The Franco-Russian alliance has given France an attack of the swell-head.

"Wheat has increased 50 per cent. in value in the past year, and silver has fallen 25 per cent."

England has become tired of some of her rebellious tribesmen, and will give them a wholesome lesson in submission.

"The Philippine Islands have been pacified," says a Spanish dispatch—even we presume as Cuba has been pacified.

Could not Mr. Bryan be persuaded to lay aside his Spanish studies for awhile and explain why wheat continues to rise while silver continues to fall?"

The loss of the pipe factory is a severe blow to Tillamook, and had our business men stood together it need not have occurred. However there is no use growling—the harm is done.

With a dancing school, a revival of religion and a new saloon—all in progress at the same time, everybody ought to be able to find something to satisfy himself.

A Portland company has decided to put on a direct line of steamships between that port and Dawson City. You buy your ticket in Portland and step aboard and only transfer at St. Michaels during the entire trip.

"The assertions of the free silver orators of last year that prosperity could not come to the people of the United States without the free unlimited coinage of silver does not read very well in parallel columns just now with the double-headed announcements of prosperity which the frankest and bravest of those journals are now publishing."

Emperor Billy has had another serious attack of the "Divine Afflatus." Whatever other effect it may have had it led to a serious jumbling of metaphors in his recent speech. He says his reverend and grand father "mounted the throne, sat down upon it, raised it on high and crowned it." Even Billy himself couldn't perform a greater feat of agility.

With wheat selling at more than $1 per bushel in New York markets, where it was worth only 65 cents a year ago, those tables which attempted to show that wheat and silver keep pace as to their relative value seem rather absurd now. Especially is this the case when it is remembered that New York on August 1st of last year, and is now worth 58 cents, one year later.

"With Mexican dollars worth only 40 cents, the laboring people of that country, whose wages are nominally one-half the wages in the United States, are in hard lines. The recent fall in silver and depreciation of the Mexican dollar has caused great suffering to the class of people who were but poorly paid when the dollar was more valuable than it is at present. This depreciation causes a rise in the prices of all commodities that the laborer there must buy, but the labor's wages themselves are the last things so affected."

Free silver and free trade having lost their charm with the people of the United States, the Democratic leaders who recognize that they will soon be out of a job unless they find some new rallying cry are now looking for other issues. This is indicated by recent developments which show that the men who have kept themselves in the public eye and public office through the operations of the Democratic party in the past few years are now quietly discussing the single tax, the initiative and referendum and features of this sort in the hope that they may be able to present new and attractive schemes with which to catch the unthinking voter in the next national election.

That the customs collections since the new tariff law went into effect have been very light is, of course, explained by the fact that the importers had crowded into the country all the foreign goods which they could get in under the low tariff rates of the Wilson law prior to the enactment of the protective measure now upon the statute books. Not only did they scour the world for foreign manufactures but they ransacked the bonded warehouses, taking out the bonds upon everything upon which the new law increased the rates of duty. This is shown by the recent official figures given the public at Washington, which shows that only $18,000,000 worth of goods remained in the bonded warehouses of the country at the beginning of the month in which the Dingley law went into effect, compared with more than $50,000,000 in those same warehouses one year prior.

So "Billy" Bryan has returned home once more to explain to the rejoicing and rapidly-growing-prosperous farmers of Nebraska how it was that wheat, corn and oats could bring such good prices in gold, while the silver dollar fell in bullion value to less than 40 cents—Astorian.

The September number of the Cosmopolitan is one well worth reading. It is replete with articles of unusual interest, amongst them being an especially fine illustrated article on the Alaska gold fields. Following is the table of contents:

Frontispiece, Elisha Benjamin Andrews: A New University; Making a Magazine, Catherine de' Medici as a Sentimentalist, Eleanore Lewis; Mrs. Clyde, illustrated by B. West Clinedinst, Julien Gordon; The Real India, Julien Hawthorne; The Yukon Gold Fields, illustrated, Robert Oglesby; Music—Halls and Popular Songs, Reginald de Koven; The War of the Worlds, illustrated by Warwick Goble, H. C. Wells; On the Art of Dressing, illustrated by F. G. Attwood, Ouida; The Golden Arrow, John Vance Cheney; Recent Photographic Art; The Habit of the Fraile, illustrated by Irwin R. Wiles, Charles F. Lummis; Modern College Education—Two Educational Ideals, Elisha Benjamin Andrews; Four Sweethearts and a Wife, Frances Courteney Baylor; In the World of Art and Letters.

Miss Frances Benjamin Johnston, the photographic artist, writes, in September Ladies' Home Journal, on "What a Woman Can Do With a Camera," telling the requisites for artistic and financial success in the pursuit of photography as a profession. "It is a profession," she strongly contends, "that should appeal particularly to woman, and in it there are great opportunities for a good-paying business—put only under very well-defined conditions. The prime requisites—as summed up in mind after long experience and thought—are these: The woman who makes photography profitable must have, as to personal qualities, good common sense, unlimited tact, good taste, quick eye, a talent for detail, and a genius for hard work. In addition, she needs training, experience, some capital, and a field to exploit. This may seem, at first glance, an appalling list, but it is incomplete rather than exaggerated; although to an energetic, ambitious woman, with even ordinary opportunities, success is always possible, and hard, intelligent and conscientious work seldom fails to develop into large profits.

Good work should command good prices, and the wise woman will place a paying value upon her best efforts. It is a mistaken business policy to try and build up trade by doing something badly cheaper than somebody else. As to your personal attitude, be businesslike in all your methods; cultivate tact, an affable manner, and an unflinching courtesy. It costs nothing but a little self-control and determination to be patient and good-natured under most circumstances. A pleasant, obliging and businesslike bearing will often prove the most important part of a clever woman's capital."

Acquiescence in the New Tariff. When the McKinley tariff of 1890 went into operation there was forthwith a great outcry raised against it on the ground that it had resulted in producing a sharp increase in the cost of living. The rates of duty prescribed in the Dingley tariff of 1897 average a little higher than those of 1890. Yet no popular clamor against it on the score of high prices is discoverable in any quarter. The altered state of the public mind is due to several facts. In 1890 the new tariff was promulgated on the eve of a Congressional election, and there was every temptation on the part of the opponents of the measure to create an exaggerated prejudice. The law of 1897 goes into effect more than fifteen months before a national election. Furthermore, the Democratic opposition to the Republican tariff has not been very positive or pronounced, and the whole country has perhaps never before accepted the dogmas of protectionism half so submissively. The leading Democrats of Louisiana gave a great reception to Senator McEnery on his return home, to indorse his conduct in supporting the Republican tariff, which had dealt so liberally with a great Louisiana product. A good many Democrats in Congress who voted against the bill on its final passage had been very actively interested in helping to shape certain protection features which concerned their own States or localities; and their votes at the end were recorded in the negative merely for the sake of party form and consistency. They were aware that the bill would pass, and they attained from the use of obstructive parliamentary tactics. The indications are therefore, that the tariff question is settled for some time to come, and that public opinion will demand that it be left alone.—From "The Progress of the World," in American Monthly Review of Reviews for September.

Owing to over-crowding and bad ventilation, the air of the schoolroom is often close and impure, and teachers and pupils frequently suffer from lung and throat troubles. To all such we would say, try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For coughs, colds, weak lungs and bronchial troubles no other remedy can compare with it. Says A. C. Freed, Supt. of schools, Prairie Depot, Ohio: "Having some knowledge of the efficacy of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, I have no hesitation in recommending it to all who suffer from coughs, lung troubles, etc." For sale by S. J. Sturgeon.
