National Bank was Sheriff Kelley who had something like $300,000 of county money on deposit. Friday the Union Savings Bank and the Commercial National Bank closed up and on Saturday the Portland Savings Bank and the Ainsworth National Bank were compelled to suspend payment. There was a heavy run on the Merchants' National but the president of this institution was enabled by mortgaging his personal property to raise enough funds to tide them during the day.

All the suspended banks claim to have more assets than liabilities and business men seem to be confident that depositors will not sustain any loss.

Critical Times in Denver.

DENVER, Col., July 27.—The lynching of the Italian, Arata, last night has shown the immense crowd of idle workmen at present in Denver what can be accomplished by violence, and there is a dread in the minds of many citizens that a riot of enormous size, having for its purpose the looting of the city, may break out at any time. The thousands of unemployed workmen already here being augmented daily by others from throughout the state, who are gradually working their way to Denver. The county and city and numerous charity organizations are doing their best to feed and shelter the great army of penniless people, but are incapable of meeting the demands. The banks of the city have called upon the United States troops at Fort Logan, of which there are 700, to be ready to protect their institutions in case of an outbreak. Some of the banks are United States depositories and thus have the right to ask the government for protection. The unemployed members of the militia and the Clatsop light artillery are now under arms at the armory awaiting developments. Mayor Von Horn has issued a proclamation requesting all good citizens not to congregate on the streets, as it may lead to an outbreak.

This evening a large crowd of unemployed men gathered at Eighteenth and market streets to exchange ideas on the question of food and shelter. The police broke the meeting up, but Larimer street is thronged for blocks with people many being merely curiosity-seekers waiting for something unusual to occur.

No Room for Waifs.

CHICAGO, July 27.—This was the day set apart by Mayor Harrison for an outing for the poor children of the city, and as Mayor, he asked that they be allowed to see the world's fair, in which the corporation of the city of Chicago has invested $5,000,000. Their admission, however was declined. Buffalo Bill's Wild West show is a private concern and under no obligations to the City of Chicago. Colonel Cody, however, so soon as he heard that the world's fair knew no "open season" for the poor children, made up his mind he would have them, and to-day 15,000 girls and boys from the slums and alleys marched in procession through the streets, were given a free ride by the Illinois Central road to Sixty-third street, and were royally entertained by Buffalo Bill, who gave them the most glorious day in all the history of Chicago waifdom.

The Midwinter Fair.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—The executive committee of the midwinter fair gives out the following information this morning: H. Wallenstein, who has a large flour milling exhibit at Chicago, communicates relative to the establishing of his exhibit at the California fair.
Several additional offers have been received today from gentlemen who believe they can be of assistance to the fair, and tender their services free of any cost except traveling expenses, to work among the different Pacific coast states. A great many offers have been received from paint manufacturers offering to paint the buildings and also to cover the roofs with various materials. One concern today requested the privilege of covering the office of the buildings at the fair for the cost of the material and labor. Applications from mercantile houses of all sorts are coming in every mail. A local firm representing a large number of eastern manufacturing houses say they intend to get up a very elaborate exhibition of different proprietary articles. Some of these exhibits are prominent features at the Columbian exhibition. Many of these will be brought to California intact. The Chinese Six Companies have subscribed $5000 to the midwinter fair. In addition to this they will bring the Chinese exhibit from the Chicago fair hither and will have a number of new features. Among the things promised is a floating Chinese village. The executive committee will appoint an international jury of awards.

The general reception of exhibits will commence October 15, and no article will be admitted after December 20.

Row in Parliament.

LONDON, July 27.—There was a regular row in the house of commons to-night, the scene enacted there being unprecedented in parliamentary history. Ten o'clock this evening was set for closure of debate in the committee on the home rule bill. Joseph Chamberlain arose to deliver the final broadside of the opposition. He was still smarting under the lashing administered by Gladstone Tuesday evening and spoke with much bitterness, giving his opinion of the closure as applied by the government. He was frequently interrupted by jeers from his own side. After one period of interruption, he proceeded:

"The prime minister calls Black to his adherents and they say it is good.
He calls White and they say it is better.
It is always the voice of God. Never since the time of Herod has there been such—"

Chamberlain got no further, for with his half finished reference to Herod there came from the nationalists such a roar of indignation as had not been heard in the commons since the time of Parnell.
T. P. O'Connor sprang to his feet and, leaving toward Chamberlain shouted, "Judas!" The rest of the Irishmen took up the cry and shouted "Judas" in chorus.
Chairman Mellor tried to put the closure but his voice could not be heard.

Then everybody started for the front bench. Unionists shouted "gag." Others struggled in the aisles or between the benches with radical, liberal or Irish autagonists. Somebody smashed Tim Healy's high hat down over his eyes and as soon as Tim got it off he jumped into the aisles in fighting posture just as Hanbury was trying to get past Hanbury was knocked over the bench by force of the collision. A free fight then broke out at the gangway, led by William Redmond. Blows were struck right and left. The whole space between the front benches was filled with a struggling mass of members, striking clawing and upsetting each other.

Finally Gladstone begged Major Edward I. Banks, a sturdy liberal, to help stop the affair. Major Banks dug his way through the beligerents and, by dint of appeals in the name of the premier, succeeded in stemming the conflict.
Gladstone, sitting upright, had surveyed the whole scene with an inflamed face and an expression of sorrow, indignation and astonishment which will never be effaced from the minds of those who viewed him.

Speaker Peel decided that the expression alleged to have been used was the original cause of the disorder. He felt certain that it was used in the heat and irritation of the moment and if the gentlemen were to say he regretted it, it would be his (the Speaker's) duty to take no further notice of the affair.
O'Connor then apologized to the speaker.
This was received with cheers.

The uproar began again, however, and another riot was threatened, but the speaker succeeded in subduing it. Then Mellor resumed the chair. The various remaining clauses of the home rule bill were carried. When the committee arose and Chairman Mellor reported to Speaker Peel the home rule bill as amended in the committee there was a grand outburst of cheering and hats were waved for Gladstone. The report stage was fixed for August 7th.

A Callous Mayor.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 27.—The coroner's jury in the case of Mrs. Lester James, alias Ida Phillips, found dead in her house by a rent collector, brought in a verdict today censuring the mayor and chairman of the board of health for callousness in allowing the woman to die alone after she had appealed to them for aid and after a prominent physician had written the mayor that the poor creature could live only a short time.
Much indignation is felt over the affair, and the evidence at the inquest revealed revolting callousness.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Lewis Rice

The Countess of Clancarty, somewhat widely known as "Fell Filton," may have to go back to the stage to make a living.
The English courts have decided that the Dowager Countess, mother of the present Earl, has absolute control over all the property left by her late husband.

According to an exchange, a young lady school-ma'am with an inordinate fear of small-pox sent a little girl home because the latter remarked that her mother was sick and had marks on her face. Next day the child returned and said to the teacher: "We've got a little baby at our house, but mamma told me to tell you that it isn't catching."

A postage stamp, equal in value to two pence halfpenny, is pasted each week in a little blankbook, which every servant girl in Germany carries. The stamp is the donation of her mistress, enforced by law. Should the girl get sick the stamps are redeemed by the Government; or she may keep them un-redeemed until she is old, when the Government pays their face value.

The cable tells a peculiar story of a misadventure that befell an elegant dressed lady in a church parade in Hyde Park, London, on a recent Sunday.
The lady's black hair was caught on the parasol of the lady behind and while she was trying to release her hair she dropped a handsomely bound volume inscribed, "Book of Common Prayer," upon which a stout gentleman stepped before he noticed it. He stopped with profuse apologies to pick up the volume, when those near by observed a thin stream of light liquid coming from it, while an odor of cognac rose on the air.
The woman who had dropped it dis-claimed ownership and disappeared.

The Victoria Court Martial.

VALETTA, Malta, July 27.—The court-martial inquiring into the loss of the battleship Victoria decided that Captain Bourke was not responsible for the disaster, and was therefore acquitted of all blame. The court expressed regret that Rear-Admiral Markham, on board the Camperdown, did not carry out his original intention and ignore the signal displayed by order of Admiral Tyrone.
The court added however, relative to Markham, that it would be fatal to the best interests of the service to say he was to blame for carrying out the commander-in-chief present in person.
The verdict was that the accident was entirely due to the order given by Admiral Tyrone. All the survivors are acquitted of blame.

No Ships for Salmon.

Not only is the scarcity of available ships felt in the grain market, but by salmon packers as well. There are 20-000 cases of salmon on Astoria docks awaiting shipment to England. They belong to the Fishermen's Packing Co. and D. Morgan. There are no ships in port which can be used for this purpose, and it will be some time before any unchartered vessels arrive.
