The Dairyman's Ten Commandments.

1. Thou shalt not abuse nor worry thy cow—thou, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy man-servant, nor thy dog, nor thy boy whose business it is to "drive up" the cows—but thou shalt at all times treat thy cow gently and kindly, securing her confidence, and allowing no one to molest her or make her afraid.

2. Thou shalt not starve nor stint thy cow for food, nor give her poor, innutritious or unwholesome food of any kind whatsoever, but an abundance of that which is palatable and good for her system, that she may keep in good flesh, have a smooth coat and clear eye; and thou shalt give her salt to lick whenever she liketh.

3. Thou shalt in no way deprive nor allow thy cow to be deprived of clean water to drink, nor compel her to wallow in mud, nor to go a long distance to get water, nor to drink out of mud-holes, stagnant ponds or pools, nor to sip water from holes in the earth made by her own feet or the feet of other animals; but thou shalt give her an abundance of spring, brook, or well water kept clean enough for thine own use.

4. Thou shalt give thy cow ample shade in summer and a warm shelter in winter; and the latter shall be kept clean and sweet, and withal well ventilated; and thy cow shall have freedom of motion, a clean bed to lie on, and an opportunity for such out-door exercise as she may desire, to the end that her blood shall freely circulate, that her muscles shall not deteriorate and become weak and stiffened, and that her digestion and appetite shall remain good.

5. Thou shalt milk thy cow in a good place in summer, and when she is not heated or fretted, but standeth quiet and cleweth her end, and in a clean place at all times; thou shalt clean thy cow's bag, milk her gently, and avoid getting filth into thy milk pail; and thou shalt not save for thine own or thy neighbor's use, nor carry to the factory any milk drawn from a cow with a calf less than four days old, nor milk drawn from a cow suffering from horn and hoof disease, or horn distemper, or fever, or garget, or any other disease, nor from any cow which thou hast good reason to believe is suffering from ill-health.

6. Thou shalt keep everything about thy stable and dairy-house scrupulously clean; thou shalt thoroughly cleanse and scald—not merely rinse in hot water—all the pails, cans, strainers, pans and other utensils used in milking, carrying milk, setting milk, or manufacturing into any of the products of the dairy; and thou shalt carefully keep thy milk from exposure to a foul, tainted, or diseased atmosphere; so shalt thou prevent the oily particles in thy milk from absorbing bad odors, and fever malaria, and the virus of contagious disease; and thou shalt spare thyself the sin and shame of delivering milk that "testeth of the barn-yard," and of introducing disease into the families of those who eat of the products of the dairy.

7. Thou shalt cool and air thy milk as soon as drawn from the cow, by using the best appliances at thy command—not by putting water or ice into it, for that would be a violation of the law and commandments—but by bringing the milk in contact with a cool surface above the freezing point, and exposing thy milk in thin sheets to a clean atmosphere, that it may become charged with oxygen, which hath a wonderful virtue to prevent souring and tainting. It is shrewdly suspected by some of the prophets, that airing milk is of more value than cooling it, and experience showeth that stirring with a dipper hath a preservative effect; at should commend it to every patron of a cheese factory. Thou shalt confine thy milk in a covered can as short a time as possible, and protect it from the rays of the sun and the hot atmosphere. A woolen blanket covered over the can, and a canvas stretched over the milk wagon would be found efficacious—the blanket is not to be used unless the milk is cooled.

8. Thou shalt not water thy milk by mixing with it the contents of the spring, the well, the cistern, the brook, the watering-trough, or other sources of water supply; nor by feeding thy cow with villainous slops, whey, or extremely succulent food, whereby the contents of the milk-can shall be increased in quantity at the expense of quality, with a view of cheating thy neighbor; for thou wilt thereby be cheating thine own soul, and stand in constant danger of the penalty of the law.

9. Thou shalt not skim thy milk by taking off the cream that riseth in the can over night, that thou mayest have a little cream for coffee; nor by setting it in pans or other utensils over night; nor by saving strappings, nor by any other process; for if thine own sense of honesty doth not restrain thee, thou shouldst constantly have the fear of the law and of the watchful eyes of thy neighbor before thee. It is better to save out a small mess of milk for thine own use.

10. Thou shalt not commit adultery by adulterating thy milk with burnt sugar, chalk, soda, salt, or any ingredient or compound whatsoever; nor by giving vile stuffs to the cow; nor by any means, trick, device, or process known or unknown to the naturally depraved. The laws of the State, the health of the community, and the lives of the people, especially of the host of little ones, who are likened unto the kingdom of heaven, cry out against this unpardonable sin.

Under the new dispensation I add the eleventh commandment:

11. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself and keep thy Sunday's milk at home for the purpose of making sweet butter for the use of thy family, and that the cheese-maker, and all those who labor with him in the factory, may rest, and worship according to the dictates of their conscience, on every Sunday. Thereby shalt thou meet the requirements of the Scriptures, and of the Constitution of the United States, and prolong the lives and improve the morals of a large and increasing class of useful citizens.

By faithfully observing these commandments, the dairyman shall keep a clear conscience, avoid annoying and expensive prosecutions, retain the respect of his neighbors, secure a competency of this world's goods, live a peaceful life, and in his old age approach the bed of death "like one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."
