It is stated on good authority that the Oregon Sugar Company, La Grande, is taking steps to refine at its new factory crude Hawaiian sugar, and that if they do, there will be established between Portland and Honoiulu a line of steamers to handle the business, probably by the O. R. & N. Co. Enough returned cargoes for the steamers could be obtained at Portland to make the line pay expense at the beginning, and it is believed by those posted in traffic matter that it would be the beginning of a large and growing traffic between Oregon and these new possessions in the Pacific of the United States. Should the deal be closed, it would mean the operation the year round of the La Grande sugar factory; the immediate doubling of the capacity of the plant, and the disbursement of hundreds of thousands of dollars annually to workmen in permanent employment. Those who have heard of the proposition are enthusiastic over it, and an official of the railroad company says that there will be no difficulty about the steamer line if the factory goes into the business of refining Hawaiian sugar.

REBELS FLANKED

sas regiment joined General Wheaton's brigade shortly after Malinta was taken, approaching along the Novaliches road westerly. The soldiers were much exhausted, and there were several prostations from the heat, which was intense. The dead and wounded were collected in the shade of the trees and carried on stretchers by Chinese across the river to the train. After luncheon General MacArthur's division advanced toward Polo.

Good Work By Oregonians.

The Second Oregon regiment encountered 1000 Filipinos west of Malinta who were retreating from Malabon. The enemy had taken up a position behind four rows of intrenchments, but was driven out after an hour's heavy firing. One Oregonian was killed and five were wounded.

The Third artillery, acting as infantry, with two guns of the Utah battery, and the Kansans, had a sharp fight east of Malinta. The Americans had but slight losses. Five Filipinos were found dead and several were taken prisoners.

General MacArthur's division is advancing upon Polo along the railroad. As the bridge is destroyed and the river cannot be forded, the advance is temporarily checked tonight.

In the fighting west of Malinta, the Oregonians captured a Spaniard, but he denied that he was taking part in the battle. The surgeons from the fleet and the British cruiser Powerful volunteered their assistance, and were indefatigable in their services in the front.

President Schurman, of the Philippine commission, and Mr. MacArthur, United States secretary, were under fire today with General Wheaton.

IN FULL RETREAT.

Insurgents Falling Back on Malolos, Their Capital.

NEW YORK, March 28.—A dispatch to the Herald from Manila, dated Tuesday, says:

The gunboat Laguna de Bay attacked the insurgents at Bulacan. Three Americans were wounded.

MacArthur's division has crossed the Marilao river, and is advancing northward.

The insurgents attacked the Americans last evening at Marilao, but were repulsed with severe loss. Our loss was five killed and 14 wounded.

Later Garcia, a native general, came down from Dagupan by train, with 1000 rifle men and 4000 bolomen, and took position at Marilao. A river was between the Americans and the insurgent forces.

The South Dakota volunteers and the Third artillery, acting as infantry, were thrown forward. The South Dakotas charged brilliantly across an open space on the east of the railway to the edge of some woods. They lost 10 killed and 11 wounded, including three lieutenants.

The Third artillery, on the right of the railroad, charged and lost nine wounded, two mortally.

On the left, the insurgents' trench, east of the river, made a stubborn resistance.

Lieutenant Critchlow, with two guns of the Utah battery, and Lieutenant Davis, in a long trench on the opposite side of the river to surrender at the close quarters of 100 yards. The rest of the insurgents go out with severe loss.

Ninety dead insurgents were counted.

Advance of the American Troops.

MANILA, March 27.—3:25 P. M.—General McArthur's division spent the night and morning at Meycanayan, the next station beyond Polo. After reconnoitering his front, he pushed along the railroad this afternoon toward Malolos.

If the statement of the 35 prisoners captured today is true, the main body of the enemy has retreated to Malolos. There are no more trenches to encounter, although over 30 villages, including the larger settlements of Bulacan and Gudguinto, intervene.

At every railroad station circulars have been posted signed by the Filipino commander-in-chief, Antonio Luna, ordering all spies and bearers of news to the enemy to be shot without trial, and instructing that all looters and ravishers be treated in the same manner. Further, all towns abandoned by the Filipino troops must first be burned. While deploring the existence of war, the circular maintains the undeniable right of the Filipinos to defend their homes, lives and lands against "would-be dominators, who would kill them, their wives and children," adding that this motive ought to impel all Filipinos to sacrifice everything.

Shelling of Paranaque.

The shelling of Paranaque was not premeditated. The turret ship Monadnock anchored off the town, and the insurgents, emboldened by the long silence of the warship on guard duty, opened fire on her with muskets, with the result that one man was killed and three wounded. The Monadnock then destroyed half the town, including the church.

The Washington regiment had an exciting experience to lay, and displayed much gallantry. The soldiers found a band of insurgents concealed in a stone house over which the French flag was flying. A private approached to set fire to the building. He did so, and the troops approached while it was burning, and the Filipinos had apparently fled, but they were greeted with a sudden volley from the balcony of the house resulting in the building being cleared of the enemy in short order.

Advance From Meyeanayan.

The American forces advanced from Meyeanayan, the brigade commanded by General Otis being on the left of the railroad and General Hale's on the right. They eventually discerned white roofs and steeples among the green trees beyond the river, looking not unlike a Massachusetts village. The rebels had the unfordable river in front of them and poured in a fire so effectively that it showed they were veterans, probably members of the native militia, which the Spaniards organized.

The American artillery put a dramatic end to the battle. Approaching under cover of the bushes to about 60 yards from the trenches, the artillery emerged upon an open space commanding the town. When the Americans appeared they gave a great yell, and the Filipinos were panic stricken, about 100 seeking safety in flight, while a white flag was raised by those who were entrenched, who also shouted "Amegos" (friends).

Colonel Funston, with 20 men of the Kansas regiment, swam across the river to the left of the railroad bridge and captured 80 prisoners, with all their arms. The Pennsylvania regiment captured 40 prisoners. By this time the right of the Filipinos was demoralized.

Engagement at Marilao.

4 P. M.—A thousand Filipinos, composing the rear guard of the rebel army, which is retreating to Malolos, Aguinaldo's headquarters, made a stand today in some strong entrenchments about Marilao, across the Marilao river. In the engagement, six Americans were killed, including three officers, and 40 were wounded.

7:40 P. M.—The Americans refrained from burning the town, and are resting there tonight. Otis' brigade is crossing the framework of the bridge, Hale's brigade remaining on the south bank of the river.

The United States Philippines commission proposes to issue a proclamation immediately after the rebel government at Malolos is dispersed, believing the most effective moment to secure the allegiance of the natives will be after they have received an object lesson of America's power.
