Postal Savings Banks.

Among the important twentieth century reforms pressing to the front is the establishment of postal savings banks. Postal savings banks are by no means an untried experiment. They have been established for years in European countries, notably in England, Austria and Germany, to encourage thrift and economy among wage-workers and safeguard their hard-earned savings. Incidentally they have also proved to be an incentive to patriotism in giving each depositor a direct personal interest in the preservation of the national credit and the stability of government.

President McKinley's first postmaster general, Mr. Gary, who was thoroughly familiar with savings banks, managed under private ownership and control, endorsed the postal savings bank system as among the most desirable adjuncts of the Postoffice department. The indisposition of congress to carry out his recommendations is chiefly due to the influence exerted by interests that fear such banks would transfer a large volume of private savings bank deposits to the government depositories.

Among the most earnest champions of postal savings banks is Senator William E. Mason, of Illinois, who has endeavored during several sessions to secure favorable consideration of a bill looking to the early inauguration of a postal savings bank system in this country and who can be depended on to press forward the measure in the coming congress with his usual vigor. During the coming session, as chairman of the senate committee on postoffices and postroads, the Illinois senator will be more potential in securing attention among his associates.

Such great innovations, no matter how popular or imperatively demanded, are not to be carried through congress at the first onset, but require persistent and steady effort by which alone the objections and barriers raised can be overcome. Fortunately for the friends of the postal savings bank, they have in Senator Mason a champion possessed of indomitable courage and tireless activity, who if properly supported will keep up the fight until success crowns his effort.

The Traitor Waits His Doom.

Leon F. Czolgosz, the most infamous assassin in all history, has been convicted, in strict conformity to the law, of the execrable murder of President McKinley. His trial has been speedy, but justice has not been marred in the slightest degree in reaching the consummation most devoutly hoped for by the people, not only of the United States, but of the whole civilized world. His sentence will follow swiftly, and yet deliberately. Then will come the final act for his base life—death in the electric chair. The detestable miscreant received infinitely more consideration at the hands of the outraged people of the United States than he showed his illustrious victim. He struck down with fiendish malignity, paralleled only by Judas, the revered chief magistrate, whose every thought, every inspiration, was for prosperity of the nation's masses. He deserved to have been torn limb from limb, to have been tortured to death, with his agony as long drawn out as he compelled the superb man whom he murdered to suffer. He could not have expected from Christian civilization, against which he had sworn satanic warfare, any pity or the shadow of mercy.

Instead, however, of receiving what stern justice would have awarded to him, Czolgosz was tried fully, fairly and in strict accordance to the laws. He was granted every possible consideration. He had as his counsel two of the most eminent lawyers of Western New York. He was afforded every possible opportunity to defend or extenuate his detestable crime. He was urged to give some reason for his fiendish malignity. He was unmoved, even before his attorneys, his friends in the law. He did not even attempt to say one word in his own behalf. He did not permit the calling of one single witness. He confessed, by his obstinate silence, that there was not the shadow of excuse for his horrible offense. His conviction was inevitable and his punishment will be certain and sure.

The father and brother of the wretched assassin are now in Buffalo, seeking to induce him to confess that he was not alone in his fearful misdeed. It is most sincerely to be hoped that they will succeed where his own attorneys and all the officers of the law have failed. No one in the world can ever be induced to believe that he alone conceived, planned and carried out the devilishly cunning crime. Who were the friends who inspired him and assisted him in every malign way possible? Who was the arch-devil that tied the handkerchief on his hand, concealing the revolver of death with satanic shrewdness? Who instructed him how to execute the most execrable crime the world has ever known—the like of which cannot be found in ancient or modern day?

It would almost be a pity if the infamous assassin should be permitted to go to his dishonored grave without confession. The torture chamber of mediaeval days would drag his secret from him. But this is not to be thought of in these days of enlightened civilization. Many thousands of Americans will, however, regret it as long as they shall live, if the wretch shall not be forced by some means to deliver up to justice his devilish partners in crime. If ever there was a case where the end would justify the means, this would seem to be that case.

Czolgosz convicted, and fairly on the way to pay the all too humane penalty for his foul offense, the first, and the smallest step only, has been taken. The whole brood of anarchy and spawn of chaos must be watched day and night. No more mercy must be shown to them than they would show to the best of the nation. Their infamous mouthings must be stopped with the utmost sternness. If the laws be defective to reach them adequately, to teach them fear, if not respect, let those laws be amended so sweepingly as to force them to silence. Let the gates of the nation be closed to all of the disciples of perdition from the old world.

Chicago has introduced a new requirement that must be met by those desiring to teach in the public schools. All applicants for a teacher's certificate must pass a physical examination. The Chicago Post in commenting on this new action of the board says that comparison, physically, of those now applying with those who applied a year ago "warrant the examiners in pronouncing the test highly valuable." It is without doubt a good idea and will make it necessary for the young teachers to take care of themselves and those who are no longer in good health will be forced to withdraw.

Creseus, the world's trotting champion, hurt his leg when a colt and was ordered killed by his owner, but he escaped death, recovered and from an ornery, most unpromising animal as a yearling has developed into king of the turf. This leads us to remark that there are lots of boys like this horse—mischievous, ornery little rascals who seem as though they ought to be killed on general principles, who later on pan out into splendid men.

The highest price ever paid for beef cattle on the Sioux City market was recorded last Tuesday. Eighteen head of extra choice well-bred Shorthorns, averaging 1,420 pounds, were sold for $6.25 per 100 pounds, $1,670.40 for the lot, or nearly $90 per head.

The elopement of the Massachusetts woman with a boy of 18 is rightly classed as a case of kidnaping. The preponderance of women over men in the Bay state forces the fair sex to take desperate chances.

The pound of butter, the dozen of eggs and the pound of steak are very near together in the matter of prices these days. A man has got to be earning over $1 a day to get even a smell of them.

With pork at $7 per hundred-weight and beans at $2.75 per bushel, the great national dish is getting out of reach of poor people.

A good beefsteak costs 60 cents a pound in Paris and good wine 1 cent a gallon. No wonder the nation is petering out.

The cup will stay. But, my, Lipton did get up scared for a few days.

Personal Notes.

Carrie Nation is said to have decided to settle in New York City and lend a shade of hatchet gaiety to the staid old town.

Tom L. Johnson, mayor of Cleveland, continues climbing the heights of fame. His name and phiz have reached the 5-cent cigar stage.

The high price of potatoes imposes a cruel burden upon those unfortunates who use the festive tuber as a pocket piece to ward off rheumatism.

The Chicago man who is building a boat to navigate Niagara named the craft "A Fool-Killer." It is confidently believed the boat will justify its name.

George G. Vest of Missouri became a United States senator from that state in March, 1879, and at the expiration of his present term in 1903 he will have served twenty-four years consecutively.

It looks like a touch of democracy in high places when Kaiser Wilhelm makes a speech to Russian peasants, and the duke and duchess of York break bread with the men of a Canadian lumber camp.

President Roosevelt as a speaker varies a good deal in the matter of delivery. Sometimes he speaks very rapidly and this especially when deeply moved. But generally he speaks very slowly, choosing his words with great care.

Asthmalene Brings Instant Relief and Permanent Cure in All Cases.

SENT ABSOLUTELY FREE ON RECEIPT OF POSTAL.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, asthma, and though you had over-spoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

We want to send to every sufferer a trial treatment of Asthmalene, similar to the one that cured Mr. Wells. We'll send it by mail POSTPAID. ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE, to any sufferer who will write for it, even on a postal note card, though you are despairing, however bad your case. Asthmalene will relieve and cure. The worse your case, the more glad we are to send it. Do not delay. Write at once, addressing DR. TAFT BROS., MEDICINE CO., 79 East 130th St., N.Y. City. Sold by all Druggists.
