Every patriotic American should blush with shame at the recent Indian outrages where hundreds of families were butchered, Such a contemptible, impotent, farcical government as we have is laughed at even by the semi-civilized nations of Asia and Africa. The effete monarchies of Europe appear creditable alongside our miserable, damnable attempt at a government. No doubt a few settlers did wrong in killing a few trespassing Indians, but this is no reason why our government should stand idly by and see hundreds of women outraged and hacked to pieces before their husbands, and allow the tomahawk to be bathed in the blood of innocent babes. If the settlers had not hoped our good-for-nothing government would assist them, they would have assisted themselves in time. After the department had considered the matter long enough to allow the butcheries to be done, a handful of infantry men were sent after the Indians. They can't even watch the Indians, who are good horsemen and will travel fifty miles while the soldiers are going ten. No cavalrymen will be sent unless a few hundred more are butchered. The governwent did not heed the telegrams from the governors of Idaho and Wyoming. It sends its messages by slow freight, after everything has been "considered" fully. Damn such red tape. Out with such a dawdling, thum-sucking administration. Let us place ourselves under the protection of Great Britain again if we can't have a better government of our own.

The agitation of the scheme for obtaining money at reasonable rates has already a good effect, even before the outside parties could get here with cheap money. Those who have a reputation for paying promptly and who furnish good security are having no trouble now to get money at reasonable rates. Another result is that several parties who have been loaning money on a commission or "bonus" have quit the business, as there is less demand for money, and fewer people who are willing to pay a large commission. Those who have momey now are loaning it direct and not employing agents, thus saving the borrower considerable.

An exchange says that an editor will go to some merchants and ask them for an ad., when they will remark that it does not pay; that no one reads his paper. Some night shortly after let the man be caught kissing his neighbor's wife, or trying to keep a lamp post perpendicular, and if the printing office is in the garret of a seventeen story building he will climb to the top to beg the editor to keep quiet—don't publish it in the paper, you know.

Eight honest, conscientious Seventh-day Adventists of Rhea county, Tenn., have been condemned to serve terms of from seventy-five to ninety days in the county jail at Dayton, Tenn., for the offense of doing common labor on Sunday—labor which disturbed no other person's private or public devotion. It has also been decided to work these men in the chain-gang.

"Marriage is becoming a merchandise, clubs are substituted for homes, wives are becoming society ladies, children are unavoidable nuisances and destruction of life a habit. The few children who enter the home are turned over to milk bottles and nurses in babyhood, to public schools in childhood, fashionable colleges in youth and are given over to society, dress and amusement in young manhood and young womanhood. Instead of reading the bible and saying their prayers at night, the girls plait their hair in shucks for bangs and the boys plait their toes for toothpick shoes, and both go to sleep with a dime novel under their pillow and a fifteen cent head on top of it."—Sam Jones.

Drink and the gang drinks with you. Swear off and you go it alone, for the barroom bum who drinks your rum, has a quenchless thirst of his own. Feast and your friends are many, fast, and they cut you dead; they'll not go mad if you use them bad, so long as their stomachs are fed. Steal, if you get a million for then you can furnish bail; it's the great big thief that gets out on leave, but the little one goes to jail.—Ex.

E. E. James informs a Castle Rock, (Wash.) paper, that on Monday he will advance the price paid to farmers of 40 cents per hundred for milk to 50 cents. This is due, he says, to the demand for butter, he being unable to supply the demand made upon him by 2,000 pounds a week. Mr. James expects by paying this price to have milk enough to run to his utmost capacity.

Astoria is jubilant because the subsidy business is settled and work on the railroad is to begin at once. It will be completed next summer, and a branch will be built connecting Seaside with Nehalem, and extended on to Albany via Tillamook as soon as possible.

The United States Federal court has decided that the Oregon fish laws do not apply to the Washington side of the Columbia, and fishermen can fish on Sunday next to the Washington shore without danger of being arrested.

The fashion of kissing, says an Eastern scientist, can't be explained, but is supposed to be about the same inborn instinct which induces one calf to suck another calf's ear. This scientist evidently never kissed many people.

CHEESE IN BETTER DEMAND.

W. H. Carpenter reports that 300 pounds of cheese is the average daily output of the Yakima city creamery and the demand is so great that a cheese over thirty days old is a rarity in the store room. The demand is mainly from Seattle and Tacoma, although shipments have been made to Spokane, Walla Walla, Portland, and other points. with satisfactory results. This week Mr. Carpenter sold five cases of "Young Americans" for the Oriental trade. Heretofore the products of the creamery has been shipped in square boxes. but a few days ago Mr. Carpenter received the machinery for the making of the regulation, round cheese boxes, and in a short time the product of the creamery will be packed in as attractive form as that of the Eastern creameries.—Yakima Herald.

THE TIMBER OF ALASKA.

(Minneapolis Lumberman.)

The report that several Puget Sound lumbermen have gone to upper Alaska to establish a saw mill, naturally brings up the question as to that country or territory's resources in the way of timber. Although the timber resources in Alaska are as yet undeveloped, it is said that it contains a large amount of merchantable timber. Southeastern Alaska from Cape Fox to Kenapenisula is covered with dense forests where timber grows as thick as in Oregon and Washington. These forests contain very little besides coniferae, and some of the timber is not worth manufacturing into lumber, although the red and yellow cedar, the most valuable woods, are said to make excellent shipbuilding timber.

ATTRACTING ATTENTION.

The newspapers have more to say of Tillamook now than any other locality in the west. The Portland Sun said recently in it's leading editorial:

"Since the Columbia River railroad is now assured, and the importance of the enterprise to both the city of Portland and the city of Astoria, has become evident to everybody, it may not be amiss to call attention to other more direct routes for a railroad to the Pacific. The nearest point to the ocean is directly west, on the baseline road, through Hillsboro, Forest Grove, Gales Creek, and and along the Wilson river road to Tillamook city. By this route, the distance is less than half that by the way of the Columbia river. There are some steep grades to be overcome in order to reach the Pacific by this shortest line; but it is not at all improbable that modern engineering will be equal to the task when the great natural wealth of the Tillamook coast has been in some measure developed. The beauty and fertility of that region, and its capability of sustaining a large population, have thus far been concealed behind the mountain barriers that have shut out people from entering it in large numbers. The Wilson river road has already done much to induce people to visit that, heretofore far off country. The sight of the many miles of magnificent timber, through which this road leads, is worth a journey to the Pacific. But the greatest surprise will be when you emerge from the Wilson river canyon upon a broad prairie and the beautiful and enterprising city of Tillamook gives you hospitable welcome. The two hotels that were destroyed by fire two years ago, are again rebuilt with better accommodations, and a third new one is nearly completed, of about equal size. Dr. May and his excellent lady have erected an academy building that would do honor to any city of Oregon and the families of Tillamook coast have filled it with students. These facts are given among many others that ought to be named, to show that a railroad directly to Tillamook is a matter that will not be postponed many years."

HOW TO BUILD UP THE TOWN.

An exchange tells how to build up a town. We copy it, and apply it to Tillamook:

Push it.
Talk about it.
Write about it.
Speak well of it.
Help improve it.
Beautify the streets.
Patronize its merchants.
Advertise in its newspapers.
Prefer home enterprise, always.
Speak well of enterprising men.
If you cannot think of a good word to say remain silent.
If you are rich, invest in something, employ somebody, be a rustler.
Be courteous to strangers that come among us, so that they go away with a good impression.
Always cheer up the men who go in for improvements. Your portion of the cost will be only what is just.
Do not kick about any necessary public improvement because it is not at your own door, or fear that your taxes would be raised fifteen cents.

THE BICYCLE SYSTEM.

First Citizen—It is not enough that bicycles carry bells; the law should enforce a regular system of signals that all can understand.

Second Citizen—What would you suggest?

First Citizen—Well, I don't know exactly, it might be something like this: One ring, "stand still;" two rings, "dodge to the right;" three rings, "dive to the left;" four rings, "jump straight up and I'll run under you;" five rings, "turn a back handspring and land behind me," and so on. You see, us folks who walk are always glad to be accommodating, but the trouble is to find out what the fellow behind wants us to do.
