G. Munson, formerly postmaster at Nestleton, has moved his family to Tillamook for the winter.

Joseph Keleh and family and his brother and his family have just arrived from Reno County, Kansas, and will make their home in Tillamook.

Billy Martin has made the best record of the duck season thus far. On Sunday Mr. Martin and Mr. Fountain bagged eighty-four. Henry Crenshaw, Ike Simler, Editor Bowman and George Stoddard also report excellent success.

The lot on which the Jones Bros. livery barn is situated has been purchased by Mesdames Annie B. and Olive Todd. The livery barn will be moved off in the near future, and a handsome two story building 26x72 will be erected thereon to be occupied by Kay & Todd as a clothing store. The building will make improvement on the street. The barn will be moved right straight back on the other street and the rear end of the barn re-constructed into a front end.

The Tillamook Dancing Club gave the first of its winter series of dances last Saturday evening at the Opera House. Music was furnished by Dave Pierce, Geo. Handley and Fred Page, and a dozen couples or more "tripped the light fantastic" to their hearts content. The club now has about two dozen members and the list is rapidly growing. It is the intention to give dances regularly on every Saturday evening. The dances will be carefully managed, and it is the intention to make them thoroughly enjoyable.

Editor HEADLIGHT,

Dear Sir:

I would like to have a word to say in regard to an article of your's in last week's paper on parties refusing to allow hunters on their farms, especially as I am one of those foreigners, although having been in this country some 30 years I consider myself a pretty good American citizen.

I have never objected to any one fishing on my place so long as they did not trample the grass too much, but on the contrary have always been glad to see a man make a good catch, provided he was not a dynamiter, all of whom ought to get blown up with their own infernal machines. But when it comes to hunting I hold that a farmer has the same rights to the birds on his place that a gun club has to the ducks on the preserves that it leases.

I tried out some Chinese Pheasants a year ago and I am pretty certain that one at least was shot. This year there have been one or two seen, and I calculate that they shall have a chance if possible, and I consider that that can only be done by my having the right to say who shall shoot and who not on my place.

Yours Truly
Jack Jennings.

I am afraid Mr. Jennings did not read the article referred to very closely or he would have seen that it was right directly in line with his own ideas of the subject in question. The article does not find fault with any one who forbids hunting on his premises, but only a class of men who forbid hunters walking across their premises—along private roads. The editor of the HEADLIGHT has been a sportsman all his life, but he has never yet hunted on lands where shooting was forbidden, and never until recently did he find any one who objected to any one walking across his lands along a private roadway. So entirely unamerican and ungenerous is such action that the editor naturally concluded the fellow was a foreigner of the class referred to and not of the class to whom Mr. Jennings and many other of our best citizens belong.
