Correspondence Wanted.

The HEADLIGHT is for the people, and they are invited to write for its columns. We have no free exercise of opinion, and wish to encourage independence of thought and action. Local topics are preferred. Our name stands at the head of this column, and everything, not otherwise signed, we stand responsible for. If you write, don't be afraid to state your own opinions, but sign your name for publication, it is cowardly to do otherwise, and articles with fictitious names have little weight. We adhere to this condition, except as to local correspondents who send news items pure and simple. In such cases we do not publish the name of the writer.

But if you wish to express an opinion or criticize somebody, you must sign your name for publication. And, in all cases, we must know the name of the writer. Don't throw out petty personal slings, or deal in coarse abuse regarding your neighbors. Would rather you'd abuse the editor of this paper. Such letters would be more apt to be published. In fact, people who hold opinions different from ours are urged to write them for publication. We'll answer you fairly and courteously if your opinions are worth answering. We are anxious to have parties of different faith express their opinion in this paper. We pride ourselves on granting everybody the right to think and act according to his conscience, regardless of our own beliefs.

The public doesn't care about "somebody going to see his girl," new fence, "bad colds," building of hen coops, etc. Write about something interesting or not at all. Write as plainly as possible. If you can't spell correctly, or use good grammar, never mind that. Don't let a good news item spoil on that account. We furnish printed instructions that will be of help to those who wish to write for papers.

The space in this paper is yours. Make use of it if you like.

The HEADLIGHT this week begins upon the eighth year of its existence. The paper was started June 6, 1888, but counting 52 weeks to the year for all this time, brings our anniversary back to May 30. However, the peculiarities of the calendar will bring the anniversary of the paper in 1896 on June 5.

This paper was founded by one J. E. Edwards, at one time well known on the Pacific coast as a newspaper man, but later as a minister of the gospel in East Portland, (thus indicating the ultimate desideratum of all newspaper men) and making a success of it. He has better backing now than he had while here. The noted swindler, C. E. Wilson, was his backer here. There was a run on Mr. Wilson's bank for a few minutes, but it didn't avail anything, as Wilson's cash was like his love, rather evanescent. Evidently Edwards was an unwashed and unredeemed sinner while here and hadn't yet considered the great problem about the future of his soul.

He didn't pay the men who worked for him, and Mr. Theo. Steinhilber took the newspaper outfit for wages. Everybody pitied Mr. Steinhilber, but the land office business came and Mr. Steinhilber waxed fat. After a few months he got married and retired from business. This was in the fall of 1889.

About this time the present proprietor walked into the county (because he didn't have a cent with which to pay fare) and has been waxing poorer ever since, but expects to hold out another year.

Without intention to wrong Mr. B. C. Lamb, or Mr. Tom Coates, we will say that each of them had some experience with this paper, but both have survived the ordeal.

Well, here's to you for another seven years.

The meeting of the republican clubs of Oregon in Portland was a grand success, about one thousand delegates being present, and great enthusiasm was displayed. Delegates were elected to the national meeting which will occur in Cleveland, Ohio. An attempt of the extreme free silver wing to commit the meeting on the silver question was frustrated, the resolution being laid on the table. The delegates were rightfully of the mind that the clubs had no business to make platforms or commit the party on any question, leaving that matter to the state and national conventions. No doubt a very large majority of the delegates and the people are favorable to silver and to bimetalism, but the people are not yet prepared to accept "free coinage, 16 to 1," and the radical few made a mistake in trying to force the issue at such an inopportune and improper time. From what can be gathered from authentic sources, the delegates considered they were duty bound to refuse consideration of party policy, and vote in such a way as to induce harmony in party circles at the next election. While the HEADLIGHT is strongly in favor of bi-metalism, and against the single gold standard, it believes that this question has as much place in a Methodist campmeeting as in the meeting of the republican clubs. A camp meeting is intended to create enthusiasm and save souls, not to expound doctrine or settle knotty theological questions. The same principle applies to the republican clubs.

PITHY PARAGRAPHS.

The Opinions of the Best Newspapers in Short.

It is a sad sight to see the cut worms climbing a telegraph pole hunting for leaves, pathetically remarks a California paper.

No living man can name the next Democratic candidate for President, but a chump can tell that he will be defeated.—Cincinnati Tribune.

Mr. Addicks will probably never again undertake to control a Senatorial boom without owning a substantial majority of the stock.—Washington Star.

It may be entirely correct, but it hurts a little to note the practice of the English papers in referring to Croker as "our Yankee friend."—Boston Journal.

The fish in Lake Michigan have all disappeared from the vicinity of Chicago. You can't make even a sucker believe that drainage canal is to be a waterway.—Peoria Herald.

While one of Chicago's aldermen was in his seat in the Council chamber the other evening three enterprising robbers held up a party of poker-players in the back room of his saloon and walked off with the stakes "kitty." Some of those Chicago aldermen do neglect their business shamefully.—New York Press.

"I am going home to mother," said the young wife, "and what is more, I am not coming back till I hear you have eaten that pie I took so much trouble and pains to make for you." "I am glad to hear," meekly said the young husband, "that you think enough of me to attend my funeral."—Indianapolis Journal.

It is always permissible for a man to change his views with increasing light, and when a political leader frankly says to his constituents: "My former opinions were mistaken and I wish to make a public retraction," the people's sense of fair play applauds instead of condemning him. But when a statesman who is now heading east by north attempts to make it appear that he is on the same course as when he was sailing west by south his position lacks dignity and he is in danger of increasing criticism.—S. F. Examiner.

Colonel Henry Watterson frankly admits that he was a free-silver advocate until quite recently and asks by way of explanation: "must a man hold to his ignorance always?" This is manfully spoken, and if Colonel Watterson will now carefully examine the Wilson bill freed from its income-tax amendment and note the mischief his star-eyed goddess of free trade has already accomplished he will find excellent material for the greatest confession of ignorance ever put before the public.—Inter Ocean.

The Louisville Courier-Journal denies that Secretary Carlisle was ever at any time a blatant silverite or that he favored the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. He only voted for free silver in order to secure the votes of silver men against "the force bill." That may have been Mr. Carlisle's real purpose in 1890, but what did he mean when in 1878, speaking in favor of silver, he said of the demonetization act of 1873: "According to my view of this subject the conspiracy which seems to have been formed here and in Europe to destroy by legislation and otherwise from three-sevenths to one-half of the metallic money of the world is the most gigantic crime in this or any other age." If Mr. Carlisle was only speaking to hear his own voice in 1878 he has an easy way of working himself up to an intensely dramatic pitch without any cause, and it would be well for him to carry some kind of barometer that will enable his friends to tell when he is in earnest and when he is only "orating."

ABOUT HEMLOCK BARK.

Hemlock bark is altogether too valuable nowadays to be wasted, and great pains are taken to get off all that can be secured in good condition, says Leather, of New York. The first thing the bark-peeler does is to rim the fallen trunk every four feet. This he does by cutting through the bark to the wood with his ax. Next he takes the bark spud, a curved, hooked implement, and catches it under the edge of the bark and gradually works it off the tree in as large pieces as he can. It is pretty tough while it is yet green with the new sap, and usually comes off with little difficulty and in good condition. After bark is peeled, the next thing is to get it down the slope of the hill. It cannot be thrown down as a log can be. So the peeler, as he works his way up the hill, manages to leave a pretty clear roadway all the way up. When bark enough is ready to haul, he gets a sort of bob-sleigh and, if the slope is very steep he puts a drag at the end, so that it will catch in the ground and keep the sleigh and its load of bark from slipping down the hill when he does not want it to do so. In this way the bark is got down from the elevations to points where it can be loaded on to cars for direct shipment to the buyer. Bark needs to be piled up in the woods about two months before it is sufficiently cured to ship.

The hemlock bark business was given considerable of an impetus by the organization of the United States Leather Company, which is the incorporated term of the sole-leather trust. This concern, which includes many of the manufacturers of sole leather in the country, started out to control all the supply of hemlock bark in sight. It bought millions of cords on the trees. Many lumbermen felt themselves forced to sell, thinking that this concern would be so great that it would be in a position to pay what it wished in the future. Others did not take that view, and events have proved their wisdom.

BELIEVES IN OREGON.

The following from a Portland paper refers to an article in the HEADLIGHT regarding Mr. M. K. Handy's account of Mexico:

"A man living at Nehalem, in this state, has just returned from Mexico, and gives a glowing description of that country. This description of the country is evidently intended as an advertisement for a wildcat land scheme which this man is getting up. He wants to organize a colony of Oregon people and take them to Mexico, and he assures those who answer his notices that tracts of 5000 acres may be had for $2 an acre. There is no reason for any one in Oregon to move to Mexico. This is God's country, and a man can make as much headway here as in any part of the world, and much better progress than in most places. Nothing, except climate, can be had for nothing in Mexico, any more than in Oregon. A man who has a home must make it in Mexico as well as in Oregon. All things considered a home in Oregon is to be preferred to a home in Mexico, and the Nehalem man should seek new fields to boom Mexico."

Horticultural Quarantine Regulations.

At a special meeting of the Oregon State Board of Horticulture, held in Portland, April 2, 1895, all members present, the following regulations were adopted, in accordance with the laws regulating such matters, and are, therefore, binding upon all persons. The regulations are to take effect and be in force from and after May 4, 1895:

RULE 1—All consignees, agents or other persons, shall, within 24 hours, notify the quarantine officer of the State Board of Horticulture or a duly commissioned quarantine guardian, of the arrival of any trees, plants, buds or cions at the quarantine station, in the district of final destination.

RULE 2—All trees, plants, cuttings, grafts, buds or cions, imported or brought into the state from any foreign country, or from any of the United States or territories are hereby required to be inspected upon arrival at the quarantine station in the district of final destination, and if any such nursery stock, trees, plants, cuttings, grafts, buds or cions are found to be free of insect pests and fungous diseases, the said quarantine officer or duly commissioned quarantine guardian shall issue a certificate to that effect. And furthermore, if any of said trees, plants, cuttings, grafts, buds or cions are found infested with insect pests, fungi, blight or other diseases injurious to fruit or to fruit trees, or other trees or plants, they shall be disinfected and remain in quarantine until the quarantine officer of the State Board of Horticulture or the duly commissioned quarantine guardian can determine whether the said trees, plants, cuttings, grafts, buds or cions are free from live injurious insect pests or their eggs, larvae or pupae, or fungous diseases before they can be offered for sale, gift, distribution or transportation. All persons or companies are hereby prohibited from carrying any trees, plants, cuttings, grafts, buds or cions from without the state to any point within the state beyond the nearest point on its line or course to the quarantine station in the district of ultimate destination; or from any point within the state to any other point therein, until such trees, plants, cuttings, grafts, buds or cions have been duly inspected, and if required disinfected as hereinbefore provided; and all such shipments must be accompanied by the proper certificate of the inspecting officer. Provided, however, that after such persons or company have given the proper officer four days' notice, he or they shall not be required to hold such shipments further, without directions from such officer.

RULE 3—All peach, nectarine, apricot, plum or almond trees, and all other trees budded or grafted upon peach stock or roots, all peach or other pits, and all peach, nectarine, apricot, plum or almond cuttings, buds or cions, raised or grown in a district where the "peach yellows" or the "peach rosette" are known to exist, are hereby prohibited from being imported into or planted or offered for sale, gift or distribution within the state of Oregon.

RULE 4—All trees, plants, cuttings, grafts, buds or cions, seeds or pits arriving from any foreign country found infested with any insect pests or their eggs, larvae or pupae, or with fungi, or other disease or diseases hitherto unknown in this state, are hereby prohibited from landing.

RULE 5—Fruit of any kind grown in any foreign country, or in any of the United States or territories, found infested with any insect or insects, or with any fungi, blight, or other disease or diseases injurious to fruit or fruit trees, or to other trees or plants, is hereby prohibited from being offered for sale, gift or distribution within the state.

RULE 6—Any boxes, packages, packing material and the like infested by any insect or insects, or their eggs, larvae or pupae, or by any fungi, blight, or other disease or diseases known to be injurious to fruit or to fruit trees, or to other trees or plants, and liable to spread contagion, are hereby prohibited from being offered for sale, gift, distribution, or transportation until said material has been disinfected by dipping it into boiling water and allowing it to remain in said boiling water not less than two minutes; such boiling water used as such disinfectant to contain in solution one pound of concentrated potash to each and every ten gallons of water.

RULE 7—Animals known as flying fox, Australian or English wild rabbit, or other animals or birds detrimental to fruit or fruit trees, plants, etc., are prohibited from being brought or landed in this state, and if landed shall be destroyed.

RULE 8—Quarantine stations: For the first district, comprising the counties of Multnomah, Clackamas, Yamhill, Washington, Columbia, Clatsop and Tillamook, shall be Portland. Henry E. Bosch, quarantine officer, or any member of the Board or the Secretary thereof.

RULE 9—Importers or owners of nursery stock, trees, or cuttings, grafts, buds or cions, desiring to have such nursery stock, trees, plants, cuttings, grafts, buds or cions inspected at points other than regular quarantine stations may have such inspections done where required, provided, however, that such importers shall pay all charges of inspection. Such charges and expenses to be paid before a certificate is granted.

Transportation companies, or persons and consignees or agents shall deliver and cause to be detained all nursery stock, trees, plants and fruit at one or other of the quarantine stations, for inspection, as provided by the rules and regulations of the board.

Details as to quarantine stations, offices, fees of inspection, receipts for disinfected and all desired information may be obtained on application to the Secretary or any member of the Board, or by reference to pamphlet circulated.

Passed at a meeting of the State Board of Horticulture at Portland, Or., April 3, 1895.

Attest, GEORGE I. SARGENT, Secretary,
J. K. CARDWELL, President.
