A Word of Advice.

The HEADLIGHT is a little surprised that any opposition to the renomination of Mr. B. L. Eddy for joint representative of Tillamook and Yamhill should be countenanced by any one in the republican party of this county.

The Fire in the Rear.

Congressman Shackelford, one of the thirteen Missouri Democrats in the House who voted against an appropriation of $500,000 for the shelter and protection of American soldiers in the Philippines, bluntly remarks that "if we spend half a million dollars in building permanent barracks in the Philippines it will be used as an additional argument for keeping the islands, and to that I am opposed."

land a new chapter of infamy is opened in American politics.

An Awful Indictment.

The telegraph brought the news the other day that two dancehouse girls had committed suicide at Nome. A day or two before two young women died in the McMinnville telephone office from self-administered poison.

It is a shocking state of morality and the cause is not far to seek. It lies in lack of moral training from childhood. There is a critical period in the life of every boy and girl. Lessons written then on plastic minds are made with pen of iron and the point of a diamond.

One trouble is that parents shirk their duty. The mother mostly forms the child, and so she is mostly to blame. But the father is not guiltless if his own life is at fault or if he is blind to any lack in the mother's teaching and discipline.

It is not nearly so important for a child to have "good blood" as for it to have wise training. They who go astray come from genteel residences as much as from the homes of the poor.

Some people think that County Judge Sappington is a smart politician in delaying the building of bridges across the Wilson and Trask river until now, with the expectation that he will be able to capture political support thereby.

The new Governor of Washington appears to be a lightning striker after President Roosevelt's style, and is causing a little commotion with politicians.

Tillamook is not the only county where one member of the commissioners' court became a silent partner in contracting for the county. Commissioner Mack, of Multnomah county, is a furniture dealer, and he was a silent partner in a furniture dicker for that county, entering into an agreement with one of his clerks, paying him a commission, to put in the bid. Of course, it was accepted. And, like the Headlight in the matter of County Judge Sappington's silent partnership in the bid to build Beaver creek bridge, the Oregonian has exposed the whole transaction. But for doing so that newspaper has been fined for $50,000 for suggesting that criminal proceedings be instituted against Commissioner Mack for malfeasance while in office.

Some of the towns in the Willamette Valley are having trouble over the saloon problem, not so much that people object to them as the tendency of saloon keepers to violate and keep their places open contrary to law. Albany has made a start and succeeded in having the saloon keepers arrested. There is trouble brewing at Eugene and at other towns on the same subject. This is how the Eugene Register deals with it.

There is no necessity for Oregon towns to be in the throes of local upheaval on the saloon question so long as the laws governing saloons are strictly enforced. The failure to enforce the laws is the foundation for all anti-saloon agitation prevalent throughout the state and offers what excuse exists, for organization of an anti-saloon league in Oregon. So long as the saloons are conducted in accordance with law we consider their business as legitimate and as much entitled to protection as any other kind of business, but when they are allowed to overstep the bounds of law and granted privileges in violation of law, a newspaper fails in its duty to the public if it does not point out the violation and demand that it be stopped.

The editor is soon to buy a shirt. Strange an extravagance as it may seem, we have determined to do so. With this end in view we wish the dealers to submit sealed bids, so that the job may be let to the lowest bidder. Quality and style don't count. Any old thing will do. Send in your bids.—Sheridan Sun.

What's the matter, Bro., has someone been sending to all the print shops in the state for the lowest bidder for a two by four job of printing because they are under the impression that you charged two bits too much? Pity the troubles of a country editor. And this puts us in mind of those who preach protection to industries and then turn round and send to Portland for their printing when it could and should have been done at home.

Some of the politicians and office seekers in Tillamook appear to have the spirit of Ananias and Sapphira, for they are evidently circulating a lot of untruth about those who are their opponents. It is the means some politicians use, but it only causes a reaction in favor of those whom they try to defame, so it is well not to listen to these perverters of the truth.

It is stated that the people in several of the states stood by the beet sugar men and bought little cheap sugar of the trust. It seems that monopoly overreaches itself and loses by its own craftiness.

"You had better hurry!" if you are a candidate for political favor, for there is only one office for a legion of aspirants who think that the party they belong to owes them a living.

The politicians are in evidence. With a beaming countenance and cordial shake of the hand, or in earnest confidential conversation, it is not hard to read what they are up to.

To the political aspirants. Get there if you can. If you can't, saw wood and declare that you wouldn't take a public office if you were you.

We hope at least one person in each precinct will be left who is not an aspirant for office in Tillamook.

SUES THE "OREGONIAN."

For Exposing Silent Partnership in County Contracts.

J. G. Mack, Saturday filed suit against The Oregonian Publishing Company for $50,000 damages. His brother-in-law, Albert Abraham, appears as his attorney. The complaint is very brief. It recites that the Oregonian published the following words concerning Mr. Mack: "Statute of 1901 provides no penalty, but criminal law may be invoked."

It is charged that the publication was false and defamatory, and that the plaintiff was injured in his reputation and asks damages in the sum of $50,000. Mr. Mack does not say that any of the statements as to the carpet transaction made by The Oregonian were not correct. His grievance seems to be that The Oregonian pointed out how proceedings against him might be begun.

A demand has been made upon Governor Orman by Secretary of State Hay at Washington for an investigation of the destruction last summer of the buildings of William Radcliffe, an Englishman, located on Grand Mesa Lakes by a mob. Radcliffe appealed to British Ambassador Paucetote for redress, demanding $55,000 damages of Colorado. The trouble grew out of a dispute between ranchmen and Radcliffe over fishing privilege, and culminated in the killing of a ranchman named Womack by one of Radcliffe's men. A few days later the buildings on the lake were destroyed by fire, it was claimed, started by friends of Womack in revenge of his death. The matter was originally referred to Gov. Orman early in January, and, according to the News, a communication from Secretary Hay has just been received asking what had become of it.

Captains Bolles and Bulger, United States local inspectors of steam vessels, filed their report in the matter of the loss of the Walla Walla. The blame is placed on the faulty lookout kept on the Walla Walla by the officer in charge of the bridge, who was in the chart-house, and the men on the lookout, one of whom, Wilson, was not at his post of duty. Captain Hall and Second Officer Lupp are exonerated.

MOTHERHOOD

The greatest ambition of American men and women is to have homes blessed with children. The woman afflicted with female disease is constantly menaced with becoming a childless wife. No medicine can restore dead organs, but Wine of Cardui does regulate derangements that prevent conception; does prevent miscarriage; does restore weak functions and shattered nerves and does bring babies to homes barren and desolate for years. Wine of Cardui gives women the health and strength to bear healthy children. You can get a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui from your dealer.

WINE OF CARDUI

143 Market Street, Memphis, Tenn., April 14, 1901. In February, 1901, I took one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Theoford's Black-Draught. I had never married fifteen years and had never given birth to a child until I took Wine of Cardui. Now I am mother of a fine baby girl which was born March 21, 1901. Now my home is happy and I never will be without Wine of Cardui in my house again. Mrs. J. W. C. SMITH.
