

Your Last Chance to GET BARGAINS.

ONLY 3 DAYS MORE to secure bargains at R. JACOBSON & CO's. Bargain Store,

As we will positively and must give up our store on the evening of August 17th. Everybody is aware whoever purchased goods from us since we are here that they have obtained value received for their money and from now on the remainder of our stock will be closed out for nearly half of its former prices. Remember we can sell you the same goods from 1/3 to 1/2 less than you would have to pay in the East for it, and you have the goods right at home for your inspection. The goods which we offer you at half-price you will surely have to buy it before long as we have a nice lot of Fall goods and Fall is coming on, and if you do not buy it now you will be the loser.

Remember the date, SATURDAY, AUGUST 17TH, at 8 P.M., we give up business. Respectfully yours,

R. JACOBSON & Co.

Too Many Gamblers in the City.

We have no compunction in saying that there is too much gambling going on and too many gamblers in Tillamook City for the good of the community, besides being a pernicious evil and a bad example to the rising generation. As we have stated before, it is none of our business if men prefer to run the risk of losing their money at the gambling table. But it is the business of the press of this city, when it is aware that gambling is carried on to extremes, to raise a protest. This we do now, for the reason that so many men in our midst have become, and are becoming more so, infatuated with gambling that almost every cent they can scrape together goes for gambling, when this money should have gone for the maintenance of the wife and family and to pay store bills. When gambling interferes with other businesses and absorbs the money which should go for support of the home, it is time that something should be done to eradicate this gambling craze. Another thing, when we hear of men, in good circumstances, getting into financial difficulties through gambling, is it not the business of those in authority to put a veto on it? Those who have an interest in the moral and business interests of Tillamook City will, we feel sure, agree with us in this particular, that this "wide-open" system of gambling should be stopped. We believe this to be for the best interest of the city, the business men, the wife and the family and the entire community.

The attitude of the HEADLIGHT upon public morality has been too well defined to need comment. It will calmly wait now for the rest of the law-abiding people to come to its support. The editor is no crank on moral crusades or spasmodic attempts to reform people, for we have seen too much of that to satisfy us that this hot and cold process amounts to nothing. If we have laws, the laws should be obeyed and enforced. And if not then elect officers who will. The indications are that before a great while even the most ardent supporters of a "wide open town" will be not only by the side of the HEADLIGHT, but will be far more forcible. We do not intend to agitate the question of a prohibition town, but if no other method can be devised to eradicate gambling, then we should not be surprised if the sentiment of the people ran in that direction. This is the plan adopted in a few towns, and other towns are catching on. The people of this city have not arrived at the point where they will tamely endure the presence in large numbers of gamblers, or those who thrive on the wages of poor fallen women. The lives of these women are degrading in any community, but it is not so bad compared with the demon who profits by their shame and knocks them down and shamefully kicks them. We are not in favor of lynching, but there is swift justice in it at times. There is one satisfaction in this shameful conduct. This class will make the "sports" so odious that the people will not longer endure the open violation of law, and when public indignation is sufficiently aroused the whole shameful business will be stopped. The HEADLIGHT now call upon the city officials to enforce the city and state laws in every particular. Tillamook City and her good people are not owned yet by the lawless element.

CAPSIZED ON NETARTS BAR Narrow Escape of Five Men Who Struggled Desperately to Save Their Lives.

On Saturday morning, G. W. Phelps, the merchant of Netarts Bay; Clarence and Frank Hanenkratt, and Bob E. Fontaine, of Tillamook, and C. S. Bate-man, of Gales Creek, were capsized in an open boat on Netarts bar, and narrowly escaped drowning. The party started from the store of G. W. Phelps in a small surfboat to the sea lion rocks, out in the ocean about one-half mile off Maxwell's Point. They made the trip safely to the last swell outside the bar, when the stroke oarsman lost an oar, which rattled the other oarsmen, who were inexperienced. Instead of backing when meeting one of the breakers, they foolishly pulled with the expectation of surmounting it. The wave struck the boat and turned it sideways, and it immediately capsized, throwing the occupants into the water, the boat falling overboard. Those caught underneath were hurt, being struck by the boat, but they succeeded in righting her, and, all clinging to the boat, started to drift toward shore on the incoming tide. Another big swell knocked two of the party loose from the boat the second time, and they were only rescued by the heroic aid of those clinging to the boat.

When quite a distance from shore two of the party were overcome by numbness from the cold and exposure, being unable to help themselves. The crowd on shore rushed into the surf, and, with the aid of a team of horses which were driven several yards into the surf, they were rescued. They were immediately hauled to Happy Camp, more dead than alive, and, by means of restoratives, hot rocks and blankets, applied by the willing and ready hands of the campers, they were brought to.

This trip to the sea lion rocks has been made many times in safety by members of this party, for the purpose of shooting sea lions. Great excitement prevailed on the beach when watching the overturned boat slowly drift to shore. Women were frantic and men gave orders, and to the work and willingness of the campers these men owe their lives. The men were in the water more than an hour, and after Phelps was brought to and able to speak, he said that was the last time he would go out. Before they started he said it was too rough, but the other boys made light of it, so he consented to go. Had the tide been going out instead of coming in nothing could have saved them. The party lost their guns when the boat was capsized. A doctor had to be sent for from this city to attend Mr. Phelps, who we are glad to say is now better.

Pungent Remarks by the Press.

Eggs are worth only 4 cents a dozen back in Nebraska, but the product of the Oregon hen still costs consumers 20 cents a dozen. Yet this difference would be no temptation to exchange life in Oregon for life in Nebraska.—Telegram.

Dr. Tanner, the famous long-distance faster, has challenged the "medical profession, the brewers and distillers to name six champions to meet him in the lists of starvation. He is to drink water only; the six are free to drink beer or whiskey—the result to prove a total abstinence lesson or the reverse.—Reporter.

The democrats are talking of starting a big democratic daily paper in Portland. What is the matter with the Oregonian? It believes in free trade. So do the democrats. It hates McKinley. So do the democrats. It damns every man who has acquired wealth in any line of business effected by a tariff. So do the democrats. It condemns every monopoly, beneficial or otherwise, except its own. So do the democrats. What in thunder do the Portland people want anyhow?—The Dalles Chronicle.

The execution of Eben Boyes, the wife-murderer, at Tacoma yesterday morning, was the closing scene of a most brutal and unprovoked murder. Alienated by his excess of whiskey, opium, cigarettes and absintha, his wife left him and sought work whereby to live. Eighteen months ago, while serving as cashier of a restaurant in Tacoma, she was shot down, without warning, by her dissipated husband. The miserable woman in marrying a dissipated soldier-musician who had just returned from a course of extreme recklessness with the Army in the Philippines, virtually took her life in her own hands, since experience long ago proved that a woman who marries a man thus fallen can neither live with nor get away from him. Her indiscretion was, however, no excuse for his abominable practices and abhorrent crime, and the penalty exacted by the law was just one, and its execution was only too long delayed. She paid the penalty for a woman's folly—he for a man's utter abandonment of himself to vice and crime. The price exacted of both was life; this payment ended the miseries begotten by union of folly and vice under the name of marriage—Oregonian.

Sometimes a newspaper reporter will overlook personals. People come and go and the newsgatherer attempts to chronicle the days doings. He often fails to do this. People sometimes read the paper, give it a toss aside and say "There's nothing in it." In many cases the local pencilpusher has worked harder on that issue than on prior ones, yet he realizes himself that it lacks news. Very often the people who kick the hardest are to blame themselves. They are central figures perhaps in half a dozen news items during the week and fail to give the reporter an item. They feel slighted because they are overlooked, but forget that the field that the reporter covers is large and that he cannot enter of each individual's doings. If the people who growl about newspapers and offer suggestions as to how to run them would only give the newsgatherers items in which they are concerned and let the newspaper men run the papers it would improve nine-tenths of the country papers published today. Only yesterday a friend of ours asked us why we never mentioned his family when they visited at various places. We did not know they had made trips, and of course could not write about them. He felt slighted and had some reason too, yet the blame did not rest with the news gatherer. There are dozens of instances of just this kind. We see people at the depot. They are busily engaged getting ready to board a train. Perhaps the reporter rushes around and finds out where they are going. Sometimes he is considered rude and inquisitive. Many people go and come each day that are unknown except in their own particular circles. If their friends would only call up the newspaper office and tell about it, the papers would be a better index of the day's doings. Don't be afraid to ring us up, or to come up with your items. Carnival at Portland.

The business men of Portland have subscribed $15,000 to guarantee the expenses of a Carnival to be held in the Exposition building from Sept. 18 to Oct. 19.

A notable exhibit of all the industries of the Pacific Northwest will be made in the big Exposition building, and athletic exercises, a horse show and a military tournament will be held on Multnomah Field adjoining. Two full military bands have been engaged, and there will be many fine features in the amusement line.

The Carnival is in charge of a committee comprising 28 representative business men, of which Gen. Owen Summers is president; I. N. Fleischer, vice-president; A. B. Steinbach, treasurer; and J. D. Mann, secretary.

With such men at the head of the affair, the Carnival is sure to be well worth visiting.

Domestic Pleasantries.

She—No, I can never marry you. All our family is opposed to you.
He—But if you are not—
She—I said all our family.

Lawyer—As your husband died intestate, you will, of course, get a third—
Widow—Oh, I hope to get my fourth.
He was my third you know.

She—But we are too poor to marry.
He—What of it? Everybody is.

Lyda—Oh, Clarence, dear! If I should fall into the briny ocean, would you save me?
Clarence—I don't know, darling; I never saved anything in my life.

"Ah," he said with a sigh, "If you would only smile upon me."

"Smile upon you?" replied the fair young girl. "If I treated you right I would give you the horse laugh."

For he tried to engage last summer's engagement.

One evening Adam was making love to Eve, but she seemed dissatisfied.

"What is troubling my darling?" he asked.

"Oh Addie, dear," she sighed, "if I could but convince myself that I am the only woman you ever loved."

"Biddy," Pat began timidly, "did yees iver think av marryin'?"

"Sure, now th' subject has niver interred me thoughts," demurely replies Biddy.

"It's sorry Oi am," said Pat, turning away.

"Wan minute, Pat!" called Biddy softly. "Ye've set me a thenkin'."

"Don't you think you lose patience with your husband on rather slight provocation?" said the near relative.

"I have to provoke him sometimes," was the placid answer, "so that he will lose his temper and then give me anythink I want so as to atone for the way he has acted."

TO PREVENT DECAY.

Wood Preserver Used by Uncle Sam on Yamhill River Work.

Merits of Avenarius Carbolinum Recognized by National, State and Municipal Governments.

The fame of Avenarius Carbolinum has steadily extended, as that only bona fide preserver of wood, since its discovery in Germany thirty years ago. It has stood all tests of climate, soil and water and steadily lived down all pretended rivals. Today it is not only employed in all countries for the preservation of wood used for household articles such as houses, barns, fences, etc., but the national governments, both of Europe and America, have recognized its value in saving public constructions from decay. Following their example cities and counties have also adopted avenarius carbolinum for bridges, pavements, etc., and the leading ship builders and railroad companies have shown their faith in its merits by treating ship timbers, cars, telegraph poles and ties with the same never failing preventative against climatic decay and rapacious wood boring vermin, both of land and water.

The gentlemen in charge of the United States engineer department for Oregon are now applying avenarius carbolinum to the dams and lock work on the Yamhill river, a flattering tribute to its merits which was certainly not extended until searching investigation satisfied the authorities that it was a measure of practical economy.

Fisher Thorsen & Co., of Portland, Or., are sole Pacific coast agents for avenarius carbolinum, and it can be found at WADE & BRIGGS, Tillamook, Or., who will gladly supply information regarding its accomplishments.
