

Mrs. Alderman's Mother is Dead.

Word was received by wire while Mrs. Hy. Alderman was attending the services in the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening that her mother, Mrs. Sarah M. Kelly, had died in Portland that day. Mr. and Mrs. Alderman left at eleven o'clock that night for Portland. Deceased was the wife of Mr. J. M. Kelly and was 54 years of age. She had been in failing health for some months, and her death, though sudden, was not wholly unexpected. On July 12 Mrs. Kelly suffered a stroke of paralysis, and for several weeks her condition was critical. She rallied somewhat, however, and for some time has been able to be about the house, though visibly frail and failing. Sunday morning about 5 o'clock she had a second stroke, from which, about 7:30, she passed painlessly away. Of a gentle, retiring and affectionate nature she was greatly beloved by her family and friends. She has lived in Oregon since her early childhood, having come across the plains in 1852. She was a daughter of John Tucker Scott, who lived for many years in Forest Grove, died there in 1880. She was married in 1869 to J. M. Kelly, of Yamhill County, and with her husband and family, resided in La Fayette until 1893, since which time she has lived in Portland. Her husband and four children, Mrs. H. H. Alderman, of Tillamook; Paul R., Carl S. and Emily Q. Kelly, of Portland, survive her. She was a sister of H. W. Scott, Mrs. M. P. Cook, Mrs. A. S. Dunaway, Mrs. C. A. Coburn and Mrs. H. L. Palmer, of Portland, and Mrs. D. C. Latourette, of Oregon City.

Governor Van Sant has determined to fight the great railway combine, as represented by the Northern Securities company, to the last ditch. He has decided to call an extra session of the Legislature for the purpose of providing funds for legal battle, and says that, should the Legislature fail to appropriate the amount asked, he will use his own private fortune to carry on the contest.

Between midnight and Sunday morning, about $5000 worth of plate glass windows in the business portion of Eaton, O., were broken by William Rossman. Rossman used stones for demolishing 143 windows, 113 of which were large plate-glass windows of business houses. Rossman is a member of a prominent family and was discharged recently from an asylum. He remained up all night deliberately for his work of destruction, and was landed in jail with difficulty. Rossman's hands are badly cut. His mania before commitment for insanity was the breaking of windows.

The presence of a big crowd which, despite the storm, assembled to witness the emerging of the submarine boat Fulton, that craft rose from the bottom of the New York Bay Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock, and all well and greatly surprised to find there was a storm raging. The test of the Fulton's staying qualities was highly satisfactory, not only to the officers of the company that built her and the naval officers present but to those who went to the bottom of the boat. They report there was not the slightest discomfort to them during their more than 15 hours of submersion below the surface.

MURDER IS OUT.

Thugs in Jail Who Slew James Morrow.

Haunted by the knowledge that they had been implicated in the shedding of human blood and unable by word and action to hide the fact of their guilt, John Wade, alias Kid McFadden, and William H. Dalton were arrested Sunday morning, charged with being implicated in the murder of James Barkley Morrow last Thursday morning on the East Side, Portland. Charles Smith and William H. Martin were also arrested, as they had been going around town with Wade and Dalton. The two latter are the principals. Wade says that Dalton killed Morrow. Dalton says: "Wade fired the shot which killed Morrow." The police state that Wade is the actual murderer, although he is placing the blame on Dalton. The arrests were made by Detectives Day and Weiner and Policemen Carpenter, Bailey and Gibson. The four prisoners were at first taken to the city jail, but when the fact became known around town that men charged with the murder of young Morrow were arrested, and that one man blamed it on the other, threats were openly made on the East Side to lynch both men. "To see that no mistake was made," as one man put it. Guards of policemen were placed inside the city jail, in view of the arrival of a surging crowd outside. During the afternoon, when Wade and Dalton had made their confession, the two men were rapidly driven to the county jail and were then taken elsewhere, the location of their detention being kept secret by the police. It is believed that Wade and Dalton are out of town. Threats were made on the East Side to organize a force of mechanics and march on the city jail, demanding that the men or men who killed Morrow be given over to them. Fortunately for law and order, no outbreak occurred.

It is understood that Dalton will give state's evidence against his former friend Wade. Both Wade and Dalton admit being present when Morrow was murdered. They thought the unfortunate young man was a gambler, who they thought carried home large sums of money to his home on the East Side nearly every night. Dalton says that Wade was the highwayman who fired the fatal shot, and the police believe his story.

[From Tuesday Evening's Telegram]

Hysterically weeping, waiting and fumbling the pages of a small Bible in his cell, William Strickland, or Dalton, as he and the police prefer to call him, is rapidly becoming a gibbering maniac. Unless some change comes over the man's spirit within the next few days, he will probably lose his reason, and go to the asylum instead of, as the prospects are now, to the gallows.

If Strickland is hanged he will have to be carried to the scaffold. Now the authorities are of the opinion that Strickland is the murderer of James B. Morrow. Until last night the general opinion was that Joseph Ewing, alias John Wade, alias "Kid" McFadden, was the assassin.

Repeated changes in Strickland's confession and his thorough and complete demoralization, mentally, are the reasons assigned for this shifting of suspicion on the part of the officials.

Strickland is now almost a wreck, and has lost every particle of courage he ever possessed. As to his statements, they are being steadily altered. At first he swore that he was a block distant when Ewing, his partner, killed young Morrow. Since that original confession Strickland has explained that he was half a block away, then 20 feet, and now he declares that he was two feet from Morrow when the shot was fired. Within a few hours the police believe Strickland will acknowledge that he and not his companion murdered Morrow.

Another change in his statement to the authorities, made Sunday morning, has been offered by the miserable man. Strickland at first asserted that Ewing carried both revolvers when the crime was committed. He now says that he carried one of the weapons, the .38-caliber. The .44-caliber revolver was used for the murder, and Strickland says that Ewing, alias Wade had that gun.

In further support of the present suspicion past actions of the men are quoted. Strickland and Ewing both agree that it was the former that fired three pistol shots at a brakeman as they were coming to Portland from Seattle. Strickland, also, was the man that carried the gun when the Villard Hotel was held up a week ago to-night, 10 minutes after the gang's arrival in town. Arguing from these known facts the authorities opine that Strickland was in possession of one of the guns, and, having used one before, he probably fired the shot.

It is a question which man had the .44-caliber revolver. Strickland says it was Ewing's gun and the latter declares it was the former's. Charles Smith, the boy companion of Ewing in his wanderings, tells the police that Strickland bought both weapons in Seattle. According to Smith's own statement to Detective Day Sunday afternoon Ewing handed him the empty brass shell from the .44-caliber gun and told him its history. Ewing also ordered Smith to keep the revolver shell in his pocket. It was afterwards found there by the police, when Smith was arrested and searched.

That Ewing is indifferent to his fate and says that Strickland is guilty, and that Ewing is taking the situation in a jovial manner leads the police to contend that he has no murder on his mind. On the contrary, it is argued that Strickland is guilty, owing to his lack of courage. The latter asked for a Bible last evening, and was soon accommodated. Strickland does not sleep and cannot eat, and is crying continually. Ewing is enjoying all the material comforts allowed him, and is not giving attention to his spiritual welfare.

FEEDING A PUMPKIN.

Nebraska Farmer's Successful Scheme to Win a Ten-Dollar Prize. "Say, did you know that pumpkins could be fed and made to grow to an enormous size?" asked a retired farmer of the Omaha Bee man.

"It's a fact," he continued. "I remember one spring that my father was elected secretary of a county agricultural society and he told me that he was going to offer a prize of ten dollars for the largest pumpkin exhibited at the fair. I determined to get that prize and I did. "How did I do it? By raising the biggest pumpkin, of course. I selected a vine that looked unusually thrifty and gave it extra care until pumpkins had formed about as large as a baseball. Selecting one of these I began to feed it. Yes, feed it. I cut a gash in the stem and run a soft cotton rag through it. Then I covered the place with wax. Every night I set a pan of milk on each side of the stem and put an end of the rag in each pan. That pumpkin would drink up that milk faster than a pig. It would absorb from a quart to three pints every night and it began to swell at an enormous rate. When the fair opened I loaded that pumpkin into a wagon by the aid of a derrick - it weighed 308 pounds—and took it down to agricultural hall. Of course I got the ten dollars.

"I have often wondered how many pies that would have made. Estimating 23 per cent. waste, there were about 202 pounds of pie material and 51-3 ounces to the pie would make—"

GALLANT CONDUCT OF PIPER.

Instances of Bravery Shown in Perilous Quarters.

There have been several instances of bravery similar to that of the gallant Gordon piper at Dargai, who continued to play after both his legs had been shot off, says the London Chronicle. One of these, which occurred during the Peninsular wars, was almost identical with that of the capture of the Dargai ridge. It was at Vimiera, when the ten Seventy-first Highlanders hurled themselves against the French as a counter-stroke to the attempt of Kellerman to recover six captured guns, and drove back their assailants in headlong rout. When the Highlanders were advancing Piper Stewart, of the grenadier company, fell, his thigh being broken by a musket shot. Yet he refused to quit the field, and, sitting on a knapsack, continued to inspire his comrades with a pibroch, saying: "De'il ha'e me, lads, if ye shall want for music!" For this he received a handsome stand of pipes from the Highland society of London.

Again, there is the historical incident of Pipe Major Mackay, who, when his regiment had formed square to receive a charge of French cavalry at Waterloo, stepped outside the square and strode round the bayonet bristling ranks playing his most inspiring pibroch in the presence of his comrades—an incident which forms the subject of one of Mr. Bogle's finest battle pictures, exhibited at the academy a year or two ago.

Banana Pie.

Line a pie pan with a crust and bake in a hot oven. When done cover the bottom with slices of bananas cut long and thin. Two small bananas are enough for one pie. Then fill the pan with the following custard: Two glasses of milk, two tablespoonfuls of corn starch, which has been dissolved in a little milk; yolks of two eggs, one teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Boil this in a double boiler until it thickens, then pour in the pie pan. Cover the top with the whites of the eggs, and place in the oven just long enough to give it a rich, golden brown color.—Home Magazine.

Eggs with Green Peppers.

Chop two large green peppers fine, first removing all the seeds. Put them into the chafing dish, with two tablespoonfuls of butter, and after this has melted let the peppers cook for about two minutes. Beat up six eggs in a bowl with a scant cupful of milk. If it is half cream, so much the better. Put this into the chafing dish with the butter and peppers, cook until thick, season with a little salt and serve.—Good Housekeeping.

The Hot Bath.

Either morning or night is a good time for a cold water bath or even a tepid one, but a hot water bath should be taken just before retiring, inasmuch as it is relaxing. Never bathe just before or after a hearty meal. Bathe after, instead of before, exercising, and bathe regularly every day.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Young women of the University of Chicago are rejoicing over the announcement that they will be permitted to dance in their gymnasium classes, despite the fact that these classes are to be held during the winter in the Sunday school room of the Hyde Park Baptist church. The Chicago Inter Ocean says positive assurance has been given by Dr. T. W. Goodspeed, secretary of the board of trustees, that the "coeds" would not be forbidden this pleasure, which is the favorite exercise of all the young women.
