LUMBER.

Following is from The Puget Sound Lumberman:

Someone originated the story that Everett is to have a saw mill which will cut 400,000,000 feet of lumber a day, and there were some papers whose editors evidently thought that nothing was impossible with the Smokestack city, took the item seriously and quoted it.

The Buffalo Gazette thus refers to west coast products: "The red cedar shingle trade made surprising advances, and the shipments east now amount to 1,600,000,000 a year, while of fir, spruce and cedar lumber the shipments amount to nearly 100,000,000.

The Quillayute country, across the Olympic mountains, is one section of the Pacific coast where forest fires have not penetrated. Special land agent Atkinson, who has just returned from there, gives a glowing description of what he found.

shore a number of small islands; at one time a good harbor was found just inside them. The river swept in rather behind the islands and so out to sea on the south side, making in early times a convenient harbor. A vessel became lost in the mouth and floating trees and sand choked up the outlet, till now the river reaches the ocean around the other end of the chain, once the old outlet is opened the river will again take the old course and a good harbor would be afforded for lumber vessels.

On August 23d Thompson & Folsom, of Hartford Wash., cut at their mill on a Challoner hand machine in ten hours, with eleven men, including the engineer, filer and dry kiln man, 99,000 5 to 2 16' Clears. They also made an average for five days of 79,000 per day. J. W. Thompson was the sawer. This is certainly a good record. Who can beat it?

SALMON AND SAWLOGS.

[The following items are going the rounds of the press in Western Oregon and Washington:]

The pail and tub factory at Ocosta is now in the hands of Cleveland, Beaulieu & Sherwood and they intend to keep it running in the manufacture of butter tubs, candy and jelly pails, pickle tubs and fish kits, of which they are making a superior article.

Some Sound loggers are reported about to begin operations at the mouth of the Quillayute river, towing their logs to Gray's Harbor and the Sound.

A gentleman from Astoria has been in St Helens for several days engaged in getting out small pil to be used in building a fish trap near the mouth of the Columbia. The timbers were found in the groves near town. Several of our industriously inclined citizens have been assisting them.

The salmon market at Liverpool continues firm. Prices are higher than they were a year ago.

The Port Blakeley mill, Puget Sound, had a recent order from South Africa for 2,600,000 feet of lumber, soon to be shipped on a steamship of the Lingham line.

Archie Pease, the well known pilot, has an interest in an eel fishery, near the falls at Oregon City. It appears when the water is low the eels can be dipped out by the ton. As high as 20 to 30 tons of eels are caught annually. The fish are salted and sold for bait to sturgeon fishermen.

It is stated that nearly a million and a half of eggs are already in the process of spawning at the Clackamas hatchery. Over one thousand fine large chinook have been transported from Baker's bay to the Chinook egg station, a large number are being taken at the Cascades for the Kalama hatchery, and it looks as if 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 young salmon would be the outcome of this season's work on the Columbia.—Kelso Journal.

It is stated that there is quite a demand in Chicago for low grade Columbia river salmon. About 80 cents per dozen is offered.

CURRENT FUN.

Chummy—What would you think of a man that always went round talking to himself?

Gruffy—I should say, if he did it to listen to himself, he was a fool; if he did it to avoid listening to his friends, he was a genius, and if he did it to save his friends from listening to him, he was a philanthropist.—New York Truth.

Pastor (to peasant girl)—Why do you weep so much?

Peasant Girl—Because my lover has gone to the army for three years.

Pastor—But those will soon be over, then he will return.

Peasant Girl—Yes, but I'm afraid that in the meantime another man will marry me.—Tid-Bits.

Ripans Tabules: pleasant laxative.

THE SILVER QUESTION.

(Written by John Hansen.)

ED. HEADLIGHT:—If you will kindly afford me space in your paper, I will attempt to demonstrate the necessity of again giving to silver its former place as a money of ultimate payment or redemption, as it occupied previous to 1873. We are told by the newspapers, controlled by the goldites, that free coinage of silver would still further depreciate the value of silver and make gold go to a premium. Taking it for granted that they really believe what they state, it is very kind of them to furnish us with such valuable statements all at their own expense. But that be as it may, most people have argued on one thing and that is that more money is needed in order to do business on a cash basis, and they also know that by stopping the silver mines it will not only cut off the future supply of silver but also nearly one-half of the output of gold which now comes from silver mines. It is agreed upon by all intelligent writers on political economy that the value of money and the value of all other things depends upon the supply, and demand. An increased supply of money will raise the value of labor and products, while a decreased supply reduces them. This I would hardly need to tell you as we know by experience that nearly all products and labor has gone down to almost nothing since the last fatal blow given to silver.

It is difficult now that our money supply is not exposed to the uncertainty of the amount of metal mined, but also to the caprice of legislation, to assign a reason for their use as money; paper would answer the purpose and would relieve us of the uncertainty of finding it. If the vast amount of gold and silver has no stability and no power to regulate the volume of money without being exposed to the intrigues of legislative manipulators why not use paper? We have been taught a lesson, if legislation can be used by the goldites to reject silver as a money metal, we have the power to elect a congress that may reject both gold and silver and issue paper money based on the wealth and patriotism.

JUST AS MUCH MONEY AS EVER.

Many of the newspapers and some of our politicians tell us that there is just as much money in the world now as there ever was. They forget to tell you that all the silver certificates are only credit money and can be used to drain the U. S. treasury with. Then there are the bank notes and treasury notes, they are not money but simply promises to pay money, so you see there is good reason for demanding the restoration of silver to its former place as a debt paying medium, good for all debts public and private. The bond holders have great faith in the power of money and the press bought by them, to educate the people, after giving the people to understand that one of the precious metals can be demonetized by legislation to enhance the value of the other that they own, when at the same time the people have the power to re-adopt silver or any other material for use as money, and could demountize gold if necessity demanded it.

The talk about the horse canning factory in this state says the Forest Grove Hatchet, brings to mind the stories of those who crossed the plains in an early day. With the pioneers horse meat was considered a delicacy, preferred to elk meat. Many a mustang was shot down to secure the choice meat from the neck along the mane. Of course they were the animals in their free wild state and not broken down old plugs and castaway crow bait.

The followers of the Great Black Cat, who assembled at Minneapolis the past week failed to settle the question as to what constitutes "dressed lumber," nor did they attempt to settle the controversy as to whether the bloomer is the proper costume of the "dressed new woman"
