CZOLGOSZ EXECUTED.

Said He was Not Sorry for His Crime.

AUBURN, N.Y., Oct. 29.—Czolgosz retired last night at 10 o'clock, and slept so soundly that when Warden Mead went to the cell shortly before 5 o'clock, the guard inside had to shake the prisoner to awaken him. He sat upon the edge of his cot and made no reply to the warden's greeting of "good morning."

The prison official took from his pocket the death warrant and read it slowly and distinctly to the assassin, who hardly raised his eyes during the perfunctory ceremony. Just as the warden stepped away from the cell door, Czolgosz called to him and said: "I would like to talk with the superintendent." The warden responded: "He will be down presently."

Then the condemned man rolled over on his cot, apparently anxious to sleep again.

At 5:15, however, the guard brought him a pair of dark trousers, with the left leg slit so as to allow the free application of the electrode, and a light gray outing shirt. He was told to get up and put these on, which he did. Contrary to the usual custom, he was given a new pair of shoes. When dressed he laid down on the cot again, and in this attitude Superintendent Collins found him at 5:30, when he went down to visit him.

Wanted to Address Spectators.

The superintendent stood in front of the steel bars, and when the guard had called Czolgosz' attention, he said: "I want to make a statement before you kill me."

"What do you wish to say, Czolgosz?" asked the superintendent.

"I want to make it when there are a lot of people present. I want them to hear me," said the prisoner.

"Well, you cannot," said the superintendent.

"Then I won't talk at all," said the prisoner, sullenly. After the superintendent had left, the guards brought Czolgosz' breakfast, consisting of coffee, toast, eggs and bacon, and he ate with quite a good deal of relish. While he was partaking of this, the witnesses were gathering in the offices of Warden Mead, and at 7:08 the procession passed to the death-chamber, going through the long south corridor.

In the chamber, Electrician Davis, and ex-Warden Thayer, of Dannemora, had arranged the chair test, placing a bank of 22 incandescent lights across the arms and connecting the electrode wires at either end. The witnesses were ordered seated, and then Warden Mead briefly addressed them, saying:

"You are here to witness the legal death of Leod F. Czolgosz. I desire that you keep your seats and preserve absolute silence in the death-chamber, no matter what may transpire. There are plenty of guards and prison officials to preserve order and attend to the proper details."

The prison physician, Dr. Gerin, and Dr. Carlos F. McDonald, of New York, took a position to the left of the chair, Warden Mead stood directly in front, and Electrician Davis retired to the little room containing the electrical switch-board. Thayer gave the signal and the current was turned through the electric lights, flooding the chamber with brilliant light and dramatically showing the power that was used to kill the prisoner. Warden Mead gave the signal to have the prisoner brought in, and at 7:10:30 o'clock Chief Keeper Tupper swung open the big steel door leading to the condemned cells, and as the steel bars behind which Czolgosz had been kept were swung aside two guards marched the prisoner out into the corridor, two other following, and the Chief Keeper walked in front.

The guards on either side of Czolgosz had hold of his arms, as if either to support him or to keep him from making a demonstration. As he stepped over the threshold he stumbled, but they held him up, and as they urged him forward toward the chair he stumbled again on the little rubber-covered platform upon which the chair rests. His head was erect, and with his gray flannel shirt turned back at the neck, he looked quite boyish. He was intensely pale and as he tried to throw his head back and carry himself erect, his chin quivered very perceptibly.

As he was being seated he looked about at the assembled witnesses with quite a steady stare, and said:

"I killed the President because he was an enemy of the good people—of the working people."

His voice trembled slightly at first, but gained strength with each word, and he spoke perfect English.

"I am not sorry for my crime," he said loudly, just as the guard pushed his head back on the rubber head-rest and drew the strap across his forehead and chin. As the pressure on the straps tightened and bound the jaw tightly, he mumbled:

"I am awfully sorry I could not see my father."

It was just exactly 7:11 o'clock when he crossed the threshold, but a minute had elapsed, and he had just finished the last statement, when the strapping was completed and the guards stepped back. Warden Mead raised his hand, and at 7:12:30 Electrician Davis turned the switch that threw 1700 volts of electricity into the living body.

The rush of the current threw the body so hard against the straps that they creaked perceptibly. The hands clinched suddenly, and the whole attitude was one of extreme tension. For 45 seconds the full current was kept on, and then slowly the electrician threw the switch back, reducing the current volt by volt until it was cut off entirely.

Then, just as it had reached that point, he threw the lever back again for two or three seconds. The body, which had collapsed as the current was reduced, stiffened up again against the straps. When it was turned off again Dr. MacFarland stepped to the chair and put his hand over the heart.

He said he felt no pulsation, but suggested that the current be turned on for a few seconds again. Once more the body became rigid. At 7:15 the current was turned off for good. From the time Czolgosz had left his cell until the full penalty was paid, less than four minutes had elapsed. The physicians present used the stethoscope and other tests to determine if any life remained, and at 7:17 the warden, raising his hand, announced:

"Gentlemen, the prisoner is dead."

The witnesses filed from the chamber, many of them visibly affected, and the body was taken from the chair and laid on the operating table.

Rev. Cordelle Herrick, chaplain of the prison, was in the death chamber, ready for any call that might be made for his services. He was not wanted by the prisoner, however.

Clothing and personal effects of the prisoner were burned under the direction of Warden Mead shortly after the execution.

When the body of Czolgosz had been moved from the room where he was killed to the autopsy table Auburn prison returned to the routine of his ordinary life. The prisoners who had been locked in their cells, were released at 7:45 o'clock, and the prison work was resumed at once. There was no excitement among the convicts. Scarcely a hundred people had gathered outside the prison gate to watch the witnesses enter and wait until they reappeared.

Ambushed by Blacks.

COLUMBIA, Miss., Oct. 29.—The town of Columbia and vicinity was thrown into great excitement yesterday by several messengers from the vicinity of Ball town, La., about 25 miles from here, who brought the news that a race riot had been precipitated between the whites and blacks of that section by the shooting and burning of the negro, Bill Morris, who criminally assaulted and almost murdered Mrs. John Hall a few days ago. Several runners brought the news that numerous white men were killed, and that the negroes were arming themselves for the fray. This information created the wildest excitement, and a number of men, headed by Deputy Sheriff Branton, of this county, and Marshal T. T. Ford, of Columbia, all fully armed, left for the scene of trouble.

NEHALEM.

Dr. Wiley, of Tillamook, was called to Nehalem on Sunday to attend the wife of William Crawford.

Born, to the wife of W. Crawford, on the 28th inst., a daughter.

The funeral of Captain S. Thompson, who died suddenly at the mouth of the river on the 22nd inst., took place Friday. Nearly the whole community attended the funeral, the mill and logging camp closing for the day.

The coal experts who have been here the past week left again on Saturday.

The Harrison came in on Thursday, and left again on Saturday.

P. H. M. Smith is building a fine boat for L. McFee.

Daisy Smith, (nee Sales) and her husband left on the Harrison, bound for North Carolina.

Contractor Vedder has Nick Drostoffs store building well under way.

Prof. G. A. Walker closed a five months term of school in Dist. 28 on Friday. He will shortly open a private school at Nehalem.

Chas Pyc has gone outside to look at some property near Portland.

A large raft of logs was taken down to the mill on Tuesday.

L. McFee has returned from Taku Inlet, Alaska, and has moved his floating palace up near Foley Creek.

Will Frazier, hook-tender at Chisholm's camp, came very near being killed Tuesday evening, being struck by a swerving log which knocked him down and rolled over him. All that saved him was a depression in the ground. As it was he escaped with a severe bruising.

COULSONBURG.

N. Dye made a trip to Sheridan this week. He was accompanied by his two sons, Frank and Connie, who were in route for Oregon City to look for employment.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer, who recently came from Ohio, visited at N. Coulson's the first of this week.

While G. T. Coulson, Frank and Connie Dye, were out hunting Thursday, there was what might have been a serious accident occurred. Connie was loading his gun, and in some way or other pulled the trigger, and as the gun was in range with Coulson's right foot, the ball struck his big toe, inflicting a slight wound.

Mr. Swab, two daughters and son, arrived home from prune picking Thursday evening.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
