SANDLAKE.

The people of Sandlake are out in force at work on the roads this good weather. They propose to connect Sandlake with the end of the plank road at Hayes. We venture to say that there is not another section of country in Tillamook county that can show a more public spirited and enterprising set of people than Sandlake. Every man, with exception of two, are willing to donate two weeks' work or more if necessary to complete the work, and this too after having donated all the way from $9.00 to $60.00 each last summer towards the plank road. Let's hear from some other section.

Mrs. King has returned home. Mr. W. C. Morton, of Bay City, her father, came with her for a visit.

Mrs. Phelps and her brother, Mr. Eldredge, were callers at the upper end of the lake this week.

James Atkinson and Frank Atkinson have bought another band of goats. They now have 40 head.

Olbie Osburn has moved back to the lake and will now stay on the old farm.

A. J. Hembree has his new house up and has moved into it.

Rev. Bevins, of Beaver, will hold regular services at the Sandlake school house the first and third Sundays of each month.

COULSONBURG

Miss Linnie Coulson has returned home after a few days visit to friends in Tillamook city.

Joe Hollett of Blaine was a pleasant caller at this place Friday.

G. T. Coulson's wounded arm is getting along fine.

Grandpa Wood, of Blaine, is staying with his daughter Mrs. Norman Dye, of this place.

Word has reached here that Carl Bundy, who left here a short time ago for his home in Ohio reached the same in safety.

Miss Abbie Coulson who has been employed by Mrs. J. Donaldson for the past eight months has returned home.

WILSON RIVER.

September fat 25.28 cts. for Wilson River cheese factory.

Grant Ellison is again at home and enjoying a bachelor's fare.

Frank Eklof has returned home after an absence of some time.

Vance Nodine has completed Jno. Morgan's new house and is employed to put the finishing touches on H. Young's house.

Peter Heisel's new barn is nearly completed. It is being built very much on the same plan as Mr. Svenson's new building and will add greatly to the appearance and conveniences when finished.

The settlers on Wilson river appreciate good roads, but think that where there are places where the road becomes impassable on account of the destructive effects of the river something should be done to protect the public highway.

The ranchers are all pecking away and taking advantage of the good weather, but when it becomes too inclement all enjoy the cozy and warm fireside, where we can pursue the columns of our home newspaper, hence we welcome the Headlight at all times.

NEHALEM.

The Harrison came in on Saturday, and has not yet got out.

Capt. Thompson has put his gasoline launch, the Irene, in the dry dock.

Mr. Fearnside, who has been quite ill for some time, went to Tillamook Saturday, to take passage on the Elmore for Portland.

Robt. Krebs went out on the Harrison, probably to remain until after Christmas.

Mr. Bales, at Foley month, who is an old miner, is making an anger for the purpose of seeing what is beneath the surface of his place. He expects to go down at least fifty feet.

The North Fork people are going to unite and have a Christmas dinner at their school-house; and they will have a "post office" instead of a Christmas tree.

Messrs. Cox and Pye have reworked the footlogs across the sloughs on the tidal-land and stretched wires for guide lines, which will be appreciated dark nights, or in a gale of wind.

The Harrison brought in the school library for District No. 5, which was obtained by subscription. District No. 28 is procuring one also.

This reached us after we had gone to press last week:

Mail-carrier Gerritze and wife have gone to the valley on a visit. In the meantime August Sandburg is carrying mail, and his sister, Miss Helena is taking care of the children.

Sam Lundburg has a contract to clear land for Chas. Pye.

The W. of W. held their regular election on Saturday, and the Woodmen Circle on Wednesday, at which the latter took in nine new members. The combined orders held their social on Wednesday last.

Such a deluge of rain fell on Tuesday that the Grange was unable to meet for their anniversary exercises.

Sandy Salmon Output.

OREGON CITY, Or., Dec. 10.—Thomas Brown, superintendent of the state hatchery on Salmon River, a tributary of the Sandy, returned today, having completed his season's work. The total product of this season's catch was 1,200,000 young chinook salmon, which have been turned loose in the river. While the catch of eggs was not large, Mr. Brown is well pleased with the results, considering the unfavorable conditions existing. On account of the extreme low water, but few salmon reached the immediate vicinity of the hatchery, and many of the eggs had to be secured below and carried a distance of two miles, about 25 Indians being employed to assist in the work. He also says that it will be necessary to close the Sandy River against logging and the floating of ties for two months in the year, in order to make that stream and its branches a good place to take salmon. Mr. Brown says that the rush of logs and ties down the stream at certain seasons of the year causes immense numbers of salmon to go back to the Columbia River. The loss in hatching this season was only about 5 per cent.

Factories as Civilizers.

A convention has just been held at Washington composed of men whom Mr. Bryan calls plutocrats, monopolists, enemies of labor, etc. It was a convention of the New England Cotton Manufacturers' association, and the 100 members present represented capital amounting to nearly $50,000,000 invested in the great textile manufacturing establishments of New England. Many if not most of these concerns are incorporated and therefore come under Mr. Bryan's denunciation of all corporations. Of course, everybody of ordinary intelligence knows that the proprietors and managers of these great establishments represent brains, capital, labor, industry, thrift and all the best elements of American citizenship and are not public enemies as Mr. Bryan paints them. Hon. Carroll D. Wright, it may be remarked, has made a study of social and economic conditions for thirty years, and is the highest authority in the country on such questions. The central idea of the paper was that great industrial establishments instead of exercising a deteriorating influence on communities and people, as is commonly supposed, operate exactly the other way, and are really agents of advancement and civilization, lifting up the social life of the people. The establishment of the textile factory in the south, he said, let to the employment of a body of native people, born and bred in the south, popularly known as native whites, who had lived a precarious existence, always in antagonism to the colored people, looking upon work as degrading because of the peculiar institutions of the south. Today these people are furnishing the textile factories of the south with a class of operatives not surpassed in any part of the country. The experience of the south was simply that of other localities. The factory meant education, enlightenment and an intellectual development utterly impossible otherwise to a class of people who could not reach these things any other way. It was an element in social life, and was, by its educational influence constantly lifting the people from a low to a higher grade.

This is a rational view of the case. An honest labor is elevating. There is no progress in idleness. It is the army of employed that makes a country prosperous, happy and progressive, not the army of unemployed. Protection for American industry means also protection for American civilization. The policy that establishes factories and mills and gives the best wages to the greatest number of workers contributes not only to the material prosperity and wealth of a people, but to the moral elevation as well. This cannot be said of Bryanism.

Marcus Daly's Brother.

HOT SPRINGS, S. D., Dec. 10.—Rev. P. Daly, who has been a member of the Soldiers' Home of this place for the past four years, was reading the biography of the late Marcus Daly yesterday, and, to his great surprise, discovered that they were brothers. Rev. Mr. Daly knew he had a brother Marcus, but they separated when a very young, their family being poor. He says he had often read of the multi-millionaire Daly, but never for a moment thought it was his little brother who left home ragged and penniless. He is a devout Christian, belonging to the Free Methodist Church, which he has served as pastor in Eastern places. He had never corresponded with his brother nor heard a word from him, and supposed him dead long ago.

CHRISTMAS PLEASURES.

The mistletoe hung on the chandelier,
And he kissed her there with never a fear,
For the soup was delicious, the turkey fine,
The pudding was rich, the sauce divine,
And then came the fruits and confections so sweet,
But none of them better than CREAM OF WHEAT.

As an example of sublime faith or nerve the contemplated contest of a Philadelphia democrat for a seat in the next house of representatives deserves the honor of a passing paragraph.

When a lawyer as referee cuts a professional brother's bill from $17,000 to a measly $300, such as happened in New York recently, it is evident the principles of fraternal regard are an unstudied art in legal circles.

The ability of Buffalo to stand the strain of the Pan-American multitude may be questioned when the keeper of a gaming house squeals because he lost $2,400 at one session. An infusion of red sporting blood is needed there before the gates open.

A great streak of luck has befallen a variety troupe traveling in Michigan. The advance posters were of what is called the "warm" variety and when put on the billboards in Grand Rapids aroused the moral indignation of a Baptist preacher. Next Sunday he preached a sermon attacking the posters, which next day were covered up by order of the mayor. Public curiosity was of course aroused and when the show arrived it "turned 'em away," as they have it in professional circles.

The river and harbor committee, in executive session on Monday, had under consideration some of the Oregon projects. Assurance is given that a sufficient amount will be appropriated for the mouth of the Columbia to insure the undertaking of the approved project, but the amount allotted is not yet decided upon. Inasmuch as the engineers recommend but $600,000, it is not possible that the amount will exceed that sum. Sinslaw has been completely dropped from the bill, but other minor improvements, it is understood, are retained, with Yaquina yet to be considered.
