

Those Piling.
W. F. D. Jones, Esq.,
Tillamook, Ore.

Dear Sir:—We observe by this morning's Oregonian that you are printing an advertisement in your paper calling for seven million feet of spruce piling for the Nestucca and Woods railroad. We are desirous of having more information on this subject and should be pleased to have you send us a copy of the paper containing this advertisement together with any other information you can furnish us. We will consider this a favor and highly appreciate it.

Yours Truly
TATUM & BOWEN.

A Burglar shot and instantly killed.
Hobsonville, June 22, 1894.

[HEADLIGHT Special.]

Last night the inhabitants of Hobsonville were aroused by a loud report of a rifle at the hotel kept by Mrs. Wilson. Upon hearing screams the people rushed to the scene and found Mrs. Rowley gesticulating wildly. They soon gathered from her remarks that she had been aroused by a burglar attempting to break into one of the buildings where were stored the provisions and becoming alarmed she immediately seized a rifle and discharged the contents into his face. The men immediately made investigations and dragged into the light the body of a large—coon.

BILL SMITH.

The Well-Known Fishing Guide Is Now a Justice.

A number of sportsmen of this city, says the Oregonian, have for several years been accustomed to spend their vacation fishing in the Doherty, over in the Coast range. They have always employed as guide, and incidentally as philosopher and friend, a man who knows the river better than do the fish, and who has no equal in breaking camp, packing to better fishing grounds, or in tossing flapjacks. He was familiarly known as Bill Smith. Now the hearts of the sportsmen are broken, as, on writing to secure their favorite guide, they find that he has been elected a justice of the peace, and is known as Judge William Smith, and that the duties and dignities of his office forbid that he should act as guide any longer. They feel, however, that he will make as good a guide in the unknown depths of the law as he used to be to the best pools of the Doherty, and are preparing to furnish him with a law library which will be adequate to all his requirements. The boys will have to tackle the Doherty without a guide this summer, and endeavor to learn the scientific curve for flapjacks.

A Card.

Ed. HEADLIGHT—The report in the Nehalem Times regarding the trouble between myself and J. B. Pape, is entirely one-sided and unfair, and does me an injustice. I make this statement that the public may not be misled by the article published in the Times.

Respectfully
CHRIS. LARSEN.

J. R. Mills, formerly an employee of the Statesmen, was a candidate for county clerk of Tillamook, but was defeated by a democrat. Mills is a good fellow, and had he been able to conceal his connection with the Reform School Journal he would doubtless have been elected. He is a young man and may outlive it.—State Democrat.
