

Odds and Ends.

Lumber is on the ground for the new armory to be erected at Corvallis.

Lincoln county's apple crop will be large. The trees are loaded with fruit of the best quality.

A St. Louis firm has bought 1,250,000 pounds of dried prunes from fruitgrowers of the southern part of Douglas county.

The Methodist church, South, of Lake creek, Or., has treated itself to a new house of worship. The new edifice was dedicated last Sunday.

Calves are selling in the neighborhood of Long creek for $12 and $13 a head. Just at present the Oregon farmer is making money at every turn.

Pendleton's new public school will be completed September 30. The building will be 80x28 feet, with an annex 15x18 feet. The cost will be $3000.

Harry Clifton, a young farm hand, is under arrest at Pendleton for forgery. He forged Julius Hudeman's name to a $25 check, which he passed on Harry Williams.

A boy named Walker, who ran away from the state reform school with a hobo several months ago, was recaptured in Lane county a few days ago. He was returned to the reform school Friday.

Albany must be a prolific newspaper field. With two dailies and a weekly already established, two more frail crafts have been launched within the past week—the People's press and the Telescope.

Holders of wool at Pendleton maintain their ground, serene in the confident that the price will advance within a few weeks, and determined not to sell until it does. It is estimated that 2,000,000 pounds of wool will be handled in Pendleton this season.

By the end of this week the reconstructed Baker City iron works will be in operation, the machinery having arrived a day or two ago. This early resumption of work, following the very recent destruction of the plant by fire, bespeaks well for the enterprise of the management.

A well on the property of John G. Barr, at Salem, has ceased giving up water, and instead petroleum of a quality pronounced by local judges to be first class is being taken out in quantities to suit. Maybe this discovery is destined to provide Salem with a source of revenue aside from the biennial legislative session and the annual state fair.

A PACIFIC CABLE.

Summary of the Various Project for Laying One.

The American projects for a Pacific cable had languished since 1870, when it was first proposed by Cyrus Field, but the dependencies of Great Britain in the South Pacific have revived the agitation for cable connection with the North American continent, and offer to contribute one-third of the cost to Great Britain and Canada will each contribute a third.

The question of an all-British Pacific cable has been frequently under discussion, and has been considered by three colonial conferences, one in 1887, one in 1894 and the last in 1896. At the latter a report favorable to the construction of the cable was made, but the admiralty reported against it, and the cable was not laid.

The present agitation of the question by the colonial premiers of Australia has called forth an article by Charles Dright, F. R. S. E., in the fortnightly, in which, after enumerating the main reasons given for an all-British line, he presents a strong argument in favor of a line to be built and controlled jointly by Great Britain, the United States and Japan.

The principal argument in favor of an all-British line is that through isolation there would be less danger of interruption in times of war, at the same time inviolable secrecy concerning naval and military movements would be secured. The cutting of cables in the Hispano-American war has strengthened this argument in the minds of many.

At the same time all realize that as a commercial proposition the Pacific cable scheme is not inviting, and that the only immediate benefit will be the promotion of intercourse between the countries so connected; in other words, the projects appeals to national pride rather than to commercial instinct.

Mr. Bright points out that the friendship exists between Great Britain and the United States, which will probably be sealed everlastingly by an international arbitration treaty, is a guarantee of the security Great Britain seeks through the construction of an all-British line. The interests of Japan are closely enough identified with British and American interests to make that country a desirable member of the cable alliance. The cost to each nation would also be greatly reduced, as one Pacific cable would answer all purposes between Canada, the United States, Hawaii, Australia, China, Japan and the Philippines.

Another reason for this telegraphic alliance is found in the fact that the French have projected a cable from New Caledonia, designed to make another terminus in North America. The annexation of Hawaii has made cable connections with that possession an imperative necessity, and in the event that Great Britain should decide upon an all-British line it is highly probable that France and the United States would reach an agreement to join interests in the Pacific cable. This would not be relished either by Great Britain or Japan.

In all events, it is certain that cable communications in the Pacific is only a question of a few years.

MANY SUFFERERS.

What a Large Number of People are Enduring. A Distressing Condition in Which Many American People are Involved—The Only Way to Alleviate it.

From the Mountaineer, Walthalla, N. Dakota. The remorse of a guilty stomach is what a very large majority of the people of this nation are suffering with to-day. It is a well known fact that dyspepsia is a characteristic American disease and it is frequently stated that "we are a nation of dyspeptics." It is a distressing ailment and because of its insidious nature is difficult to treat. Sometimes it is the result of improper modes of eating, improper food or mental worry and exhaustion; then again it may be sort of an inherited condition of the body and treatment should be directed to the restoration of the health, without special attention to the stomach. In other instances, the disease is evidently the result of inflammation of the stomach. Anyone of these conditions produce a lack of vitality in the system, by causing the blood to lose its life-sustaining elements. The blood is the vital element in our lives and should be carefully nurtured. Restore the blood to its proper condition, dyspepsia will vanish and perfect health follow. For example, in the county of Pembina, North Dakota, a few miles from Walthalla, resides Mr. Ernest Snider; a man of sterling integrity, whose veracity cannot be doubted. He was formerly a resident of Lansdowne, Ont., but removed to the west and is now a prosperous farmer. For three years he has been unable to do his work because he was ill with dyspepsia. "I became seriously ill about three years ago," he says, "and consulted a doctor who gave me some medicine for indigestion. I continued to grow worse and several physicians were called at intervals who gave me temporary relief, but the disease returned with all its accustomed severity. "The distress after eating made me dread meal time. At times I became so dizzy as to be unable to stand. I had sour stomach, heartburn, palpitation of heart, and weak nerves. The doctors disagreed as to the nature of my disease but all agreed that the stomach was affected. I suffered intensely and life was a misery. "I tried several well known remedies but was not benefited. "I read in the newspapers articles regarding the wonderful curative powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and finally after some urging on the part of a friend I concluded to try the pills. I purchased six boxes, this was five months ago. "I had not taken all of the first box before I felt much relief, I continued taking the pills, and after using four boxes I was cured. I have none of those distressing symptoms now, and am completely restored to health, and can do as much work as any of the laborers on my farm. I owe my restoration to health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and gladly give my testimonial, hoping it may prove beneficial to some persons similarly affected. "By restoring to the blood the requisite constituents of life, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People renew the nerve force and enable the stomach to promptly and properly assimilate the food, thus speedily and permanently curing the dyspeptic. These pills are a specific for all diseases having their origin in impoverished blood or disordered nerves. They contain every element requisite to general nutrition, to restore strength to the weak, good health to the ailing. Physicians prescribe them, druggists recommend them and everywhere the people use them.
