Mr. G. A. Mowers, writing from Saint Helena, Napa county, Cal., says: "I have located here on a five acre fruit patch, three acres of prunes, one of peaches, half acre of mixed fruit, apples, cherries, apricots, figs, quince, almonds and walnuts. Have a large crop of prunes, apples and almonds, but peaches are about half a crop. Haying is over and harvest is in full blast. Grain crops good. Through this valley we have a fine climate and the best of water. One of the Maroff boys is a near neighbor to me. The roads and climate are too good here to ever want to go back to Tillamook." "As the hart panteth for the water brooks," so will George's heart pant before many years roll round to return to Tillamook, the land of milk and honey.

An important document was filed with the County Clerk by Messrs. Joseph Gaston and Edward H. Kilham, as the president and the secretary of the New York and Oregon Coal and Timber Company, which is to control and monopolize certain rivers and creeks in this county under the provisions of an act passed at the last session of the state legislature. This company, in its declaration of intentions, propose to improve the Nehalem river from the point where it empties into Nehalem bay upstream to its intersection with the boundary line of Clatsop county, also improve the North Fork of Nehalem river, Salmonberry creek, Foley creek and the Miami river. The improvements proposed to be made will make these rivers suitable for floating and transporting saw logs, pilings, telegraph poles, shingle bolts and timber. The declaration is made under the provisions of an act passed by the state legislature and filed Feb. 27, 1901. Attached to the declaration is a map of the rivers.

STAGE WENT OVER GRADE. Killing One Passenger and Injuring Another.

While the citizens were enjoying the national holiday in this city on Thursday they were shocked at noon to hear that a serious accident had happened to the incoming stage on the mountain that morning, about six miles above the toll gate at Trask with serious results. Various reports gained currency, but it was late in the day before the actual facts were known. It then leaked out that in coming down the mountain the stage driver, Ernest Baker, had been thrown out, and a few hundred yards further down the road the stage went over the grade with terrific force, throwing the two passengers out and over the grade, rendering one unconscious, while the other had his arm broken. The driver, who was somewhat cut about and covered with mud and blood, secured one of the horses and hastened to the toll gate for assistance, and on his arrival there a telephone message was sent to this city asking for a doctor. Mr. C. H. Smith, proprietor of the toll road, was in the city at the time, and with Dr. I. M. Smith lost no time in getting started. The first person to arrive at the scene of the accident was Mr. John Mann, who went from Trask. He found one of the passengers unconscious with his skull seriously fractured and the other with his arm broken. Finding that he could not get the unconscious person up onto the road alone he had to let him remain there, so took the one with the broken arm to the toll gate. On the arrival of Mr. Smith and the doctor they went immediately to the assistance of the unfortunate man who was left on the mountain and conveyed him to the toll gate, but whether he gained consciousness from the time of the accident will never be known, for he was dead when he reached the toll gate.

There was some anxiety in this city to know who the passengers were, and it was evening before this information was given out. The person who had his arm broken was Mr. R. M. Trowbridge, of Dayton, Ore., and a former, well-known, respected citizen of this county, being the father of Mr. M. C. Trowbridge and person killed was a brother, Mr. D. S. Trowbridge, of Fresno, Cal. The same day that the latter left California to visit his friends in this county his wife left to visit her friends in Columbus, O. The remains of the unfortunate man were brought to this city Friday and were shipped on the steamer Elmore on Saturday, to be taken to Fresno, Cal., for burial, Mr. B. H. Hathaway going out in charge of the remains.

HEADLIGHT PLANK.

To Give Tillamook Substantial County Roads.

Before the next county election in Tillamook the Headlight will advocate the insertion of several planks in the republican platform, which will be of a local character, leaving it to the judgment of the party to adopt them or otherwise. We have one in mind's eye now, and it is to this effect: "We, the republican party of Tillamook, being desirous of seeing good roads throughout the county, will pledge ourselves to increase the assessment upon all unimproved and timber lands in the county for that purpose; and, furthermore, pledge ourselves to construct permanent and substantial highways, to forward the development and improvement of the entire county; and, further, pledge ourselves to the strictest economical use of every dollar of road fund."

In advocating a plank of that description we know it is far reaching in character, but having miles of unimproved roads to contend with it is just as well to grapple with the situation systematically and with well laid plans, so that when a piece of road is improved it will be substantial. This, we believe, can only be accomplished by the county operating as many rock crushers as possible. Some people may differ with us, especially those who favor plank, but we will let our present planked roads speak for themselves as to their lasting qualities and cost of construction.

Another reason why we advocate the republican party of this county adopting a plank similar to the above is because we do not think it right that the burden of taxation should fall upon those who come here and improve the country. We will put it in this light. A man buys a piece of unimproved land, and after several years of persistent toil he turns it into a dairy ranch, erecting buildings, putting stock and farm implements on the place, upon which he has to pay taxes and also upon every improvement made. While, on the other hand, the non-resident, who buys a piece of land and makes no improvements, allowing it to remain idle and enhance in value because a few industrious persons are making the country valuable, only pay taxes to a nominal amount. By this system we throw the burden of taxation upon the industrious, enterprising citizen. As most of the timber land in this county is now owned by syndicates, and is now tied up until such time as it will bring four or five times what was paid for it, we think it only right that this land should bear a larger proportion of the taxation of the county than it is now doing to construct roads and bridges and otherwise improve the county. The Headlight recommends this as a solution to the road problem, believing that the time has arrived to make those who hold unimproved and timber lands for speculation pay more taxes, not that they would object, for they are aware that they are not paying a just proportion. While there is value on this land it is proper that it should be taxed, but it will be too late to do so after the timber is taken off. We think our position in this matter cannot be assailed, and we intend staying with it for the purpose of making this an issue at the next county election. We know we are touching somewhat upon a question that is causing and will cause considerable more discussion. Let us state plainly right here, to stop all arguments to the contrary, that the republicans, as a party, are not responsible for planked roads or the system that was adopted in running the county saw mill, for the republican county convention adopted no plank to that effect nor endorsed it at the last convention. As public sentiment, even within party lines, is opposed to the county saw mill being run in the future as in the past, let us sound a word of warning to the republican party in Tillamook that they are courting defeat this proceed, for the party, and not so much the officials, will have to shoulder the responsibility. For that reason we think republicans, and the party as well, should define their position on the county saw mill question and what course is best for the future. For that reason we submit the above plan for increasing the taxes and a system which will eventually give the county roads that will become permanent and substantial and will not rot away in a few years. There may be some good features about planked roads, but what they have cost this county the past few years will remain a mystery until an investigation is made, the bills thoroughly scrutinized and all monies turned over to the county treasury for material disposed of.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF TILLAMOOK CITY. To be dedicated next Sunday morning.

Probably there are those who may differ with the Headlight and who may contend that the road work should be done by contract, but as this subject can be discussed from several standpoints we leave the suggestions we have made to the consideration of the people of this county, and if they can in any way offer something better we shall be delighted to hear from them.

On account of the Fourth we fail to get to the press, but we can assure you we had a good time at the Beaver picnic.

Nathan Moon made a trip to Sheridan last week.

Quite a number of our citizens attended the basket meeting at Brown last Sunday.

Mrs. M. Booth was up from Hebo last week visiting her parents.

Lloyd Henderson took a band of cattle to the valley.

Our community visited R. O. Richards and asked him to take charge of the two calves for the Bachelor Bend picnic, but really they could not make a shadow, so R. O. concluded to keep them until the Fourth, 1904.

Mr. Henderson and wife went to the metropolis last week.

Haying is the order of the day, but look out for Uncle Saul.

M. Creecy came in last week from Forest Grove to visit relatives.

R. O. Richards has discovered a salt cure for cows which we hope will prove successful.

Sidney Moon returned from the logging camp till after the Fourth.

Geo. Lucas passed through our village last Sunday.

NEHALEM.

Owing to preparations made during the rain, Nehalem celebrated its Fourth indoors; bright without and dark within, and the pleasure was otherwise somewhat marred by the late arrival of the programme committee. The redeeming feature was Prof. G. A. Walker's oration. There was one young men's race on the sidewalk, and Felix Ray spent a dollar, as usual, in prizes for juvenile races. Hibback district has closed school temporarily in consequence of measles. Hay-making is now the order of the

What May She Do?

We are asked to state what kind of work a woman may properly be allowed to do on the farm. No answer we might give could be wholly satisfactory, for so much depends upon the woman herself, her nationality, her education and social environment. Some women are physically strong—strong as any man. Others are physically weak—unfit for toil. It has always seemed to us that when a woman cared for her home and family in all the varied ways which under a homemaker's duty she had done about all that could reasonably be expected of her. If, however, she be young and strong and there be no little children to hinder and she feels like doing it (mind that last provision) there is no objection to her assisting her husband very materially in the lighter forms of farm work. For instance the poultry yard and the garden may very properly be assigned to her. She may properly assist in the milking of the cows and look after the young and weak things on the farm, the little lambs, pigs and calves; she may ride the sulky plow attend to the marketing of farm products keep the farm accounts and do the buying for the establishment. In a word, if able and willing, she may do any sort of work up to that point where the doing of it will not impair her sense of womanly refinement and delicacy and make her any the less a woman by the doing of it. Work which would convert her hands into calloused and deformed appendages she should not do, for, while the lily white hand is under farm conditions for woman a dream and not a reality, still when we see a woman's hand as large and course as that of her husband we know one woman at least has been forced out of her proper place. Every woman must settle this question for herself. The American woman may grow fruits and vegetables, care for bees and poultry, milk cows and feed calves and pigs and still suffer no loss of social prestige or position, provided that in the doing of it all she retains her womanly graces and refinement, in which respect we think that society as a whole is very generous and considerate. Outdoor work to a reasonable degree would do much for the physical development of the American woman but in doing it she should be no less a woman than she is now.—Ex.

Lorillard is Dead.

New York, July 7.—Pierre Lorillard, the tobacco king died early today at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, where he was taken from the Deutschland, when that steamer arrived from Europe, July 4. The members of the family present at the bedside when the end came were Mr. Lorillard's daughters, Mrs. T. S. Taylor and Mrs. William Kent, and their husbands, and Pierre Lorillard, Jr., and wife, also Pierre Lorillard, the grandson. Mr. Lorillard's recent severe illness dates from June 20. He was in England, and went to his lodge at Ascot, hoping to see his horse David Garrick, win the gold cup. He was stricken with a uraemic chill, and was sick for a week. He was advised to come to America, and boarded the Deutschland, but his condition became graver each moment. His physician, Dr. Kilroy, told him he did not think he would live to get to New York, but the magnate insisted he would. It had never been thought he could recover since his arrival.

"Eat!" exclaimed the colonel, "did you join the army merely to get something to eat?" "Well, that's about the size of it." "Here," calling an officer, "give this man something to eat and then have him shot." The officer understood the joke, and replied: "All right, colonel." The private, exhibiting no alarm, said: "Boil me a ham, cap'n, stew up a couple of chickens, bake two or three pounds of potatoes, fetch a gallon o'beer and load yer guns. This proved too much for the primate's sense of humor, and he exclaimed, "I think, sir, as there are only two of us, you had better say which is which."
