Keep Your Eyes on the Anti's. In county politics it looks as though men are seeking the offices instead of the offices seeking the men. Probably the republican convention will want something to say, and for that reason many a politician have found out to their sorrow there is many a slip between the cup and the lip. As an instance of this in the last convention, made up of representative republicans, the anti-Sappington and anti-Maxwell sentiment which predominated there. We have taken some pains to ascertain whether that sentiment prevails today. It does, and to a larger extent than it did two years ago. We simply state these things as fact, for the county is still anti-Maxwell and anti-Sappington to the very core, and those who attempt to antagonize this popular sentiment will find out that a large majority of republicans are anxiously waiting the time to go into the primaries and convention to express their anti-Maxwell and anti-Sappington sentiments. Isn't that so, boys?

Honor those who Deserve Honor. Some of the state newspapers are opposed to Mr. H. W. Scott becoming U.S. senator because he was antagonistic to the McKinley administration. That is a contracted view of the situation. Mr. Scott's public record should be judged as a whole, in a broad and comprehensive light. Because he has been aggressive and in advance of public opinion on some questions is something, in our judgment, which commends him as a man of keen discernment. Mr. Scott has occupied an important and prominent position in the development of the state, and he has succeeded where hundreds have failed. We are not going to say he never erred in judgment—who has not at times—but it is unfair to hunt them up and magnify them for the purpose of obliterating his many admirable qualities in his effort to make Oregon a great state. When some of the democratic newspapers are willing to drop their party prejudice and admit that this is an honor which should be conferred upon Mr. Scott, brings us back again to that which we advanced a few weeks since—personal merit which the citizens of Oregon should take pride in honoring.

Where's the Enthusiasm? Bro. Watson has been to Portland and was buttonholed by a Telegram reporter and made to say there was great enthusiasm in Tillamook county on account of the Lewis & Clark centennial in Portland in 1905. That is not so, for we surely should have seen the enthusiasm bristling out somewhere before this. But it is most amusing to hear Bro. Watson give Portland hell when he is in Tillamook and then fall all over himself when in Portland representing what is not true. Portland business men and capitalists have never paid much attention to the earnest entreaties of Tillamookers for a number of years for better transportation so as to be brought into closer business and commercial relation with that city. In spite of Portland's indifference, coldness and mossbackism, Tillamook is the most prosperous county in Oregon because she has found markets in San Francisco, the Sound and other cities for her products and would not allow the Portland merchants to fleece the dairymen 1 1/2 cents a pound for handling their cheese. Consequently there is no enthusiasm in Tillamook on account of the centennial, as all will readily admit who do not want to make fools of themselves when they go to Portland and are buttonholed by a newspaper reporter.

Word of Advice. Evidently the democrats intend putting up a strong ticket at the next state election, for all indications seem to infer that they will try and find the best timber possible for their state ticket. The republican party will have to quit its factional dispute, especially in Multnomah county, if it intends to rise to the occasion. Activity and enthusiasm in democratic quarters must be met with the same thing by republicans. It may appear of not much importance to call attention to this, but no one can tell what a rule or ruin faction will do to gain its own ends or the voters do to down political bosses. The vote in Multnomah county at the last election was a great surprise to the republican party to have its legislative ticket defeated. But it is well to note the sign of the times in New York also, that political bosses and the henchmen had to succumb to the will of the people. And we may add that it is a good plan to down the bosses and political dictators in every community, for cut and dried slates have been too much in vogue for the interest of the general public.

Don't be Extinguished, Professor. Prof. B. O. Snuffer's name is connected with that of state superintendent of schools on the democratic ticket, or in other words they want to put his name on the democratic slate and the political wire pullers at the democratic convention will see that no "dark horse" is put up against him—that's the way they fix things in the two political parties, and now is the season of the year when those with political bees in their bonnets get in and do their work. We don't want to do a thing to Prof. Snuffer at the next election, and for that reason we think he should consider twice before he consents to allow himself to be put up for the purpose of being knocked down like some Aunt Sally. There is no doubt but what the professor's name would add strength to the democratic ticket for he is a good school man, but here is the sticking point, it is not characteristic of the professor to throw his energies into something where there is no likelihood of success and for the purpose of making a futile attempt to left the democratic party in Oregon out of the slough of despair. Prof. Snuffer will obtain a more lasting reputation as the principal of Tillamook City public school than he will by running on a democratic ticket, for he is engaged in a field where the demand for high school education becomes more and more apparent, and if he is instrumental in bringing this about the Headlight would take great pleasure in future years in suggesting the professor's name as a candidate for state superintendent of public schools—on a republican ticket.

Railroad Procrastination Again. We have published Mr. William Reid's report for several reasons: Because it contains a good many truths, some inaccuracies and with nothing at the back of it to build a railroad. First, this report was prepared for the 52 stockholders of the Portland, Nehalem & Tillamook Railroad Company. Let us state that these stockholders have subscribed $25 each towards an undertaking which will cost several millions, with the understanding that Eastern capitalists would be induced to put up the balance. This is the same state of affairs which existed twelve months ago, and as long as the Portland capitalists have no more faith in the proposed railroad than to put up $25 each, it is hardly to be expected that Eastern capitalists will readily take up with the proposition and open their sack to help a city like Portland, which backs it with but a few paltry dollars. This is this unvarnished truth, and to make the report doubly interesting the Oregonian had just as well add the amount of capital this company has in the bank to build the road. Another thing, Mr. Reid has not even obtained trackage over the lines out of Portland, probably because the railroad companies have no confidence in what Mr. Reid is trying to bring about. We object to two things in the report. Mr. Reid takes a recent report of the Port of Tillamook Commission to prove that the improvement of Tillamook bar would not be necessary if his railroad scheme is carried out. Had the people of Tillamook agitated for the improvement of Tillamook bar twelve years ago when Mr. Reid ran a railroad survey through the county and was going to give us railroad connections, probably by this time the bar would have been improved and a railroad built as well. But listening to Mr. Reid's procrastination, Tillamook has neither today, and continues to speculate where and when relief will come to enable the wonderful resources of the county to be developed. Railroad or no railroad, the improvement of Tillamook bar must be persistently insisted upon. Mr. Reid fooled the people once in his effort to build a railroad to Tillamook with other people's money, and anything he may now say in opposition to the improvement of Tillamook bar will be met with disgust and indignation. The people of Tillamook county have waited long and patiently for relief, and they have a right to expect that the general government will come to their relief. Another thing we must take exceptions to. Mr. Reid says "Until this mileage is built Tillamook will be practically valueless, even to her own people." Such an assertion is ridiculous, and if the rest of the report is on a par with this, then the local and Eastern capitalists have a right to question Mr. Reid's veracity. It is a well known fact that Tillamook county is the most prosperous section of Oregon, and we will defy Mr. Reid to point out a large section of country in the state where the farmers hold their land from $50, $75 and even $100 an acre and refuse to sell at those figures. That is the condition of affairs and the value of dairy ranches in Tillamook, as Mr. Reid would find out if he undertakes to buy the right of way through one with the few $25 put up by the stockholders. But how absurd it is for the company to say that Tillamook is valueless, when, to buy a right of way across but one dairy farm would bust that company. Mr. Reid had better confine himself to the truth when writing about Tillamook. The Oregonian the same day said in an editorial, "Yet its people forge ahead in their own way and grow year by year in prosperity."

To Our Young Married People. We are glad to see that quite a number of our young people have been married the past few months. The climax came on Saturday, when the County Clerk issued five marriage licenses on that day. This places new responsibilities upon our young men and young women, and in making homes for themselves, it entirely rests with them what kind of homes they will be. Some men make their homes banking places, while others take pride in and enjoy their homes in the strict sense of the term. A home is more often what a woman makes it—a place of enjoyment and beauty or a comfortable, unattractive abode. Let us give a word of kindly advice to the young people who have recently been married, and especially to the young women. Take pride in making your homes places of rest and comfort, of love and cheerfulness, of beauty and enjoyment. Home is what we make it, whether we have little or much of this world's goods. Many young persons, after they have been married a few years, have deplored their lot, but upon a closer investigation it is often seen that the home is cold and uninviting, where the husband and wife are not pulling in one direction. Consequently, other attractions induce men to neglect their homes, their wives and their families, all because the home was not what it should be. A peep behind the scene only shows this to be too true. Let our young married people take pride in their homes from the start, and continuing to make them more attractive year by year, they will never regret doing so when they become older, for there is no place like home is the experience of the editor of the Headlight.

The astonishing feature of the development of Tillamook County, in so far as it has been developed, is that it has proceeded steadily from year to year without adequate transportation facilities—in fact, practically without such facilities during a number of months of each year. The most astonishing thing however, in connection with that strip of coast land, the resources of which are so varied and the climate of which is so mild, is that it has been all this time and is still without a railway communication with the markets of its own state. In resources of forest, stream and pasture lands; with coal deposits undeveloped and other mineral deposits of undetermined value and extent, with opportunities for home building unsurpassed in any state, this picturesque section of Oregon remains shut in and shut out, so to speak. Yet its people forge ahead in their own way and grow year by year in prosperity, if not in commercial development. "The railroad will come by and by," they say, and in the hope thus voiced many settlers have grown old and some of them have died, and still the railroad has not made its way into the land of the promise.—Oregonian.

It is admitted and is a source of comment that the daily and weekly press is becoming more independent every year. That is bad news for the boss politicians who depend upon the party newspapers.

"Political" economy in Tillamook appears to be too hot for Commissioner Parrish and he is likely to make it interesting. The commissioner has had his eyes opened since he was elected.
