Who's the next young lady that will be attired in wedding robes?

Mr. Chas. Hoffett, of Elma, Wash., a friend of the family of Mr. R. M. Watson, came in on the stage on Wednesday.

The county commissioners were in session on Wednesday, and a full report of the proceedings will appear next week.

Turn out every night and hear the Quaker doctor's jaw bone rattle while he rubs Quaker oil into you at the rate of a thousand words a minute. Jaw bone and Quaker oil goes well together, and just watch the people pungle up to pay for the lubricating oil.

The city marshal killed two dogs last week. He might have waited until the Quaker doctors arrived and then given them some of their medicine for the purpose of killing them off easy. But, perhaps, the Quaker doctors will perform on some of the loafers or sons of rest, for to kill or cure a number of them would be a great blessing. And we will gamble the Quaker doctor could set his jaw bone to work arguing from sun rise to sun down that his medicine would cure every town bum, loafer and dead beat. And some people would believe it, for such is the power of jaw bone over reason when a quack doctor can bunco people.

Tillamook Before the Committee.

Mr. B. L. Eddy returned to the city on Sunday from Portland, where he had gone to lay the matter of bay and harbor improvements for Tillamook before the river and harbor committee, having been selected, with Mr. Claude Thayer, by the Port of Tillamook Commission, to fill that important mission in behalf of the citizens of Tillamook. It is characteristic of Mr. Eddy that what he undertakes to do will be thoroughly done, and this proved true in this instance, for having distinguished himself in the state legislature to some extent, this paved the way for him to secure recognition and the ear and attention of the chairman of the river and harbor committee. Having obtained that advantage, it is not necessary for us to state that Mr. Eddy brought some convincing arguments to the attention of the chairman, who from all accounts became interested in the contemplated improvement of Tillamook bay. Mr. Eddy, on his return, gave an account of himself something like this:

"I traveled from Portland to Corvallis on the special train run for the benefit of the river and harbor committee, that they might see the Willamette Valley. Of course, Portland was well represented on the train, and the members of the committee were not permitted to forget about that city and the Columbia. After some talk with members of the committee, Chairman Burton kindly appointed an hour to hear me about Tillamook. When the time came, with the assistance of Mayor Langfitt and Mr. Wells Gilbert, the situation at Tillamook was gone into. Mr. Burton was the soul of courtesy and attention, and soon expressed himself as a little surprised at the size of our bay and the magnitude of the Tillamook proposition. He said that the first step would be to get a survey and plans for bay improvement submitted. An appropriation for this purpose would undoubtedly meet with no opposition. Mr. Burton seemed to fear that the desired channel could not be obtained without the expenditure of several millions of dollars. If, however, the estimate of the engineers should bring the cost within, say, a million dollars, I believe Tillamook would fare well at the hands of the present committee. Congressman Lester, of Alabama, expressed to me his keen regret that Tillamook had not been included in the itinerary of the committee, as it had been his wish at the outset to come to Tillamook. No doubt this was the sentiment of other members of the committee."

Mr. T. B. Handley returned to the city on Sunday from Portland. As Mr. C. Thayer was unable to go out and meet the river and harbor committee, Mr. Handley did so for him while outside and met the distinguished visitors, traveling from Portland to North Yamhill in the train with them, he entered into conversation with different members of the committee, and, it is safe to say, he embraced every opportunity for the time at his disposal to lay the claims of Tillamook before them.

A Card.

We, the undersigned, hereby express our sincere thanks to the people and intimate friends who reside at Beaver, Tillamook City, Bay City and Hobsonville who have shown us so much kindness and sympathy at this time of our sad bereavement, in this life and especially to those who so kindly assisted our son financially before his demise. He desired me to make known his appreciation for the same, also our son having been saved of God on Saturday previous to his demise on the following Tuesday, he had an earnest desire that all his friends would meet him in Heaven.

REV. R. H. AND MRS. DOLLARHIDE AND DAUGHTER.

Card of Thanks.

We take this opportunity to extend our gratitude to all who contributed to make our recent entertainment a success.

SISTERS OF IMMACULATE HEART.

Sheep Stolen by Night.

CORVALLIS, June 29.—The theft by night of nearly 200 head of sheep from a field in a thickly-populated section, and within four miles of Corvallis, and the escape of the thief with his booty, into the mountains of the Coast Range, or elsewhere, attracts much attention in this vicinity. The theft occurred either Wednesday or Thursday night of last week. It was not discovered until the Friday following, when the sheep were missed from the field. Even then it was somewhat doubted that the sheep had been stolen. Horsemen began, however, to scour the country in all directions, and up to the present time, without success.

The sheep belonged to John Rickard, who resides four miles south of Corvallis. There were 178 head in the bunch, 138 old ones and 40 lambs. The old ones had been sheared Wednesday and the lambs turned into the field in the evening. The field was but a few hundred yards north of the Rickard residence, and lies along the state road, that is more traveled than any other highway in Benton County.

A bluebook on India just issued in London shows that £18,380,000 was expended for the relief of famine sufferers during the year 1899-1900. The mortality from the plague for the five years ending March, 1901 was nearly 600,000. The census completed in March, 1901, shows that the increase in population during the past 10 years was only 5,000,000 to 6,000,000, instead of the normal 10,000,000. The loss represents deaths in consequence of the famine.

Fight is Waxing Hot.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The controversy between General Dan Sickles, representing the Grand Army, Commissioner of Pensions Evans, and members of the Republican National Committee, is waxing hot. Evans published a letter from Sickles commending him. Then Sickles said he had been assured by the Republican National Committee that Evans would be removed, if the Grand Army vote was cast for McKinley. He said this pledge came through Senator Scott, of West Virginia. Scott denied the assertion, and now Sickles has published a letter he received from Scott during the campaign. This letter is in reply to one written by W. Sickles, in which he asked authority to assure the Grand Army that Evans would be removed. Scott criticized Evans severely and said the Republican National Committee hoped to have him removed. Scott said: "While I can make no pledges for the President, I think you can take it for granted that things will be about on the lines you suggest." While this does not commit the President, it embarrasses him. Probably the time will come when some friend of the President will go to Evans and say that his resignation is necessary to relieve the pressure, and Evans will be forced out by the "resignation" route.

TO PREVENT DECAY.

Wood Preserver Used by Uncle Sam on Yamhill River Work.

Merits of Avenarius Carbolineum Recognized by National, State and Municipal Governments.

The fame of Avenarius Carbolineum has steadily extended, as the only bona fide preserver of wood, since its discovery in Germany thirty years ago. It has stood all tests of climate, soil and water and steadily lived down all pretended rivals. Today it is not only employed in all countries for the preservation of houses, barns, fences, etc., but the national governments, both of Europe and America, have recognized its value in saving public constructions from decay. Following their example cities and counties have also adopted avenarius carbolineum for bridges, pavements, etc., and the leading ship builders and railroad companies have shown their faith in its merits by treating ship timbers, cars, telegraph poles and ties with the same never failing preventative against climatic decay and rapacious wood boring vermin, both of land and water.

Great bodies move slowly, and only act after mature deliberation. It may therefore be safely stated that governments and corporations did not employ avenarius carbolineum until fully convinced of its money saving as well as wood preserving qualities. Private individuals desirous of lengthening the life of wood work and at the same time curtailing expenses, need not fear to follow the precedents established.

Recent local examples proving the truth of the above statements are not wanting. The reconstructed Madison street bridge in Portland has been treated with avenarius carbolineum, as has also the pavement at the intersection of four streets in that city where the heaviest street car and wagon traffic converge. The latter use of the compound was made at the earnest solicitation of street car managers who confidently look for gratifying results.

The gentlemen in charge of the United States engineer department for Oregon are now applying avenarius carbolineum to the dams and lock work on the Yamhill river, a flattering tribute to its merits which was certainly not extended until searching investigation satisfied the authorities that it was a measure of practical economy.

With such examples before them it would appear that the individual is foolish and the official almost culpable who does not protect his own, or the taxpayer's pockets by using this compound, thus saving from decay, and lengthening the life of all frame structures for which thus saving from decay, and lengthening the life of all frame structures for which he is individually or officially responsible.

Fisher Thorsen & Co., of Portland, Or., are sole Pacific coast agents for avenarius carbolineum, and it can be found at WADE & BRIGGS, Tillamook, Or., who will gladly supply information regarding its accomplishments.
