Mr. C. L. Smith has located at The Dalles, where they often pray for rain instead of the hot east wind which blows quite frequently at this season. It gets so tropical there Webfoot shed their webs. Mrs. Smith and family left Tuesday, going out by way of Trask and to take a last look at the fascinating scenery at their old home at the toll gate.
A novel suit is to be tried on Monday before Squire Alley. It is for a dead horse, the spirit of which has gone to the glory land and the carcass is decaying beneath the earth. John Hathaway and W. B. Alderman are the parties interested in the suit, and it was while they were doing some horse trading that one of the horses perished out and took its last journey.
Druggist Clough has used good taste and judgment in enlarging his store and in putting in a number of handsome glass show cases, making his drug store the handsomest and most attractive place of business in the city, it having the appearance of an up-to-date metropolitan store. And in doing so he has increased his stock, not only in the drug and patent medicine departments, but in stationery, books, etc., as well.

It will be noticed that Attorneys W. H. Cooper and H. T. Botts have formed a law firm and have opened offices in the building nearly opposite the post office. Connected with the firm is the Tillamook Title & Abstract Company, of which Mr. Cooper is the president and Mr. Botts the secretary, and a complete set of abstract books, corrected up to date, are one of the features in the offices of this new law firm.
The lumber schooner C. H. Merchant, that went ashore on the South Spit of Nehalem bar last week, was sold to the Nehalem Lumber Company on Thursday. An effort will be made to take the lumber off and then float the schooner. The fine weather the past week has not materially injured the schooner, although there is some doubt whether she can be saved as she is being washed by the breakers.

We are frequently told by visitors that they are surprised to find that people in trading can do better in Tillamook City than in any other city in Oregon. And there is no denying it, for the business men are selling at a close margin, especially in staple articles. Tillamook City is a good place to trade, with wide-awake and obliging business men. Do your trading here and you save money by consulting those who advertise in the Headlight. The best place to trade is in Tillamook's metropolis.

Mrs. M. E. Hoxter, of Portland, who represents the Florence Crittenton Refuge Home for Oregon, will lecture in the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening. This home shelters unfortunate girls, those who have fallen from the paths of virtue and who are counted as outcasts to society. Mrs. Hoxter's subject on Sunday will be "Work Among the Fallen." She is to speak at Beaver on Sunday morning. It may be remembered that she gave an interesting lecture in this city on the same subject about two years ago.

County Clerk Mason was to have taken the depositions of Claude Thayer, George Cohn, Thos. Coates, C. E. Hadley, Walter J. Smith and Maude Sturgeon on Friday, but he deferred taking evidence for one week. This is in connection with the Tillamook timber claims, which are being contested by C. E. Hays. The claims in question are those of Isaac Simler, Nellie Allen, D. C. Bowers, Clark E. Hadley, Thos. Coates, Edith Tuttle, Geo. H. Handley, Chas. B. Handley, Lavinia B. Coates, Ovilia Bowers and Maude Sturgeon.

Mrs. Samuel Elmore, who came in with her husband from Astoria, appears to be an enthusiast of the ladies' club of that city, being the president of that organization. She informs us that several months ago the club sent a case of several hundred books to Tillamook, but for some reason no effort was made to circulate them or to let the people know that the Astoria club sent them in for use, to be replaced by another box after a certain length of time. We can assure Mrs. Elmore that a large number of the people of this city would have been glad to have had access to the books, but to obviate all mistakes in the future she has arranged with Mr. E. H. Haltom to have a case of books placed in his new store when he opens next month.

Wilkins Watson, son of R. M. Watson, met with a painful accident on Thursday at Elma, Wash., at the Star shingle mill which resulted in his losing two fingers of his right hand. The fingers were taken off at the first joint. He was working at the shingle saw when the accident occurred. The same day, Harvey Huling, working at the same post, lost the end of his thumb, and young Watson was sent for to take his place and had hardly begun when the accident occurred. The mill has closed down in consequence.

Mr. W. O. Hembow, of Woodland, Cal., came in on Sunday. He is conversant with condensed milk factories and the necessary equipments, and in reply to an inquiry as to the cost of necessary machinery and condensers, a 30,000 gallon condensed milk plant in San Francisco would cost $2,500. As to the price paid for milk at these factories, he said it varied from $1.25 to $1.50 per 100lb. for milk that reached about 4 per cent. He informed us there is a good market in Japan for condensed milk without butter fat. Most of the places where condensed factories were being put in the people were paying the promoters too much money.

Mr. S. Elmore, when he came in from Astoria, brought in with him two experienced persons in the raising and canning of asparagus, for he has the matter of converting his farm into the raising of that vegetable and canning it at his cannery under consideration. These men think the tide lands and river bottom lands in Tillamook county are suitable for raising asparagus, the same kind of land in California, where they raise this vegetable, sells as high as a $1000 an acre. Mr. W. O. Hembow, of Woodland, Cal., informs us that that state cans 85 per cent of the asparagus and the growers receive 4c, a pound. Should Mr. Elmore decide to turn his ranch into asparagus beds, it will require, he thinks, 200 persons to cut it while it is in season, beside those employed at the cannery. We hope Mr. Elmore will decide to do so, for if anyone should be able to make a success of it he should, with a farm adapted to it, a cannery and shipping facilities. The Willamette farmers have taken a tumble to themselves that their land is too valuable to raise wheat, so have gone into the dairy business. It may dawn upon the people of Tillamook that the river bottom and tide lands of this county are too valuable for dairying, and the matter of raising asparagus and canning it may be the means of putting ten times as much value into that kind of land as there is now, if the value of similar land in California is any criterion to go by. It is true we do not know to what use the river bottom and tide lands will be put to in years to come, but whatever it may be, Tillamook is destined to become the garden spot of Oregon.

Serious Accident at Netarts.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sheets, son and daughter, left their home at South Prairie on Monday to camp on Netarts beach. They drove to Cape Meares lighthouse on Wednesday, and in returning met with a serious accident. In coming down the hill near the Maxwell place, the break of the wagon flew off. This started the team and the horses began to run. Before Mr. Sheets could get the break on again the wheel of the wagon struck a rock, throwing him out and bruising him up considerably. The team, having no one to control it, started down the hill at a break neck speed, when the wagon was pitched over and the occupants thrown out. Mrs. Sheets struck the ground with her temple, rendering her unconscious for several hours, and it is feared caused concussion of the brain. Her son, Nickey, was badly injured in the hip, while her daughter, Nettie, fortunately escaped with only a shaking. Dr. David Wiley was sent for to attend their injuries, and from what we can learn this morning they are getting along as well as can be expected.

STOP THAT COUGH.

A good many people have thought that a cough didn't amount to much—most excellent people whose friends were sorry to lose them. Now don't make this mistake—a cough is the first step toward serious and often fatal sickness; stop it right there.

Our Syrup, Tolu Tar and Wild Cherry, 25c., 50c., and $1.00 bottles, has proved a marvellous cough stopper. If you've just begun to cough, the 25c. size will fix you; if it's an old cough, try a larger bottle. It always relieves, and except in the most desperate cases it always cures.

And everything a well-stocked drug store ought to have, we have.
