POLITICS THE MAIN TOPIC

THE LOCAL CAMPAIGN WARMING UP.

Interest in local politics is warming up a little. The following communications speak for themselves:

He's All Right

EDITOR HEADLIGHT:—Certain parties
having attempted to make capital against J. S. Stephens, as a candidate for assessor by insinuating that he was a defaulter while school clerk of Marion county some years ago, I have caused an inquiry to be addressed to the people of Salem who know the facts in the case and have received many replies, all favorable to Mr. Stephens, and I submit as many as you will have space to publish. They are from well known and prominent men and give Mr. Stephens a record of which any man might be proud.

It seems that Mr. Stephens was school clerk in Salem for four years during which time he handled about $100,000, and while an incompetent assistant caused him some trouble with his accounts, he settled every dollar honorably at the end of his term, and in such a manner as to earn the esteem and confidence of the gentlemen who give him the following testimonials.

It is to be hoped that this will be the last attempt at starting a campaign of slander and mud throwing in this county.

T. B. HANDLEY.

Salem, Ore., Apr. 21, 1896.

To whom it may concern:

This is to certify that I was elected school clerk of school district No. 24, Marion county, Oregon (known as the Salem district) 1884, after Mr. J. S. Stephens' term expired and found the books in good order and everything paid up in full.

Very Respectfully Yours,

J. W. MORRILL.

We fully corroborate the above statement being school directors during most of the time of J. S. Stephens' term as school clerk.

GEO. P. LITCHFIELD,
Late Director.

JOHN WRIGHT,

Director the last year of J. S. Stephens' term as clerk.

To whom it may concern:

This is to certify that I was one of J. S. Stephens' bondsmen during the four years that he served as clerk of district No. 24, of Marion county, Oregon, and that I nor any other of his bondsmen had to make good any shortage of his and being in a position to know can say that no one else lost anything by his fault or action.

Mr. J. J. Basy and O. Dickinson who were on his bond with me are both dead.

Salem, Ore., Apr. 20, 1896.

I thoroughly know of and heartily concur in the above.

L. L. ROWLAND, M. D.

GEO. A. FEEBLE,

Ex County Supt.

Mrs. Prudence A. Basy widow of J. J. Basy can testify that Mr. J. J. Basy deceased, the person mentioned as one of the bondsmen of J. S. Stephens when he was school clerk of school district No. 24, will say that as far as I know he never lost a dollar by being said bondsman.

Signed, A. J. Basy.

Portland, Ore., Apr. 8, 1896.

To whom it may concern:

This is to certify that Mr. J. S. Stephens has been engaged with us for the past two years and that his business transactions with us has always been honorable and above reproach. We also take pleasure in testifying that he has proven himself faithful and efficient in his capacity as well as honorable in his dealings with our constituents. We highly recommend him to any one requiring his services.

Yours Truly,

C. F. WEBER & Co.

To the Public.

I have found that a report is now going the rounds among the people that I am trading A. T. White, our candidate for clerk, for John Edwards, the democratic candidate. Now I will positively state that said report is a wilful and malicious lie, as I am always for every individual candidate on the ticket on which I am nominated. John Edwards and myself have always been good friends, and I respect him as a gentleman, but I could not and would not down any man on my ticket, to support him or any candidate on either of the other tickets. But the voters should know, the campaign is on and lies are in order, among the campaign liars, of which is always a general assortment before election.

Respectfully Yours,

JOHN H. JACKSON.

Note the semi-annual statement of the county officials printed on another page of this issue. From the summary it appears the county is in debt in all $43,000 and the total resources are $37,000, not a very great difference, except the taxes due this year, and a lot of delinquent taxes are counted as resources. Much of the delinquent taxes will never be collected, and while we are collecting this year's taxes the county expenses will be going on. However, the county is in better shape now than for a long time, and the price of warrants will keep on rising.

The Wilson river road will soon be traveled again and there is talk of a stage line being put on. Except for the bridges T. C. McNamer put in last fall, the road has not been improved to speak of. In some places it is overgrown with brush so as to be disagreeable to the traveler, which needs cutting out. Culverts and small bridges will need replacing soon to be safe. The Tillamook owners of the road have not seemed disposed to do anything to improve their property, probably feeling that they have already enough money in it. It would be better for the road if those having claims against it would relinquish them and give the road to the county, and it is probably as much as the lien holders will ever get out of it.—Forest Grove Times.

Attention!

The date opposite your name printed on the margin of your paper or on the wrapper indicates the time your subscription expires, and you are invited to renew at that time. All papers sent to parties outside the county are promptly discontinued when their time expires and six months' arrearage is the limit within the county. In stopping your subscription, it is necessary first to pay all arrearage.

The foregoing shows the style of the addresses. The large figure six at the right indicates the year, that is 1896. A large seven at the right would indicate 1897, or a five would indicate 1895. The other figures denote the day of the month, and the month is indicated in small type. A cross mark in blue pencil indicates that you are away behind and should pay up.

TALK ABOUT THE ACADEMY

ANOTHER VERSION OF THE AFFAIR.

ED. HEADLIGHT:—There are two sides to everything. Every virtue is opposed to a vice, and every poison has its antidote. In case of a deadly poison, an effective dose of antidote is needed. Sugar and candy will do no good. A crime must be punished to give satisfaction to the offended party and to correct the offender. The correction, according to justice, should be according to the nature of the crime.

A mere lie, that might be called a "lapse of tongue" will be punished by a corporal punishment in the academy. It depends with what the lie is connected. The mere stealing of a rope is not punished by penitentiary, but if the rope is connected with a horse or a cow it might be worth a trip to Salem. If a lie is connected with immorality, it deserves a corporal punishment, even in case of dismissing the offender from the institution. The corporal punishment is an antidote, and has nothing to do with the ladies or gentlemen, and therefore it is not called anti-lady or anti-gentlemen, but simply antipoison to destroy the poison contained in the ladies and gentlemen.

Pride and indulgence of the senses of the body of our first parents was the cause of concupiscence. They wanted to be like God and wanted to satisfy their bodily taste with a fine apple. Pride and the voluptuousness of the body were the poison and the cause of this pernicious effect, which effect is best cured by its antidote, humiliation and chastisement of the body, being opposed to pride and voluptuousness of the body. Did you ever see this point before!!

Corporal punishment contains in the best and highest degree the antidote which destroys the poison and immorality; it contains humiliation and chastisement of the body, absolutely required to destroy that poison. Ignorance is not cured by ignorance but by learning, nor is immorality cured by keeping silence, or allowing it or in sending the pupil away. "Is there any person in Tillamook who dares to come to the academy declaring himself wiser than Solomon. Let this person come and we will have him as a teacher. Nor parents might say that this is not according to American principles to correct pupils. I tell you it is not nor will it lead to the American conclusion which is the scaffold, the electric chair, the home of the fallen women, or the penitentiary as your American principles will. Such principles are not found in the academy. You can see about twenty testimonials of this kind every day in the Oregonian. A few days ago the superintendent of the "Open Door" a home for fallen women in Portland gave the following important statement:

"Not all have been bad girls, some only needing protection and encouragement. Some have been excellent business girls. Some have been cultured ladies; some fine musicians, some handsome and interesting. They have come from all grades of life; but they have all shown the lack of a mother's firm guidance in the beginning of their lives."

This is an awful indictment of mothers of sinning women; at the same time, it ought to be a solemn and effective warning to mothers not to shirk their duty. Mothers often yield to their daughters' importunities, out of a weakness which they fancy is parental affection. Would they give a rattle snake to a child who might be pleased with the snake's mottles? That, indeed, would be a positive kindness compared with allowing your girls to visit many public halls unattended by their mothers.

In spite of all the warnings that come from ministers of every denomination against the moral dangers of the ball room, mothers not only allow their innocent daughters to frequent them, but not infrequently urge them to attend, with a false desire to thus get "their girls into society," and so marry them off.

The Tillamook academy will not turn out ladies and gentlemen that are a disgrace to themselves, to their families and to society; the rules and the guidance here destroy this pernicious poison of society. The academy has to be a model school in every line or will be given up. We want all the parents whose children are here, to know, understand and to be sure that as long as their dearly beloved are in the academy, they are taught, directed, protected, (Concluded on last page.)
