

LIFE !

Is sometimes wrapped in a small bottle. Doubtless there have been times in your experience when you were convinced that the door was closed against death by a single bottle of medicine. Isn't it important, therefore, with such serious matters to be sure of your druggist?

I don't brag of an elaborate "checking" system. Every druggist should check prescriptions carefully. I guide myself just as much on the quality of my drugs and the careful way in which I prepare my medicines.

To make 18 carot gold you must have a certain amount of gold. To be truly accurate in compounding medicines is more than weights and measures.

The Tillamook ball players received their second defeat at Bay City on Sunday.
The ball game between the county and city officials is set for Friday, July 28, at 1 p.m.
Miss Minnie Peterson returned to the city on Friday after several weeks visit in Portland.
Mr. Leigh Jones returned from San Francisco on Monday and was in the city on Wednesday.
Mrs. E. Perkins left on the Elmore to attend the convention of the Degree of Honor at Portland.
Call and see the big bargains in crockery and bed room sets, stoves and tinware at W. E. Page's.
The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Harrington died suddenly on Sunday, and was buried the next day.
Mr. B. C. Lamb went the rounds of the city with a subscription list and raised for the monument fund $26.
Misses Mae M. and Clara Baird, from from Neenah, Wis., came in last week on a visit to Mr. McNair's family.
We will give our contemporary a rest so that Bro. Watson can take a snooze and a snore with Lamb's pug dog.
Mr. and Mrs. C. Stokes, who has been on a visit at Judge Cooper's, left for their home in Forest Grove on Tuesday.
Mr. E. T. Allen gave a reception at his residence on Wednesday evening to a number of friends after the Persian style.
It is expected that the Second Oregon Volunteers will be ready to start for Portland about the first week in August.
Mr. and Mrs. H. Vanderhoof and family, who resided here about four years since, came in for a summer's outing on Sunday.
Anyone wishing repairs for mowers in the way of sections, guards, guard plates or knife heads can get them at W. H. H. Cary's.
The best mower on the market for sale at Cary's hardware store. He has the exclusive agency for The McCormick Mower.

Dr. Wise is at his office to remain till July 25th. Those who want to see him before he leaves for Portland should call at once.
A coat of paint beautifies your home and adds to the value of your property. See H. Gessner if you want painting or paper hanging.
Dr. C. W. Lowe, the oculo-optician, of McMinnville, left for his home on Tuesday, but contemplates visiting this city again in the near future.
Harness, leather, lace leather, and shoe thread, wire harness needles, awls, shoe nails and all kinds of shoe filling at lowest prices at Page's.
It is expected that Effie, the daughter of Rev. F. H. Neff, who cut the pupil of her eye with a knife recently, will have to have the injured eye removed.

At the local institute on Saturday, the teachers formed a County Teachers' Association with County Superintendent G. B. Lamb as the presiding officer and Miss Mamie Means as secretary.
I have a large stock of all kinds of second hand goods, which I bought at a bankrupt sale in Portland for spot cash, and will sell the same at prices that will surprise the natives. W. E. PAGE.
Some money was dropped in Judge Cooper's office on Monday, and the parties who lost the same can recover the it by stating the amount. We would make a guess, but the judge might fine $10 for contempt of court if we made a guess about that amount.
If it's a good hot day Friday week the county and city officials will wish they could fall into some refrigerator after turning the throttle on to make the bases in quick time. We propose that the bicycle tax collector take his pneumatic pump on the field for the purpose of furnishing the winded ones with plenty of locomotive power.
Mr. Geo. K. Rogers, head organizer of the Woodmen of the World, lectured in the city on Tuesday on fraternal orders, showing what growth they had made for the past thirty years and the fraternal spirit which permeated them from the time the first A.O.U.W. was formed. He appealed to those who had not affiliated with fraternal orders to do so for the protection of their wives and families. After the lecture refreshments were served.

We are asked to state that Mr. Geo. K. Rogers, head organizer of the Woodmen of the World, will unveil the monument on the grave of the late Thomas Williams in the cemetery at two o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Woodmen are requested to meet in their lodge room at one o'clock and the public is invited to the ceremony at the cemetery.
The city council met on Monday, with Councilmen L. Hiner, L. Olsen and A. J. Cohn present, the latter being voted to the chair. The city attorney having put his o.k. on the claim of T. B. Handley, the council ordered a warrant drawn for $24.50. Several trivial matters came before the council and were disposed of. An ordinance to prohibit profane language was read, which had been drawn up to comply with the ideas of the city council, but Mr. Goynne wished the council to distinctly understand that the ordinance was not in accord with his judgment, so it was treated as a useless instrument, placed on one side, and the duds goes on record as "doing nothing." In the matter of the street in front of Mr. Davis' property, this was left over until the next meeting.
Annual Teachers' Institute.
The annual teachers' institute for Tillamook county will commence in the public school building in Tillamook City, Monday, July 31st, August 1st and 2nd. An earnest effort is being put forth to make this meeting one of interest and profit to all.
Under the new school law teachers who close their schools for three days to attend the annual institute, are allowed the full time without deducting from their salaries. It is, therefore, expected that every teacher in the county will attend this institute.
Prof. R. C. French, of the Monmouth Normal School, and ex-Superintendent L. H. Baker, of Yamhill county, will have charge of the regular work in methods and school management.
State Superintendent J. H. Ackerman will be present one or two days, and assist in the general work of the institute.
Patrons, school-boards, and friends of education are invited to be present at any or all of the sessions.
G. B. LAMB,
County Superintendent of Schools.

CAMP A PEST-HOLE.
Bleak Winds Threaten Disease to Oregon's Brave Soldiers.
SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—General Summers, commanding the Second Oregon volunteers, said today:
"Scour the camp. Take overcoats wherever you find them. No sentry must stand guard without one. If we cannot get overcoats we will have no guard at all. We are short of overcoats and blankets. Now we are going to infringe on the hospitality of California and see if we can get the loan of what we need. Failing in that, I will make arrangements with Governor Geer to buy blankets and overcoats from the quartermaster's department and then let the boys turn them in to the state of Oregon, receiving the money they have paid them for.
"The government should have provided these things for the returning volunteers. We are the pioneers of an army to come from Manila, and let me tell you, if something is not done it will be worse here than it was in Cuba. There will be hundreds of deaths from pneumonia. The United States should turn over to the hospital and keep on hands at least 5000 blankets and 5000 overcoats. They will be needed, and, as their use will only be temporary, the government can have them back again. If this is not done San Francisco is going to be a great graveyard for the volunteers."
General Summers, of the Second Oregon regiment, has spoken in no uncertain tones concerning the negligence of the government in failing to provide suitable clothing for the Oregon volunteers.
The clothing the Oregon men wore in the tropical Philippines is all they have to protect their bodies from the pneumonia-laden fog of the Presidio. The men of Oregon got a taste of San Francisco weather in July the night before last. Forty men were left in charge of the camp while the others were being entertained. The fog rolled in on them in dense banks, soaking through their light khaki suits to their skins. General Summers was busy in the city nearly all day, but he reached camp last evening, shortly after 6 o'clock. The first thing that struck his eye was the number of men doing guard duty in their khaki suits. The fog was then rolling in, and the trees were heavy with moisture. There were some people waiting to greet the general, but he overlooked them until he had cared for his men. He called for his adjutant.
"Why have not those guards their overcoats on?" he asked.
"They have none," was the answer.
"Well get them some," said the general. "Scour the camp and take them wherever you find them. The boys who are going to town can afford to be without them, but those sentries must have overcoats or else the guard must be called in. I will have no guard if I cannot have overcoats on them."

The Oregon men shiver while thousands of coats and blankets are piled high in the quartermaster's department at the Presidio. Only half the men have sufficient coats and blankets; the other half stand the cold as best they can. The Oregon boys have stoves in the tents, but that only increases the danger unless the men have protection outside.
"The Oregon regiment reached San Francisco at the very worst season of the year," said General Summers. "Thin-blooded men cannot stand these cold, damp nights and mornings, after spending over a year in the Philippine climate. The ladies of the Red Cross Society conferred with me today and kindly promised to do everything in their power to help us. We need at least 300 coats and 300 blankets, or the Presidio will become a graveyard for our volunteers. No man can hold out in this climate from the Philippines if he is dressed only in a thin khaki suit.
"I think it would be wise for the government to provide my men with the clothing and bedding they require, and when they are mustered out, these articles can be left for the next returning regiment. Twelve thousand or 15,000 men will pass through here returning from the war, and they will need these things even worse than my men. I am not placing blame on any body; I am simply emphasizing the danger in front of men who have to shiver in this weather. Our boys do not feel like buying articles for which they have no use for after mustered-out. I am taking every precaution. The slightest cold is reported at once to one of our four doctors, and the men are borrowing each other's coats when they leave the tents. The health of all is good just now.
"Arrangements will be made tomorrow for mustering out, and the men will probably remain here for two or three weeks before everything is over. I shall get them away as soon as possible, and they have promised to go in a body to Portland. The final payment will give to each man something like $100. The settlement will be made after leaving the city, the pay-car going north with the regiment."
The camp of the Oregon is unprotected from the sea fog and winds, lying along the shores of the bay at the northeast corner of the Presidio.

One Volunteer is Home.
ALBANY, OR., July 15.—Frank M. Girard, a member of company I, Oregon volunteers, arrived here to day from San Francisco. He came in violation of orders, but in such a manner that will arouse sympathy in his behalf.
On reaching San Francisco harbor, while still on shipboard, he received a telegram announcing that his mother, who resides near Monmouth, was dying, and asking him to come at once. He applied to the officer for a furlough, offering the telegram as the reason, but it was refused. By the aid of sympathetic comrade he was let down by a rope into a small boat and went ashore, taking the train at once for Albany. He hired a team and driver here and hurried to his home. After remaining at his mother's bedside a few minutes, he came out weeping and said she was yet alive, but was very low. He told the driver that he would return to his regiment in a few days.
He is a young man of unquestioned veracity, and has been one of the best soldiers in his company. Influential friends will endeavor to secure his release from the charge of desertion.

FACTS SURPRESSED.

The Philippines Campaign Not a Success.
WASHINGTON, July 17.—A severe jolt was given the administration today by the publication of the "round robin" censorshipship at Manila. It brands the management of incompetency and evidently shows that the right kind of a man in not in command.
It may be that General Otis is not acting on his own volition, but upon instructions from Washington, when he has decided to keep from the people of the United States the facts concerning the real conditions. It is absurd to believe that the publication of reverses and the necessity for more troops would have assisted the Filipinos in their insurrection.
The "round robin" tells more than appears on the surface. It shows that there never have been troops enough, and that it has been the intention of somebody to deceive the people. General Otis' dispatches for more than a month continually predicted the downfall of the Philippine insurrection, and day after day the people of the United States were informed that the end was about to come. Evidently he was misinformed, or he was carrying out instructions which never should have been given him. It seems as if the managers of the Philippine campaign, both in Washington and Manila, were being forced into a cul-de-sac; one obstacle after another has been dodged by running hither and thither. Now the facts are held bare, and some decisive action must be taken.
If General Otis has been a failure and has not kept the administration correctly informed, he should be at once relieved and some of the fighting officers in the Philippines placed in charge, until a man like Miles could reach Manila. Whether the administration will have the courage to take serious action is just now puzzling everybody here. If the newspapermen are wrong, they should be ordered from the Philippines; if right, there should be a change in the head of the American army in the islands.
Nothing has occurred recently to cause such a sensation as the joint production from the Manila correspondents, and everybody is wondering how the administration will avoid decisive action.
C. A. Bailey's implement warehouse is well stocked with all kinds of farm implements, which will be found complete in every particular. Last week he received a large number of serviceable buggies of various designs, and the unusual large demand this summer for wagons, buggies and farm implements necessitate keeping a large stock on hand.
