The renomination of Congressman T. H. Tongue in the first congressional district by acclamation is a fitting tribute to his worth at Washington.

From present indications, it would not surprise us much if Mr. B. L. Eddy is the next speaker of the house and will get there with both feet.

If a little burg like New York can enforce the Sunday closing laws and stop gambling, surely the city officials of Tillamook City could do the same thing if they wanted to.

So the democratic party in Tillamook refused to allow a few rule or ruin republicans to enter into a collusion with them.

One of the Portland newspapers says some of the old mossbacks are getting it driven into their noddles that it's Wright and Wise To advertise.

It is a little premature to talk about taking Nehalem coal to Portland. Until a vein of sufficient thickness to work, has been found, it is foolish for the Nehalem Coal Company to be talking through its hat.

They were all nice gentlemen who were nominated on the democratic ticket on Saturday, but they are lacking in the essential things—enough democrats and disgruntled, popocratic republicans to elect them.

Willis S. Duniway is probably a nice gentleman, but it looks as though he will have to get a living outside of politics, for in his attempt to force himself upon the republican party he has made himself obnoxious.

Simon's republicanism in Multnomah county is ready to prostitute itself with any old thing in the democratic party. And it looks as though the democrats in that county like to be prostituted, so much so they do not even object to the Simon pure, defeated boss.

We move that a delegation be sent to the Oregonian informing it that the 60 days is almost up in which the Portland, Nehalem & Tillamook Railway Company was to commence construction.

Now that all the nominations have been made there's a lot of people who were on the anxious seat for a few weeks previous who can now say they would not take a nomination, anyway, even if it was offered to them on a silver platter.

Our democratic friends wanted to rush business at a lightning gait on Saturday when it was moved that Mr. Conder be elected county judge.

Ex County Judge W. W. Conder is the most formidable candidate on the democratic ticket, and as so many democrats have affiliated with the republican party the last few years we fail to see where the ex-county judge is going to muster up enough of the untried without he can manufacture several hundred voters out of butter milk.

Not to be outdone by their republican brethren, the democrats of Nehalem also had a double header to the democratic convention in this city on Saturday, but the nearest they could come to making it so was by two out of the six delegates putting in an appearance, and being harmonious there was no need of bringing along a doctor for political sore heads.

Is it not a fact that a bridge across the Nestucca, say at about Butts' landing, would be a greater convenience to a greater number of settlers than the two bridges recently contracted for to cross the Wilson and Trask rivers?

It is stated on the authority of a member of Congress who has seen them that McKinley's doctor's bills will reach a total of about $50,000. As the entire period of President McKinley's prostration, he seen the assassination and his death was just one week, this amount will be at the rate of an average of more than $7000 a day.

This much can be said about the democratic primaries and convention on Saturday, our democratic brethren have no sore heads or rule or ruin factions in their ranks, nor would it allow the rule or ruin faction from the republican party to become silent partners.

If L. L. Smith can bring down the votes next June like he brought down the house at the democratic convention on Saturday there is not much fear but what he would be elected. It was in thanking the convention for the nomination of county surveyor that he made a big hit, but it would be considered unparliamentary for a newspaper to repeat it.

The parties in Tillamook, and they were republicans as well as democrats, who interested themselves by writing to parties in Yamhill with the object of defeating Mr. B. L. Eddy in securing renomination as joint representative, have placed themselves in a position where those who have become acquainted with the facts have the horse laugh upon them. Evidently they have belittled themselves, for the source of these letters had the opposite effect. Write again gentlemen

The rule or ruin leaders of the republican party in Tillamook were in evidence doing a little plotting previous to the democratic convention in this city on Saturday. We sincerely hope these rule or ruin politicians will stay with the democrats, because they are anything but republicans.

The HEADLIGHT sincerely trusts that when County Judge Sappington—for it is safe to predict that he will boss the job and his team will haul the timber—gets through building the Wilson and Trask bridges they will not want bracing up for fear of tipping over as he had to the Beaver Creek bridge after he built it.

The republicans of Tillamook in their platform demanded that the oleomargarine bill be passed, and forthwith the senate did so, showing that the republican party is ready to protect the dairyman's product, even in face of the opposition of the millionaire meat packers.

R. M. Watson, whom the Oregonian called the silly little, little silly man of Tillamook, was placed in nomination at the republican state convention for state printer and received 6 out of the 346 votes cast on the first ballot and none on the second ballot, is only another proof of what was said about him by the Oregonian.

It is stated that it cost W. J. Furnish not less than $15,000 to secure the nomination for governor and that he is going to open headquarters in Portland. We would advise him to start a bank in connection with it, for the life of a candidate in the City of Portland during a political campaign can only be compared with a little hell upon earth.

The editor of the HEADLIGHT doffs his hat to the democratic county convention and says "Amen" to the demand that the office of roadmaster be abolished, for we have several times pointed out that there are far too many bosses bossing road work.

There's a bit of useful information that may be interesting to those who do not know what is going on politically behind the scenes.

Ex-County Judge W. W. Conder at the democratic convention said that before he left home the previous day he had made up his mind that he would not accept a nomination, but so much pressure had been brought upon him since he came to Tillamook City he had changed his mind.

The taxpayers who wonder where their tax money goes, let the HEADLIGHT give them another pointer. If Sappington built bridges last as long as Sappington built plank roads, which cost about one thousand dollars a mile, and some of which is almost worn out, the next county judge and commissioners will have to duplicate the entire work of the plank road and bridges like that across Beaver Creek.

A resolution endorsing Representative Eddy, of Tillamook, for reelection, was smothered in the committee. Dr. Wright, a member of the committee, being a strong Geer man, he did not propose to endorse Eddy until Eddy's delegation was landed for Geer. It is only a question of how long the rank and file of the republican party will stand this plan of procedure.—Telephone-Register.

When the republican committee in the Yamhill convention smothered the resolution endorsing Mr. B. L. Eddy for joint representative, it failed to comprehend the spirit which permeated the republican convention in Tillamook.

From present indications it looks probable that the next mayor of the City of Portland will be a democrat. This our impartial view of the political situation in that city from this neck of the woods.

Nehalem Coal Fields. A Party of Illinois Capitalists Visit the New Mines. (From Astorian)

A party of seven business men of Illinois arrived in this city last week and went to the Nehalem coal fields to investigate the prospects. The party was composed of J. R. Bell, president of the First National Bank of Sterling, A. G. Van Petten, a capitalist of Van Petten, Ill., G. S. Bell, E. I. Woods, B. Jameson and E. Bell.

The gentlemen are all interested in the Nehalem Coal Company, and last December the good news was wired to them from here that a fine vein of bituminous coal, five feet two inches thick, had been struck at a depth of 140 feet by tunnel.

Mr. Van Petten spent three years in the Northwest beginning with 1890, and acted as right of way agent for the Union Pacific, with headquarters at Portland. He is the owner of 1000 acres of land upon which the town of Van Petten, Ill., stands, and is well fixed financially for his portion of the enterprise about to be carried on in Clatsop county.

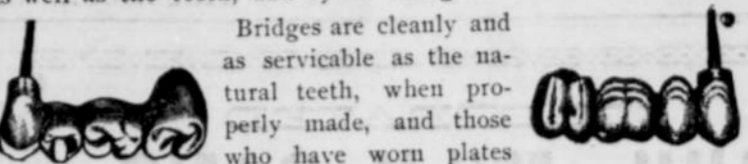

Our people back there have heard so much of your noted Oregon winters and your rich soil that many well-to-do people are preparing to leave those rigorous seasons of Illinois behind. We have had rather a hard season there this year, and the temperature fell to 28 degrees below zero for several days. In some years it gets down to 35.

Referring again to the coal development project, he said: "Our company has 2000 acres of deeded land in the Nehalem, and about 1400 acres more under the mineral lien laws. We have no fear, therefore, about the supply of coal giving out, as there are good indications of other ledges near the one we are now opening up. The coal is of the bituminous order, and contains 52 per cent carbon. It is, therefore, well adapted to steam and domestic purposes, and its introduction to that city will stimulate the manufacturing enterprises and revolutionize the present method of heating buildings during the cool season, while for domestic purposes it will take the place of wood. I think cheap coal is just what Portland needs at this time.

Although a large proportion of the capital necessary to render these coal fields available comes from Illinois, both Portland and Astoria parties are interested with us. W. H. Copeland, of Astoria, is president of the company, and J. Cook, of the same city, is secretary.

CROWNS AND BRIDGES

Can be made to do the best of service, restore the features, as well as the teeth, and by so doing avoid the use of plates.

Bridges are cleanly and as servicable as the natural teeth, when properly made, and those who have worn plates and have had them replaced by bridges, appreciate the difference and are pleased with the change.

Extraction of teeth and all other work done by painless methods.

Will be at my Office in Tillamook about April 1st.
