The Oregonian made little of the failure of the Oregon National Bank and the North West Loan and Trust Co., probably with the intention of discouraging a run on the larger institutions.

The opening of the World's Fair on Sunday did not prove such a success as was anticipated and the religious denominations are consequently jubilant. The authorities have decided to keep it closed on Sundays in the future.

The people on the old west side narrow gauge line are delighted over the change of the road to standard gauge. Now it should be pushed right on from Sheridan to Tillamook bay and Astoria. It will have to be done before long, and this is the time it will do the most good. It can be done now much cheaper than a few years hence.—Statesman.

A party of men who have been prospecting in the desert east of San Diego report having found ruins of a vast temple, covering an area of 460 by 250 feet. The pillars are of granite eighteen feet high and are carved to resemble huge rattlesnakes. Ornamental pottery of fine workmanship was found and exhibited to capitalists who will send out an expedition to investigate to seemingly important discovery.

The county court has authorized the sheriff to have a well dug and put in a force pump and a supply of hose so as to furnish protection against fire. This is a good move and it would be of great benefit if wells and force pumps were placed at various points in the business part of town. Several buildings could have been saved during the late fire if there had been a supply of water at hand, and it is well known that the powerful pump at Fearnside's store did service that was worth many times its cost.

It is about time the snobocracy of New York took a tumble to themselves. The spectacle of Americans toadying to a lot of Spanish grandes who were never known to do anything to benefit the human race was sickening enough, but when it comes to raising a subscription to pay their gambling losses it is too much. It may be said they can do as they please with their own money but when there are so many thousands of honest, hard working Americans who would be glad to work for those dollars, to support their wives and children, whose labor would result in more or less benefit to all around them, and who in reality created the wealth so ostentatiously expended, it is unbearable to any true minded American citizen to see it given to a race whose interests are utterly unreconcilable with the principles that underlie our American institutions.

SOME POST OFFICE RULES.

A funny Postmaster recently sent to the Post Office Department a new set of post office rules. They were:

A pair of onions will go for two cents.

Ink bottles must be corked when sent by mail.

Persons are compelled to lick their own postage stamps and envelopes; the postmaster cannot be compelled to do this.

Persons are requested not to send postal cards with money orders inclosed, as large sums are lost in this way.

Nitro-glycerine must be forwarded at the risk of the sender. If it should blow up in the postmaster's hand, he cannot be held responsible.

When letters are received bearing no direction, persons for whom they are intended will please signify the fact to the postmaster that they may at once be forwarded.

As postmasters are expert linguists the address may be written in Chinese or Choctaw.

It is unsafe to mail apple or fruit trees with the fruit on them.

It is earnestly requested that lovers writing to their girls will please confide their gushing rhapsodies to the inside of the envelope.

Ducks cannot be sent through the mail when alive. The quacking would disturb the slumbers of the clerks on the postal cars.

When watches are sent through the mail, if the sender will put a notice on the outside, the postmaster will wind and keep it in running order.

John Smith gets his mail from 674,279 postoffices, hence a letter directed to John Smith, United States, will reach him.

When you sent a money order in a letter always write full and explicit directions in the same letter so that any person getting the letter can draw the money.

Alligators over ten feet in length are not allowed to be transmitted by mail.

The placing of stamps upside down on letters is prohibited. Several post masters have recently been seriously injured while trying to stand on their heads to cancel stamps placed in this manner.

ENCOURAGING.

The Puget Sound Lumberman, speaking of the financial stringency takes the following hopeful view of the situation on the Pacific Coast:

"The Pacific coast has gone through the first part of this year without any great increase in failures. The reason for this lies in the fact that eastern investments are comparatively small as compared with the states east of the Rocky mountains. Most of the money brought to the Pacific coast has gone into permanent ventures rather than those of the speculative kind, and consequently there is no false bottom here. The speculative period on the coast passed away with the death of the boom at Los Angeles. The farmers are not mortgaged to death, as in the tie East, and but little city property is held by New York and New England speculators. Hence, while the east suffers, in common with the rest of the country, because of the tightness of money, there can never be extensive failures caused by the withdrawal of eastern money.

"And this financial flurry will give the Pacific coast an impetus never before experienced. All the money taken from the middle western states will have to go into circulation again after confidence is restored, and is bound to come to the coast for investment. This is the only section of the country left untouched by the capitalists, and as he has his money again after experimenting with the farming districts to his heart's content, he will naturally look for places where there is something besides wheat or corn. And the vast and varied resources of the Pacific coast will be developed. Keep your eye on the coast.

MAKE A MISTAKE

Many a business man cuts down his newspaper advertising just at the wrong time. It is not the return from judicious advertising which brings success. It is the cumulative effect. Watch the business of two firms, one a live persistent, aggressive advertiser, the other negligent. Which becomes the leading merchant in a few years? Buy a space in your paper, make it interesting and don't begrudge the money. Advertising in a live paper pays. The paper can live without your advertising better than you can live without its effect.

NOBLY DOING HER PART.

"Your husband is the editor of Bugle, I believe?" said the neighbor who had dropped in to make a friendly call.
"Yes."
"And as you have no family and have considerable leisure on your hands, you assist him now and then in his editorial work, I dare say?"
"Oh, yes," answered the brisk little wife of the young newspaper man, hiding her straw berry-stained fingers under her apron, "I edit nearly all his inside matter."

MORE GOOD WISHES

The Tillamook HEADLIGHT has changed hands, and now comes out under the management of Tom Coates, who will hereafter trim the wick and light up the dark places of Tillamook county. We welcome the coming and speed the parting proprietor.—West Side.

WE LEAD THE WORLD.

Persons who visited Europe, Asia and Africa say that of all mosquitoes the American specimen is the most energetic, the simplest in its manners and the most deceptive in its appearance. Its song is not more soothing to the sleeper nor its bill more formidable in its looks, but it has a penetrating power that puts to shame the ram of the Camperdown. The American mosquito is besides vastly superior in the construction of its digestive organs and in its ability to repeat its vicious attacks. It can work through a smaller mesh and surpasses all rivals in accuracy of aim and skill in the selection of strategic positions.

There are some men whom the country editor likes. When they meet you they give your hand a shake which its genuine and does you good. They never allow their politics to infringe upon their business and good will towards all. They never allow their subscriptions to run behind, rarely fail to hand you the news, and occasionally bring you a subscriber. They always speak a good word for their county newspaper, and in a thousand ways render themselves indispensable to you. There is another class which have no use for a newspaper. Their business is usually transacted in back alleys and back rooms; their souls are so small that six of them would rattle in a shell of a mustard seed and their ways so dark that a ray of light will discolor them out of recognition. This kind the newspapers have no use for either.—Ex.
