The Tillamook Creamery Company has received word that it has received the highest award for cheese at the State fair which was recently held at Salem. That speaks well for Tillamook cheese and for the factory which had the enterprise to compete for a prize. Tillamook cheese is something more than a prize winner at exhibitions and fairs, but it is at a premium on the markets, which is the best recommendation, for that is one of the things which makes dairying a profitable and money-making industry in Tillamook county.

Died, on Saturday morning, at the residence of Mr. Peckham, in this city, Mary, the only daughter of Postmaster A. W. Severance, aged 3 1/2 years. The child was taken sick on Friday, and acute congestion of the lungs setting in she died the next morning and the funeral took place on Monday, the religious service being at the Christian church, over which Rev. E. Thornquest presided, assisted by a choir. The funeral was attended by a number of the members belonging to the Degree of Honor and A.O.U.W., as well as sympathizing friends. Six girls carried the casket and placed flowers upon the grave of the dear little child whose sweet, innocent face was so well known in the neighborhood of the post office.

The co-operation of the Port of Tillamook Commission is solicited in a proposal to organize a State Board of Trade in Portland next Thursday, and as this is something which will help to make the state progressive and aggressive along manufacturing lines, we sincerely hope that a strong State Board of Trade will be formed composed of those who are actively engaged in industrial pursuits, and it would be a good thing for Tillamook county if a few of our energetic, live, up-to-date citizens became identified with a State Board of Trade, for in asking for an appropriation to improve Tillamook bar, the backing of representative men from all over the state would call for recognition quicker than most of our citizens are aware of. By all means organize a State Board of Trade, as well as a similar organization in every county in the state.

The attempt to pass an ordinance to increase the saloon license to $800 a year failed to pass at the city council Monday evening. This ordinance, no doubt, was connected with the idea of raising the license so as to limit the number of saloons in the city, and probably that was the cause that it failed to pass, for a monopoly on that business appears no longer possible in this city, therefore, it is just as well for the saloon men to make up their minds for competition, for they will get it anyway. One thing we do say, the saloon license in this city should not be placed at the minimum. If the city council is not receiving enough revenue to meet its expenditure and to keep the city out of debt, then by all means raise the license some. And, gentlemen of the city council, if you have not sufficient revenue then, tax every gambling joint in the city and put a heavy tax upon those who frequent them, and we say the same of brothels and those who frequent them. It was piling on the agony too much for the city council to take upon itself, without the approval of the citizens, to raise the license to $800.

Robert Krebs, owner of the Nehalem sawmill and one of the best-known men in Tillamook county, died at St. Mary's hospital at Astoria on Thursday afternoon. Deceased was 42 years of age and leaves a wife. Mr. Krebs was taken to Astoria about two weeks ago for treatment. He was afflicted with liver complaint, and, as his condition was precarious, an operation was decided upon. For a time he seemed to gain strength, but the organic disorder made recovery impossible, and the end came on Thursday. About two years ago Mr. Krebs received a stab wound in the side and the liver complaint followed. He had been ailing for fully a year, but not until a short time ago was his illness considered dangerous. Mrs. Krebs, to whom deceased was married only a few months ago, was at Astoria with her husband during his illness. The funeral took place on Sunday, and the interment was in the Greenwood cemetery.

The regular meeting of the city council was held on Monday evening, and in the absence of Mayor D. Wiley the chair was occupied by Councilman A. J. Cohn, and the other members present were Homer Mason, M. Leach, S. A. Brodhead and W. H. Cary, with a good attendance of saloon men to watch the fate of the ordinance which increased the saloon license to $800. After the recorder had read the ordinance, the president of the city council asked the saloon men if they had anything to say, when two of them objected to the license as too high. Without either of the councilmen making any remarks the roll was called, when Leach voted yes and Mason, Brodhead and Cary no, while Cohn did not vote. That killed the ordinance and most of the saloon men left feeling happy. The only other business before the council was allowing the following bills: Water rent, $30; electric lights, $14; recorder's salary, $10; marshal's salary, $45; J. A. Taft Co., $31.69; D. T. Edmunds, $1.75; Cohn & Co., $3.05; A. K. Case, $3.05; Wade & Briggs, $17.80; Tillamook Headlight, $4.50.

Through a mistake made by Captain J. J. Dawson in his semi-annual report, we stated in our last issue that Tillamook had 109 inches of rainfall for the year ending Sept. 22nd. That is wrong, it was 150.77 inches, or a little over 12ft. 6in. of rainfall. As the captain appears to be as mad as a fighting cock with the editor, we will hasten to apologize to the weather for him, for fear that we might get a deluge of the four feet of rainfall that the Headlight failed to record. The editor takes his hat off to the weather, but he is not going to get mad with the captain, for when the manuscript is fired back at him he will see he is up against it, for our type stickers follow copy so closely that if it took a sudden exodus through the window they would naturally follow it. Now who's the next to kick the editor? Perhaps Bro. Watson, as it is about time again for him to commence, seeing he did not succeed in "doing up" a brother Woodman in the water business. But the man whom the Oregonian characterized as the little man of Tillamook, who is as small as he is little, and little as he is small, we see has another had attack of the lighthead. Poor fellow, we pity him, for that is the only kind of logic he can fall back upon in advancing the name of ex-Senator J. W. Maxwell as a candidate for governor. How ludicrous it would appear at the republican convention that Mr. Maxwell was proposed for governor by the little man of Tillamook, who is as silly as he is little, and little as he is silly. What a frost would come over the convention. Perhaps Mr. Maxwell will see the point and will not want any more boosting from Bro. Watson, for, as we have said before, it is only putting another nail in the ex-senator's political coffin. Now who's the next to jump upon the editor of the Headlight with steel toes and newspaper abuse? But consider twice before you jump once.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has held that spirits manufactured in the United States can be exported to the Philippines under the same regulations as are applicable to these ports from foreign countries.

Blow at Beet Sugar.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—Commenting to-day on the reduction of the price of sugar in the Missouri River market by the sugar trust, Henry T. Oxnard, president of the American Beet Sugar Association, defined it as another move to crush out beet sugar production in order that the trust might have no opposition.

"If it can succeed in the Missouri River Valley," said he, "it will then turn its attention to the beet factories in Michigan and other sections, and by the power of concentrated capital crush out successively and individually the beet-sugar producers. The trust tries to deceive the public by alleging that the beet producers can still make money at the low price it is trying to establish. This is false, and if it had been true, then the trust would have tried to establish a still lower price. It is not sacrificing 1 1/2 cents per pound in the Missouri River markets to make a price that will still be profitable to the beet sugar men. But this particular move on the part of the sugar trust will fall flat. The beet sugar factories will not sell their sugar in the Missouri River Valley at 1 1/2 cents under the market when a fraction of that 1 1/2 cents will move their sugar to every other market in the United States. What the next move of the trust will be remains to be seen.

"The trust also attempts to justify its action by insinuating that the beet factories have gone out of their rightful sphere in making refined sugar instead of raw sugar to be refined by the trust. Independent beet sugar producers have always made and sold refined beet sugar. It would be putting one's head in the lion's jaws with a vengeance for the beet factories to equip themselves only for the making of raw sugars at prices to be fixed by the trust. Besides, it is an economical blunder to perform in two operations what can be done as well in one.

"The movement on the part of the sugar trust in selling its refined sugar far below the cost to it of raw material, and in the special market which is now reached to some extent by the beet sugar producers, cannot but call down on the head of the trust the condemnation not only of the beet sugar producers, but also of all fair-minded people in the country, and having done this it has placed itself in an exceedingly poor position to go before Congress and ask for the perpetuation of its power as refiners; although it has recently arranged to increase its capital stock to the extent of $15,000,000 to rivet its control of the raw cane product. In view of this act on the part of the sugar trust the United States Congress can ill afford to inaugurate the policy of reducing the present rate of duty by reciprocity or in any other way which would have the certain effect of enriching the trust on one hand, and on the other the killing of the most promising industry in the agricultural business of America."
