Communication.

[TO EDITOR OF TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT.]

Dear Sir.—While your article in last week's issue of the Headlight about the shooting of Reddaway's cow, is substantially correct, please allow me space to add the following:

This animal was one of a band of wild cattle that had been hunted and shot at all the summer and chased over three ranches by Reddaway, an alleged butcher, although he had neither slaughter house nor pen, but with armed assistants shot his cattle down wherever he could find them.

These cattle had over-run me for more than two months, and although I had begged, ordered and threatened the owner regarding them, he did nothing for my relief, except to reduce them one at a time by shooting, thereby making the others still more wild.

Before taking the rifle as a last resort, my own cows had been rendered wild and died up; an animal I was fattening for beef was run off and spoiled for that purpose; my fences demolished, and my pasture eaten; my wife chased indoors, and myself knocked down and trampled by one vicious brute. Aside from the annoyance and personal injury, one hundred dollars would not reimburse me for the damage suffered from these cattle. The only regret I have was my failure to shoot the animal dead, and of which my political enemies endeavored to make capital. CHAS. F. YBE.

COULSONBURG.

Protracted meeting which has been in progress for over two weeks closed Sunday with good results.

E. T. Coulson went to Tillamook Friday, returning Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Dye spent a few days last week with her brother M. Woods, of Blaine.

Miss Clara Bevins, while visiting Miss Dinnie Coulson, of this place unexpectedly took the mumps, and has been staying there the past week.

NEHALEM.

Merit Batterson, accompanied by his father, took his wife out to Portland on the Elmore for medical treatment.

Messrs. Wheeler and Gamble came in last week. It is said their mill will soon resume operation.

The prevailing storm has made high waters and put a stop to fishing for steel-heads.

The coal company has another expert on the ground. It is to be hoped they will find something better than anything thus far developed.

SPRUCE.

Mr. Hayes and son are building a cottage for a lady who has located a homestead near him, who lives in Portland.

Most of the children are sick with throat trouble.

Tillamook is truly a land of milk and honey.

Eugene Atkinson is hunting here and he killed three wild cats.

Spruce has sufficient water power for a manufacturing plant during fall, winter and spring months.

A limb struck a cow on the back during the wind storm on Mr. Perry's place and its recovery is doubtful.

Moral. Don't pull the horses leg for a stifle until you have thoroughly examined his foot.

BLAINE.

Your worthy correspondent having gotten into quite a scrape, failed to turn you of the happenings of this place. He not only ran out of items, but cut his finger, lost his pen and had to money to buy stationery. Hope some of the Prohibitions will get into office so Blaine can boast of better times and the power of scraping a sheriff out of the mud.

The tally paper given by Mr. Smith was a grand success.

Mr. Dickens was united in marriage with Miss Lulu Hays last Wednesday. In the evening the boys managed to arouse the generosity of the young couple by serenading them in the popular fashion.

We are very sorry to hear that Miss Belle Curl has been so unfortunate as to introduce the mumps at this place.

Blaine is very much in need of a ninth grade teacher at present.

I. Woods and wife called on M. Woods last Friday.

Sidney Moon, who went to the valley, returned last Friday carrying with him the reports of possessing a wife and a very large fortune. He is intending to set up a first class furniture store, so your correspondent is informed.

Mr. Grist is at present making his fortune killing wild cat. Having treed one, he chopped the tree down to get it. Not wishing to waste ammunition, he let the poor thing fight with his dog, but "Faithful Jack" soon conquered the ferocious beast.

As the pen is becoming unruly we will stop and save some news for next week.

BOULDER CREEK.

A small party of relatives and intimate friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Bays, Wednesday, February 12th, to witness the marriage of their daughter, Lulu, to Mr. Richard Dingus, of Willamina. The bride wore a pretty gown of cream hennetta, trimmed with silk, lace, ribbons and gold buttons, and the groom, of course wore black. Rev. T. E. Armstrong, pastor of the U. B. church at Beaver, pronounced the solemn and impressive words which gave them to each other for all time, and then those present hastened to congratulate them; after this the company sat down to a most enjoyable feast prepared by Mrs. Bays. The happy couple left Thursday morning for their home at Willamina. Mr. Dingus has made many warm friends in this part of the country, and as for his wife she is known and loved by the whole neighborhood, having lived here for about ten years. She could ill be spared, and we will miss her beyond the power of words to tell, but one and all united in wishing her a long, happy and prosperous life with the husband she has chosen. May Heaven's choicest blessings rest upon them all through life. May their joys be many and their sorrow few.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lucas went down the Nestucca on a "bride" tour last week. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Woods visited at E. L. Kinnaman's last Monday. Herman Thun who is feeding his cattle at Mr. Cady's, is staying at E. O. Mills.

Mr. George Lucas has been suffering for some time from an axe wound which became so bad last week he thought he would be compelled to go to Tillamook for medical treatment, but he is some better at present.

C. A. Smith, H. A. Chopard and H. L. Jensen, each bought a case of Mr. Jones as he came back from Beaver.

Mrs. Della Jensen and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Chopard and little son, attended the wedding at Mr. Bays' last Wednesday.

The serenaders had a wet night for their trip, and they certainly earned their cigars.

Santos-Dumont's Narrow Escape.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Between showers this afternoon, M. Santos Dumont made a fourth "sortie" from his aerodrome with his airship, cables the Monte Carlo correspondent of the Herald. At 2 o'clock the rain having ceased for a moment, the aeronaut sailed away in the direction of Cape Martin, being preceded by two hounds from the Prince of Monaco's yacht, the Princess Alice, and followed by a steam launch commanded by the Prince.

Half way between the aerodrome and Cape Martin the sky becoming cloudy and the wind suddenly rising, the aeronaut whirled about and returned to the Port D'Heracles, where the occupants of the steam launch were able to seize the guide rope at 2:35 P. M., and conduct the airship near the aerodrome. The maneuvers then became very difficult.

Some of the suspension wires had been broken and the Prince had his arm bruised by the guide rope which weighed 50 kilograms, sweeping rapidly over the stern of the steam launch. When the airship was 10 metres from the guide rope was passed from the steam launch to a small boat, and then to workmen on the jetty.

This is the longest trip M. Santos-Dumont has accomplished, both as to time and distance. After the landing had been accomplished the Prince received M. Santos-Dumont and the Duc De Dion on board his yacht and arranged with the aeronaut various plans for landing maneuvers during the next excursion.

The Duc and Duchess De Bassano, and Marie De Bassano, who with the Empress Eugenie had been watching the operations, came to the aerodrome to present the aeronaut with their felicitations and those of the Empress.

Half an hour after the aeronaut's return to the aerodrome, the wind became violent, a heavy rain storm followed, and the sea became very rough.

MOTHERHOOD.

The greatest ambition of American men and women is to have homes blessed with children. The woman afflicted with female disease is constantly menaced with becoming a childless wife. No medicine can restore dead organs, but Wine of Cardui does regulate derangements that prevent conception; does prevent miscarriage; does restore weak functions and shattered nerves and does bring babies to homes barren and desolate for years. Wine of Cardui gives women the health and strength to bear healthy children. You can get a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui from your dealer.

WINE OF CARDUI.

143 Market Street, Memphis, Tenn., April 14, 1901. In February, 1901, I took one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Theodor's Black-Dragee. I had been married fifteen years and had never given birth to a child until I took Wine of Cardui. Now I am mother of a fine baby girl which was born March 31, 1901. Now my husband is happy and I never will feel as well as any person could feel. Send me a bottle of Wine of Cardui in my home again. Mrs. J. W. C. SMITH.

FORGOT WHERE HE WAS.

And in His Bewilderment the Deacon Betrayed a Family Secret.

Deacon Puffly is a pillar of church and society in one of the townships. He has passed the age of his greatest activity, but his desire to do good is as manifest as ever, and any weakness of the flesh is largely due to the fact that he carries so much of it, says the Detroit Free Press.

While the deacon reads of the suffering Cubans and the movement to send them relief, he at once sent word around that there would be a meeting at the district schoolhouse to talk over the situation and raise means for the good cause. There was a goodly gathering, and after the deacon had put the machinery in motion he settled back in his seat to hear from the several others who left like relieving their minds.

The fire in the big box store was a hot one; there was a lack of proper ventilation and when the usual bedtime for the deacon had arrived he dropped gently asleep.

Shortly after this occurred there was some important point to be settled, and the chair expressed a desire to hear from Deacon Puffly. His wife quickly rose to the emergency and gave her husband a pinch that was emphasized by a twist.

"Ouch!" shouted the deacon. "Quit that, Betsy. Get up and kindle the fire yourself; I'm sick this mornin'."

By the time that order had been restored the deacon was wide awake, and in his confusion doubled the liberal subscription he had already made for the benefit of the sufferers.

SOME MISNOMERS.

Unfortunate Names That Have Been Thrust Upon Various Individuals.

"It's strange," said the observer, the other day, "how so many people are misnamed."

The cause of this remark was occasioned by a man whose name was Luck, who passed down the street, says the Louisville Commercial.

"You see that man. From his name you would think he was destined to be one of the most fortunate creatures who ever drew a breath. Although his name is Luck he was certainly born under the unluckiest star that ever shone."

"I have noticed him," continued the observer, "from his childhood. When he was a little boy he couldn't go to school with his lessons correct but what he would make a mistake somewhere else and be sure to get a flogging from his teacher. Since he has grown up he has started in several kinds of business. He's a rack failure in them all. Starting out with nothing but the brightest prospects before him, he is overcome by some calamity, and down his business goes. He is a good fellow, too, and for the life of me I can't tell what is the matter with him."

"However, he is only one instance of a misnomer. I know a man whose name is Good. Well, if there was ever a bad man it is that fellow Good. When a boy he was whipped every day by his mother. Later he commenced to steal. He has served several terms in prison."

"A supposed 'beat' was the owner of Great Wealth."

Recently a Yale "beat" was sent to jail, after swindling his classmates in wholesale fashion. He took the whole country for his field of work and visited a prosperous classmate in San Francisco, from whom he extracted $50. Although well to do, the Californian did not like to waste $50, and resolved to be stern the next time a Yale man called. His next visitor was a classmate who was known as the "dig" in college, 18 years before. He seemed just as seedy as he used to appear in the classroom, and the Californian scented another appeal for money. So he fortified himself, and when asked how the world had used him, related a doleful story of bad luck, debt and poverty. He must have drawn the picture pretty strong, for his visitor was deeply moved. Suddenly the seedy classmate turned and said: "Now, don't feel hurt at my offer, but I wish you would take $10,000 from me to use until you strike better luck. I really don't know what to do with the money, or how to invest all I have, and shall be delighted to let you have it." There was an awkward pause, an outburst and brief explanation. Then both adjourned to the club to talk it over, and the Californian learned how his old classmate had "struck it rich" with a prosperous corporation and was really ready to give away money.

NOT A COWARD.

The Strange Effect of Nervous Strain on a Brave Little Soldier in Cuba.

Nervous excitement is responsible for much that might pass for cowardice. The author of "A Cuban Expedition" speaks of one dreadful day, when he and his comrades sat in a wet ditch and waited, concealed, while the Spaniards were so near that escape seemed almost impossible.

The discomfort of our predicament—up to the middle in mud and water, with the rain pouring down on us—was at the moment unfeared, in our excitement and eagerness in watching the enemy. Little Joe Storey, who was next to me, was trembling all over. Suddenly he grasped my arm and whispered:

"Oh, what shall I do? I must scream or fire off my rifle! I can't help it!"

I, too, felt that he would do either the one or the other, and I whispered back the first thing that occurred to me.

"Storey," I said, "if you make the least noise, I'll stab you to death!"

Then I told him to keep his eyes closed, and try to think of something else, until he heard the first shot fired. After that he might shout as loudly as he liked. I put one arm about his neck and drew him close to me. There, trembling, he rested like a quiet child. Presently his excitement wore off, and he became used to the situation; then he was heartily ashamed of his breakdown.

But Storey was not a coward. He was a gallant little soul in action, and only his tortured nerves were responsible for this temporary revolt.

WIVES NEEDED.

Necessity Compels Relaxation of Misogynist Cecil Rhodes' Rule in South Africa.

British South Africa is sadly in need of wives, according to late accounts from that land of diamond mines and millionaires. The chartered company of which Cecil Rhodes is the head has for years frowned on the idea of marriage among its mounted police, civil servants and other employes. This objection has mounted to practical prohibition, and is well known to have been the result of Rhodes' misogynist views, he being a confirmed woman hater.

In the past year or two a number of his best men have left the company's service rather than subscribe to Sir Cecil's peculiar notions to the extent of remaining single for life. The result has been that other leading members of the chartered company have taken the matter up. They pointed out that unless a reversal of policy were manifested things would soon assume a serious aspect, as important affairs would be left in the hands of the least reliable of the company's servants. Sir Cecil gave the matter due consideration, and finding that the protest had most substantial grounds, has surrendered. Accordingly an edict has gone forth among the chartered company's officials promising that preference in promotion will be given to married men, and advising all those who can do so to enter forthwith into the bonds of matrimony.
