COUNTY ITEMS.

GATHERED BY OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

A Brief Glimpse at Last Weeks Happenings.

Glenora Gleanings

James F. Reelher has been mail carrier for the past week.

Mrs. F. B. Herrington has been visiting for a few days at W. J. Smith's.

The mail carrier's horse dropped dead fourteen miles this side of Gales Creek last week. Mr. Reelher, who was carrying the mail, came on foot to this place, where he procured another horse, and succeeded in getting to the end of the route (Illingsworth) although a little later than schedule time.

The annual school meeting was held on Monday at the schoolhouse. J. F. Reelher was elected director, and F. B. Herrington clerk. A special school meeting has been called to elect another director in place of W. J. Smith, who resigned.

Woods Wavelets.

(FROM THE OCEAN WAVE)

H. A. Miles was commissioned a notary public Feb. 27.

C. C. Christensen, of Oretown, has been granted a patent on a sluice-box.

Roy Mattoon left for Eastern Oregon Saturday where he expects to spend the summer.

Albert Lucy, who has spent several months at Athena, Oregon, returned home Friday.

A. C. Dimick is making a trip to Sheridan this week. He took out Mr. Bert Compton and his family, who have been visiting relatives here for a few weeks, and will bring in a load of freight on his return trip.

Emma Items.

We have been having a spell of nice weather since the snow storm of two weeks ago.

John Westenberg has gone out to consult a physician. His health has been failing for some time.

D. C. McNeil had a touch of la grippe last week.

J. D. Chitwood was laid up with a severe touch of laziness last week.

Several head of cattle have died here from starvation.

Gen. Pap Sloan met with a serious accident on the 23d of Feb. While slashing brush and timber a bunch of young timber growing on a log slid off and fell on the old gentleman, crushing him to the ground and spraining his right ankle severely. He has been laid up since the accident, but we hope he will be able to resume work soon.

Joe Grob arrived from California a short time ago and is doing work on his ranch. He will return to California in a short time to work through the spring and summer months.

Elwood Sloan is making a wagon road around the two farms on his wife's land. It is a shame that the county does not help the settlers in here to open the county road on the survey. The extreme south end of the county has been treated shamefully by the road boss. The settlers here will kick worse this year than a bay steer if they do not get some help in working the road this summer.

We will be highly pleased when the HEADLIGHT comes out in its new garb.

Our annual schoolmeeting passed off quietly. Nic Aafelten was elected director for one year in the place of D. C. McNeil, resigned, and Elwood Sloan was elected director for three years. J. D. Chitwood was re-elected clerk. The district has taken initiative steps toward building a schoolhouse this coming summer. Their school will commence the first Monday in May, and the board of directors is ready now to receive applications for the school.

Oretown Offerings

Mr. Andrew Commons now has a flour mill which runs by water power with an over shot wheel. He raises his own wheat and grinds whenever he is ready.

At the school house meeting last week several women were present. O. Nash was elected as director and S. H. Rock as clerk.

This district is in need of a good teacher; one who holds a first-class certificate and has plenty of executive ability. We have been very unfortunate during the past twenty years in the choice of teachers. Of course, the blame is with the teachers. Some are foolish enough to say, the children are to blame and others make a mistake in thinking the parents are to blame in believing all reports the children bring home from school. We don't object to the teacher whipping the children—providing the said children belong to the other fellow.

Ours never need it. They are always good. The trouble is that the teacher always whips the wrong one. All the other children say so, and that ought to be proof. Some people think none of the children ought to be whipped; other think they all need it, still others imagine it is the parents who need it most. Anyway, all are agreed that a teacher should maintain order and use force if necessary providing that the force is used on the other fellows bad boys—not ours, you know. We are not very hard to please if we get the right kind of a teacher. We don't exactly want an angel, neither do we desire a devil—probably a mixture of both would fill the bill. Applications should be sent in immediately as school will begin about the first or tenth of April.

The Anti-Hen Ordinance

Mr. Editor of the Tillamook HEADLIGHT:

In your issue of the 13th of February, 1897, you publish the doings or business transactions of the Tillamook City town council, I read that the "Learned Veteran Councilman", C. E. Reynolds, wants an ordinance made, framed, concocted and put into existence bearing the title of "Anti-Hen Ordinance" to compel every owner of a hen or hens to keep them continually on his own premises, feed them out of his own barrel, and to scratch on their own dung-hill. That's a law that is wanted all over the county; but what hens are they that are to be shut up—hen chickens, hen turkeys, crows, blackbirds, or buzzards? Well, what about the cocks—oh! I beg pardon, roosters, I should say,—are they not obnoxious, obstreperous, irresponsible, destructive animals as well as the hens? Seeing that Bro. Reynolds' fellow councilmen are not willing to have the roving commission of their hens curtailed or vetoed, why not compromise the matter and make that ordinance to act in the manner and style of the cow ordinance of Tillamook city. That ordinance forces the owners of cows to take them off the streets and shut them up at night, till a certain hour the next morning; but it does not compel them to feed those cows at night, so per consequence, as soon as let out in the morning, they, being hungry, rush for the street, well known to them, on which the farmer is coming to town with his produce to sell, eggs, butter, or vegetables, and some feed for his team; and possibly not having the 20 cents to pay the livery man for stable room, he hauls his wagon to one side of the road, or on an open lot, turns his team around to the feed he has for them, covers up his produce, and starts about his business. Then see the cows mount into his wagon, capsize his boxes of butter and eggs to get the garden truck and the little that's there for the team. So the team that has to haul a load home again must go hungry till it gets home, just to feast the town cows.

What provision is there made in that cow ordinance by which the farmer can collect pay for the damages done to him by the town cows, for the loss of his produce and team's fodder, and loss of time chasing a cow to get some article she has stuck her horns into and packed away with her when there's nothing left in the wagon for her to eat? None. The writer of this article, on one occasion, was compelled to chase an old cow for two hours around the town till he landed her in an old barn on the south side of town, to get his bridle off her head. And when one of those obnoxious hens gets a nice, ripe tomato in her mouth from Bro. Reynolds' garden, besides plugging all his melons and squashes to find a ripe one, where will he get the recompense for the destruction of vegetables? Echo says "Where?"

Wade in, Brother Reynolds, and put that hen ordinance in full force, and you will make a better record for yourself than all the combined Oregon Congressmen, and all the farmers doing a produce business in Tillamook city will "spoke" a good word in the amen corner for the bishop to light you through purgatory, especially if you will fasten a ring in the sidewalk for them to tie their horses to in front of your store.
