

FINE DAIRY EXHIBIT.

Tillamook the Greatest Wealth-Producing, Cash-Getting Section of Oregon.

The Salem correspondent of the Evening Telegram says: Hon. J. H. Bailey, state food and dairy commissioner, was in Salem for the purpose of examining the new dairy building at the state fair grounds. He is very much pleased with its design; says it is one of the prettiest dairy buildings he has ever seen, though he would like to see it considerably larger. It may serve for this year, but it will be inadequate to meet the demands later.

He says there will be a large and creditable dairy exhibit at the state fair this year, as there are extensive preparations in progress for it in Tillamook, Umatilla, Clackamas and other counties. One point butter exhibitors must recollect, the law provides for the marking or stamping of all market products of the dairy, but for purposes of exhibitions the articles must be without distinguishing brands, to insure a want of knowledge of the makes by the judges.

Commissioner Bailey has recently returned from a trip through Tillamook county and is very enthusiastic over its prospects and possibilities as a dairy region. White clover grows in profusion in every clearing as a voluntary crop, and the grasses are exceedingly nutritious, while the climate insures pasturage the year round.

Cheesemaking is a great industry in Tillamook and a profitable one. A price of 11 cents a pound is realized, which Mr. Bailey says is equal to 25 cents a pound for butter, and there is no reason why the dairymen should not be prosperous. The people there realize they have a good thing and they all talk cheese. He says you cannot begin to talk upon any subject to a Tillamook county rancher, but he quickly turns the conversation the same way as he turns the milk of his herd—into cheese.

The dairying interest of that coast county is only in its infancy, and Mr. Bailey says when it is brought up partially to its possibilities it will be the greatest wealth-producing, cash-getting section of the state.

Young Man, Go to Tillamook.

Ex-Governor Penoyer Says It Is an Ideal Happy Valley.

Ex-Governor Penoyer has returned from a trip to Tillamook, and, although he was there a week, he seems sorry that he did not stay longer. He says Tillamook was a revelation to him, and he found it to be one of the literal "happy valleys" he has read and dreamed of.

"Tillamook is fresh and green," said the ex-Governor, "and the cows are all fat and sleek. It is a great dairy region, and between Tillamook and Garibaldi I passed half a dozen cheese factories. Tillamook is noted for its good cheese and butter, and it was a great sight to see the long rows of big milk cans outside the farmhouses. The whole country is fresh and green over there, and I consider it one of the finest dairy regions I ever saw. It will keep a cow to the acre, and the business must be profitable for ex-Senator Maxwell, who has 25 cows now, will soon increase the herd to 51. If I were a young man I would try for a start in Tillamook in preference to any other part of Oregon."

Although he has been in Oregon 43 years, this was the ex-Governor's first visit to Tillamook, and he says that he enjoyed it very much. At Hobsonville, which is named after John Hobson, the Astoria Pioneer, he saw the big mill of the Truckee Lumber Company, and at Garibaldi he enjoyed sitting on the sandy beach and basking in the sun and breathing the salt sea air. Between Tillamook and Hobsonville Mr. Penoyer rode on a stage that was driven by a woman. The route is eight miles long. Although 70 years of age, Governor Penoyer made the round trip to Tillamook by stage via North Yamhill, and enjoyed the novelty of sleeping in a barn. On the return trip he left Tillamook City at 6 P. M., and the stage came out 16 miles to the Trask House, where the hotel had burned down. They had tents for travelers, but the Governor requested the privilege of sleeping in the barn, and was accommodated. He enjoyed the novelty very much until the east wind struck his head along toward morning, when he had to use his soft hat for a nightcap.

"Tillamook is a land of logs and green grass and cows and dairies and big trees and lumbering, and it has a great future," said the ex-Governor. "I am glad I made the trip."—Oregonian.

There is not the slightest prospect that the rivers and harbors appropriation bill to be passed at the coming session of Congress will carry a smaller total than the measure that was talked to death by Tom Carter in the last moments of his term as senator from Montana last March. Many worthy projects will suffer before money under the new appropriation will become available. This might be endured without a murmur if it were to be made the means of defeating unworthy appropriations. But they will be in the law finally. The new bill will not be subject to defeat by a single disgruntled Senator from an island state.—Oregonian.

Sunday School Convention.

The Tillamook County Sunday School Association, which is to be held in the Presbyterian church in this city on Aug. 31st and Sept. 1st, bids fair to be the best and most successful gathering of its kind ever held in Tillamook. Delegates are expected from every Sunday school in the county. The state Sunday school worker, Rev. C. A. Dotson, will be present and take the principal part in the convention. Those having the matter in hand will spare no pains to make this equal with any other county convention in the state, considering the inconveniences arising from a county with no better accommodations for the traveling public. Delegates will be provided with free entertainment. Everybody interested in Sunday school work invited to attend. Program is as follows:

SATURDAY, AUG. 31. 2:00 p.m.—Devotional, Rev. McDonald. 2:15—Business Session. 2:45.—Round Table Conference (the S.S. Teacher), Rev. C. A. Dotson. 3:30.—Use and Misuse of S.S. Lesson Help, W. W. Britton. 4:00.—Art of Questioning, G. B. Lamb. EVENING SESSION.

8:00 p.m.—Devotional, Rev. B. F. Peck. Address of Welcome, Rev. C. P. Metzler. Response, Mrs. W. T. West. Address, The Up-to-Date Sunday-school, Rev. C. A. Dotson.

SUNDAY. 11:00 o'clock a.m.—Devotional, Rev. Armstrong. 11:15.—The Organized S.S. Work, What, Why and How, Rev. Dotson. 2:30 p.m.—Devotional, Rev. E. Thornquist.

2:45.—Children's Mass Meeting, led by Rev. Dotson. 3:15.—Primary Work, Mrs. B. L. Eddy. 3:35.—Relation of S.S. to Church, Mrs. Dr. Smith. 3:55.—Importance of S.S. Work, T. H. Goynes.

Cornelius D. Danaher has filed deeds at St. Helens for 1160 acres of timber lands in the vicinity of the Goble, Nehalem & Pacific Railway. The consideration mentioned in the deeds is $17,950. Arrangements will probably be made to extend the Goble & Nehalem Road into this body of timber. In the event of failure to secure a right of way and timber beyond these tracts, the main line of the road will probably be extended up the other branch of Goble Creek, where the receiver of the road holds as trustee about 4000 acres of as good timber as any in Columbia County. The road could be extended in the same direction to the large tract of timber owned by Messrs. Fass, Hall and other Michigan capitalists. Once the road is completed across the divide to the head of Clatskanie Creek the small holders who are standing in the way of this enterprise may experience some trouble in getting rid of their timber, even at the figures they have been offered.

SUNK BY ICEBURG.

Islander Went Down With Sixty Souls off Douglas Island.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 18.—The steamer Islander, the crack passenger steamer of the Alaskan route, operated by the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company, of this city, struck an iceberg off Douglas Island at 2 A. M. on the morning of Thursday last and went to the bottom, carrying 55 to 60 souls, including passengers and members of the crew.

The description of the disaster by the survivors is heartrending. They say that the Islander struck an iceberg, and so severe was the shock that every door was jammed fast in the staterooms, and the ill-lated passengers numbering 107, and the crew of 71 were forced to break through the windows to reach the deck. Steward Simson lost 10 in his department, and his description of the wreck is clearly given. He was awakened by the shock, and could not get out of his stateroom until he broke out of the window. He reached the bridge, where the pilot was on watch, and, with the mate, ordered out the lifeboats. The vessel was then leaking water fast, and the chief engineer reported the pumps unable to take care of the water. He also went below with an ax, broke down the lower stateroom doors, and stayed at this work until the water forced him to go to the upper deck.

By this time, the ship's boats were loaded and had got away, and, while the officers were getting out the last lifeboat, Captain Foote called to all hands to clear the ship, as she was about to go down. This was the captain's last order, as at that moment the ship sank, and the captain, leaping clear of the wreck, was picked up by a lifeboat, which in some manner was overturned. The day was very misty, and all hands were forced to shift for themselves.

The officers state that had the passengers not rushed the boats, the loss of life would have been small, if indeed, any at all had been lost.

M. Blumauer, of Portland, Or., had $14,000 in gold dust in his satchel, but promptly abandoned it, tumbled into the water, was rescued, and is thankful.

D. H. Hart, a Klondike King, had $40,000 in gold dust, which he abandoned, jumped into the last boat and reached shore safely. M. Mantin, of Winnipeg, dropped his satchel, containing $4000, and a friend a portmanteau with $3000 and each escaped. Another Klondiker whose name is not given, is reported to have taken his portmanteau, containing $40,000 in gold dust, from the purser, and jumped from the sinking steamer to a boat, which he failed to reach. Both man and treasure sunk.

The thermometer the other day at the Summit House, Mount Washington, hanging in the sunlight, stood at 98 degrees. The other side of the doorway, in the shade, but receiving reflected light and heat from the platform, another thermometer read 61 degrees. Behind the hotel, unaffected by the sun's rays, a third instrument told the true temperature of air to be 47 degrees.

A project is on foot in Philadelphia to combine at least 3,000 of the 5,500 retail groceries in the city under one head, with a capital of $5,500,000. The plan is to purchase the stock and stores at a cash average of $2,000, making a total investment of $5,000,000, in addition to which $500,000 would be put up for a working capital. The idea, further, is to employ former owners as managers of the stores.
