HEADLIGHT X-RAYS

Ho for the Clondyke!

Everybody wants to go.

Everybody that goes will wish he hadn't.

Dr. Wise leaves for Nehalem next Saturday.

Mrs. L. H. Brown and family returned on Tuesday from a visit to Polk Co. and other Oregon points.

Rev. Sager of the Evangelical Church will preach in the M. E Church Sunday evening. The pastor will occupy the pulpit in the morning.

Mrs. Wm. Olsen returned Tuesday evening from a visit to friends in Woods and vicinity.

A farewell Kloudyke ball will be given at the opera house on Saturday night, July 31st. Music will be furnished by Miner's orchestra.

Tickets 50cts.

C. S. Robbins formerly P M of Nehalem, and family will leave on the Str Harrison today for his new home at Rossburg, Washington where he will enter into the hotel business with his partner, J. B. Pape.

Miss Belle Lyster, who has been visiting her brother, Tom Lyster and wife, for a year or so, left Wednesday for her home in Rockville Kansas. Miss Lyster made many warm friends during her stay here, who regretted her departure very much.

Light house keeper Hurlburt has just returned from San Francisco, where he went to place his son Leon in the United States Navy. The young man passed a good examination and was accepted and placed on board the ship Independence now at Mare's Island Mr. Hurlbert came in on the W. H. Harrison, from Astoria.

We have on exhibition at this office some beautiful flowers, which were sent to us by Mrs. Stone, of Rose Lawn, near Woods. Mrs. Stone has one of her finest gardiens, to be found in Tillamook Co, and anyone would be well paid by a sight of the beautiful flowers. She grows all kinds of flowers that one could wish, from the tiny daisy to the largest dahlia, all grow in profusion at her lovely home. You can get plants well rooted at 10cts. apiece, rose bushes one and two years old at the same price. Mrs. Stone also sent us some samples of tomatoes that were ripe on the first of June, something unusual in this county. We cite Mrs. Stones gardens as a sample of what can be done in this county.

In another column will be found a notice of sale of the land of Wm. Squires located on Tillamook river, near this city. A reporter of the HEADLIGHT visited the place about 2 weeks ago, and was greatly pleased with what he saw Mr. Squires has three orchards on the place, all of which are in bearing, and we have not seen as fine, thrifty looking trees anywhere else in the county In this county, especially, the fruit orchardist, if he expects a certain crop, must look well to the location of his orchard. Mr Squires has an ideal location sheltered from all the winds, and exposed to the warm sunshine. The result is that his berry crop always ripens before there are any other berries in the market, and his other fruits scarcely ever fail of a crop The Tillamook river, a beautiful deep stream, flows right through the land, giving a nice river frontage to the lots offered for sale. There is an excellent saw mill site at the junction of the river with the South Prairie slough. Take it all in all the property put upon the market by Mr. Squires is a very desirable property. Read his advertisement for terms.

Mr. O. E Pettis, special agent of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York is here in the interests of that remarkable organization. Few persons have any correct idea of the enormous amount of business done by this company. The total amount of its insurance at present in force is $917,980,9?1. Its assets are over $25,000,000. and in the 54 years of its existence it has paid out in death claims $187,045,742.46. Not a single cent paid into that company by those insuring in it has ever been lost, but hundreds of the smaller companies have gone to the wall and those who patronise them have lost all they paid into them and many passed the age limit rendering it impossible for them to insure elsewhere Insurance in the Mutual life of New York is absolutely safe and sure and as life insurance above all other things should be made sure the Mutual Life Commands itself especially.

A Special feature introduced by that company is a plan whereby the beniticary receives the amount of the premium by installments. Many women, especially, are unaccustomed to handle large sums of money and upon their reciept of the sum at once it is soon lost. The company has provided a plan whereby this difficulty is obviated, it becoming in a sense the banker of the beneficary at terms highly beneficial to the latter. The plan contains many excellent features which Mr. Pettis will be pleased to explain to any one desiring information. The rates of the Mutual Life are so low and the company so absolutely safe that we can not recommend it too highly.

Obituary.

Lee B. Stephenson of J. S. and Emma E. Stephens, died at his home in this city last Sunday night after only a week's illness. Lee had been camping with his father on their claim on the Salmonberry and returned about a week before his death. While absent from home he developed some bowel trouble which finally culminated in an inflamation from the effects of which in spite of the most skillfully medical aid he finally died. Little Lee was an unusually good and obedient boy. The slightest expressed wish of his parents was to him as a law from which he never deviated and his love for them was only equalled by that which he bore for his brothers and sister. He was kind hearted and never intentionally inflicted pain or suffering upon any living thing. His main object in life seemed to be to render himself useful to others. He bore his suffering with patience and when he realized that his time had come to die and his feet touched the brink of the river of death he smilingly said to his mother, that the 'waters, were not deep' expressing the wish that she might go over with him. The funeral took place from the S. D. A. Church on Tuesday at 10: A. M., Rev. Corner of the M. E. Church officiating. Mr and Mrs. Stephens have the sincere sympathy of this community in their affliction.

Miss Jackson, sister of Sheriff Jackson is visiting friends in this city.

Artist Reynolds of the Elite Fotograf parlors has laid in an unusually fine stock of picture frames.

O. E. Pettis, special agent for the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, is in town, and will remain for a week or more,

Mr and Mrs. Claude Thayer and Miss Jenkins left on the W. H. Harrison last Friday for Astoria where they took the river steamer for Portland. They will return on the steamer,

Myron Perkins has left on exhibition at this office samples of wheat, oats and barley grown on his place, that go far toward demonstrating the wonderful richness of the soil in this county. The samples showed 18 well developed stalks of wheat, each bearing a well filled head, and all had sprung from one kernel. Sixteen to one was the record made by the oats and barley. Mr. Perkins does not attach any free silver significance to the latter figures.

Ball Game at Nehalem.

The Tillamook nine crossed bats with Nehalem last Saturday for the prettiest bit of ball playing ever seen in this county. These teams had not met before, but judging by the results with Bay City it was known that they were pretty equally matched. Tillamook left here at an early hour on the the Str. Louise accompanied by Mayor Cohn and a few enthusiasts in the national game. At the mouth of the Nehalem they were met by a committee of the Nehalem team with boats, and conveyed to Klein's hotel, and after dinner to the grounds at Saginaw.

The afternoon was all that could be asked for sport, and as the forenoon had been threatening rain farmers had felt able to attend the game with their families, so that the game was viewed by a goodly number of Nehalem citizens, among whom the fair sex was the most numerous and enthusiastic.

The play was of a high order throughout, excepting that a misjudged change of men by Nehalem, led to a lot of errors by good men in unaccustomed places. Barring that inning, every run and every put out was worked for as a matter of life and death, and still with all the courtesy and good will that could mark a parlor party. In fact the spirit of generous rivalry and personal respect evinced by both sides was one of the strong arguments for the good results of the Royal game of America.

Nehalem had all the confidence possible in her boys, and when they led off by presenting their antagonists with a goose egg, and then proceeded to swat out three runs, the air was rent with plaudits from young and old, as a counter to which the sturdy cheers of Mayor Cohn seemed rather lonely as he stood by the bump board and yelled for Tillamook at every chance. In the third Nehalem had five to four, and as the next three innings went with goose eggs back and forth, the excitement was intense. By this time Frank Linnville and Jerry Murphy had joined the Tillamook rooters and Cohn felt better. Tillamook kept pegging away, and despite the hard hitting of Nehalem none of them were allowed to cross the plate after the third. While the visitors earned four runs more, and were made a present of eighth runs in the eight by errors resulting from trying men in new places.

Tillamook was sent to the bat first. Sarvis got a life on balls, stole second, took third on Stillwell's grounder to the pitcher, who threw Stillwell out at first Handley fanned, and Day batted a grounder to first base retiring the side with a blank. For the home team: Rieger batted a short fly into the slough ground in left field for his first. Shounds put one in the same ground in center. Paraguoy and Sharp struck out. Davidson lined out a two bagger, scoring Reiger and Shounds, stole third and scored on I. Rieger's base hit. The latter tried to steal second, but Stoddard caught him before he got half way.

In the second Stoddard was thrown out at first by the pitcher; Cary batted a hot grounder to right for his first, was forced to second on F. Stillwell's being hit by the pitcher, stole third, enabling Stillwell to trot to second, while the play was being made and got home on a passed ball; Stillwell made a dandy run and slide home on Nodine's first base hit but the latter retired his side by trying to make second on the play at home.

Ziler and Pye struck out; Cronin batted his first, stole his second, and got home on Rieger's base hit, the latter dying on second when Shounds struck out.

In the third Sarvis went out at first by a neat stop at second and a good throw; A. Stillwell batted his first, stole his second, and came home on Day's two bagger; Handley's fly to the right was pulled down by the "human pocket", who covered the initial bag; Stoddard batted his first, sending Stillwell home, and retired his side by falling over second on a slide; Short for Nehalem, was sent to first on balls and was batted home by the two following players: Davidson, who died on third, and Rieger on second; Ziler striking out, and Pye flying to second.

This ended the run getting for the home team. Handley's arm got warmed up and in the six innings only four men found a way to first, one of these being a present to Davidson on four balls. Stoddard wouldn't allow a base runner more than an arms length from the bag, and no one passed second for that side during the rest of the game.

It was not until the seventh that Tillamook could tie the score, when Fred Stillwell commenced by being hit by the pitcher, stole second and third, and got on Lome McKinley's liner to short left. The latter stole second, got third on A. Stillwell's base hit, and home on a passed ball. Score 6 to 5 and George Cohn was happy, the little band of rooters for the visitors made all the noise they could, while silence brooded over the tin whistles, and other earsplitters as the home team smote the clear atmosphere of the beautiful valley with a dull sickening thud and a distressing regularity.

In the eighth Cronin, a rattler behind the bat, was put on first on account of a sore hand, while Reiger, who is a crackerjack at first, donned the mask. The change proved disastrous, coming just when the visitors were getting Davidson sized up, for there ensued a combination of slugging with wild throws and muffed balls that piled up eight big runs before the inning could be closed up.

In the ninth Tillamook added two more by hard hitting and close running, and then after hearty cheering for each other and everybody else, the victors were escorted back to the hotel, stopping by the way to quench their thirst with b——Nehalem mountain water.

The visitors could not sufficiently express their appreciation of the hospitality and courtesy of their hosts, and only hope for an opportunity to return the compliment. Nehalem has some fine players. Their pitcher is a phenom, and their playing seemed to be individually superior to Tillamook, but they lack in team work, which can only come by frequent drills. Some of the players were features, one was a running catch of Handley's slow fly by J. Rieger, who reached so far and near the ground that he did a lot of ground tumbling before he could stop, right side up with the ball in his hand. Following is the score:

The Annual Teachers' Institute for Tillamook County for 1897 will be held in Tillamook Aug. 26–28, beginning at one o'clock Thursday afternoon and closing at noon on Saturday.

Every teacher of the county is required by law to be in attendence during the entire session unless excused by the county superintendent for some reason rendering absence unavoidable. This regulation affects those teaching under state papers as well as those holding county certificates. It is the duty of directors to see that their schools are closed at the time of the institute. Any teacher able to be in the schoolroom should be at the institute.
