Kissing for Revenue Only.
 A peculiar suit is pending in New York state. Miss Mueller gave free kisses at a church. A fellow with money in his pouch attended and he planked down his spoons for a kiss. He got it and liked it and kept on playing and kissing until his wallet was emptied. Thinking over the sweetness and satisfaction of this osculatory he concluded to marry Miss M. that he might get his kisses free of charge. He proposed and she consented, then he backed down and declared he would not hang his buttocks to a girl who would dispense her kisses so freely, even if it was for church purposes. And now there is a suit for damages. Of this affair the Washington Post says: "At first the lady wept, refusing to be comforted, and after indulging her grief for a fortnight, she went to see a lawyer and her suit for breach of promise is now on a court docket. The case of Mueller versus Corning promises to have an attractive and illuminating influence. One of the results of the trial made by a discouragement of public and promiscuous kissing as a means of raising money. Kissing for revenue only is not the ideal style of osculation. Somehow, it hasn't the right flavor."

Two Opinions.
 The Oregonian announces: "Senator Dolph will be re-elected, virtually without opposition."

The Sun predicts that Senator Dolph will not be re-elected, but in the future will have an opportunity of devoting his whole time to the corporations without being annoyed with the interruptions of having to occasionally look after the interests of constituents however same did not interfere with the corporations, Wall street or Lombard street.

Republicans, the Oregonian says, in advocating an increased use of silver take themselves outside of the party. In support of this theory says the Corvallis Gazette, a plank for the last republican platform is cited. It is however fair to state that the same convention which adopted the platform referred to also nominated and voted for C. W. Fulton, W. P. Lord, Harrison R. Kincaid, W. R. Ellis and Binger Hermann. These men are all friends to the white metal, and some of them have been ardent advocates of free and unlimited coinage. This is particularly true of Mr. Kincaid, who, for forty years, has never wavered in his silver policy, and yet his devotion to Republicanism has never been questioned.

"Old McElroy, state superintendent of public instruction and who has recently taken a fat position in the state university at the expense of the taxpayers is in the secret employ of the American Book Company and is at work developing a sentiment in favor of this company's publications. This would be entirely right and proper if McElroy was not in the employ of the people, and before he works for any corporation whose interests are directly contrary those of the people, he should give up his trust. However McElroy will never do this as his idea of a public office is that it is a private snip."—East Oregonian.

Medill, of the Chicago Tribune wants to succeed Cullom as senator, and the country press of the state insists that Medill is a free trader and that he would destroy the money power of silver entirely except as a subsidiary coin, and place us on a single gold standard. On most all public questions where the interests of the rich and the masses clash he is never with the masses. As a representative of the whole people, Mr. Cullom is a much better representative than Mr. Medill would be.

A. W. D; of the Oregonian, remarks that Oregon has no statues in the capitol hall of statuary. We would suggest that H. W. Scott, Joe Simon or J. N. Dolph pose and fill that awful void existing at Washington. A statue of Simon, life size, would not cost much money. Scott and Dolph in marble would cost more. Brass would be a fitting metal if not so emblematical.—Telephone-Register.

There is but one way for Mr. Dolph to be elected—money against the will of the people—and since the people are so unanimous in opposition to the senator their representatives cannot consistently vote to return him. If they do it will take more than circumstantial evidence to convince the people that they have not been betrayed for pecuniary considerations.—St. Helens Mist.

The Oregonian makes the following curious statement: "The heaviest burden of the depression has been borne from the first by the very rich, dependent upon incomes for invested money and upon the fruits of extensive industrial and commercial enterprises, and by the very poor, dependent upon the rich and upon these same enterprises for employment."

The Oregonian tells the legislature that it must and shall elect Dolph to the senate. A few years ago it was equally dogmatic and insulting in declaring that Mitchell must, could, should and would not be elected. But he was.

PROSPECTUS
 General Character of this Paper.
 THE HEADLIGHT is the oldest paper, having been here seven years. Other papers have come and gone, but the HEADLIGHT never weakens. The present proprietor has been with it most of the time since it started.
 It is the county official paper; publishes the tax list, financial statements and court proceedings. Besides it gives all the county news, and works to build up the country.
 The HEADLIGHT is absolutely independent, and speaks fearlessly on all local questions. It gives all persons a chance to air their opinions, and encourages independence and freedom of thought and action.
 A finely equipped commercial printing plant is in connection, and the office does practically all the job printing done for this county.
 W. F. D. JONES, Editor.

MONEY QUESTION.

CHICAGO INTER OCEAN GIVES AN OPINION.

That conservative and stalwart republican paper, the Chicago Inter Ocean declares itself as follows:

"Perhaps nothing is talked about more than money and financial systems, yet few people have accurate or reliable information about them. Men talk glibly about the supply of silver and gold or the insufficiency or the super abundance of currency, who, when their knowledge of what they discuss is tested are found woefully wanting. To aid all such to become posted on such things the Inter Ocean recommends to them the study of a little book called "Coin's Financial School." Young Mr "Coin" is supposed to know nearly everything about gold and silver and all sorts of currency, and he opens a school in Chicago for teaching what he knows to others. The school is opened in Chicago and is attended by prominent business men, merchants, bankers, lawyers, editors, etc. Coin does the lecturing, but they all ask questions, which Coin answers with wonderful readiness. It is in vain that they try to trap him. Apparently he has the statistics of the world at his tongue's end and a faculty for illustration that enables him to make plain many things otherwise difficult to understand. Every man, whether lawyer, banker, financier, or statesman, will know more when he reads this book through than when he began. One may not always agree with Mr. Coin's positions, but must agree that he knows a good deal about the subject he discusses. If you want to know all about silver and gold and money in general you should not fail to read it carefully.

Senator Alley's Opinion.

State senator B. F. Alley, one of the leading republicans in the state senate says in this paper, the Florence West: "Much has been said about the Oregonian 'reading out' of the Republican party all those who favor free-coinage of silver. If such is the case it can place on its 'out' list three-fourths of Republicans votes in Lincoln, Benton, Linn, Lane and Douglas Counties. This position however, is so contrary to every thing pertaining to independent opinion, that we cannot accuse the Oregonian of such presumption. Any number of Republicans in Oregon have a right to differ from that journal on any question and as a majority of them do on the silver question, it would be folly to attempt to coerce them to accept that paper's ipse dixit in regard to free-coinage of silver."

The relation which price bears to quality in literature is made obscure by the Christmas Cosmopolitan. Stories by Rudyard Kipling, Wm. Dean Howells, Mrs. Spencer Trask, Mrs. Burton Harrison, and Albon W. Tourgee, are interspersed with poetry by Sir Edwin Arnold, Edmund Clarence Steadman, and James Whitcomb Riley, while through the number are scattered illustrations by such famous artists as Rembrandt, Toche, Reinhart, Turner, Van Schaick, Gibson and Stevens. A series of portraits of beautiful women of society illustrate an article on The relations of Photography to Art: a travel article by Napoleon Ney, grandson of the famous Field Marshal; one of the series of Great Passions of History, to which Foude and Gosse have already contributed, and half a dozen others equally interesting, go to make up the attractions of the number. The Cosmopolitan people say: "We might charge you more for this number, but, in all frankness, could we give you better material, better illustrated, if we charged you a dollar a copy?"

When Dolph was first elected he owned about $200,000 in railroad stock and was a railroad attorney at a salary of $10,000 a year. We know he did not dispose of his railroad interests when he took his seat in the U. S. senate. Is any man fool enough to believe he resigned his position as attorney when his services were rendered ten times more valuable by his election.—Corvallis Gazette.

People and newspapers that think Senator Dolph is going to fail of re-election do not comprehend the strength of the political machine in this state.—Pendleton East Oregonian.

In Clatsop county warrants sell for 94 cents, and the county debt there is bigger in proportion than it is here.
