Sparks from the Anvil.

It is said that Alphonso, King of Spain, is demented. Probably if the young man was put under discipline he would not be as crazy as some newspaper writers make him.

A woman in the classic town of Eugene has just died and now it is ascertained that her skull was 2 1/4 inches in thickness. She ought to have belonged to the U. of O.'s football team.

It is said the chairman of the Democratic congressional committee has completed a campaign text book. Mr. Whitney provides the best possible motto for the title page: "No man and no issue."

The packing house people claim they utilize every part of a hog with the exception of its last squeal and the curl in its tail. Now we are informed that "you can sell every part of an Angora goat but his scent."

The United States promised Cuba independence, but correctly speaking that was never fulfilled, for that country is nothing but a vassal of this country. The best kind of independence that the Cubans will ever enjoy will be when they are annexed to the United States.

South Carolina's primary laws require every candidate for a state office or for the United States Senate to make at least one speech in every county before the date of the primary election. The survival of the fittest, revolvers being equal, seems to rest with the best man physically.

The importation of precious stones this month at New York has so far, according to Appraiser Whitehead, amounted to $2,000,000, an unusually large amount for the period. The total importations for seven and a half months of this year amount to $16,550,000. This also is very much ahead of the previous year.

As most of the Boers have sworn allegiance to England it is surprising how tarnacious Oom Paul clings to the idea of independence for South Africa, so much so even his staunchest friends have had to leave the old man to brood over what is now considered impossible. That country will have more independence under English rule than it ever had under Oom Paul rule.

Because there is $700,000 of the irreducible school funds lying idle, it appears to be worrying a good many politicians. The way to reduce it is to get another man like Davis, the defaulting clerk, to manipulate the school funds, and he will soon convince everybody that there was no such thing as the irreducible school fund, making the politicians worry in a different direction.

The police administration of the Rhine country is taking measures to resist the invasion of Belgian automobiles. Parties from across the frontier race recklessly through German villages and fatal accidents have just been reported from three villages. The inhabitants tried to lynch an automobilist who ran over an 8-year-old girl at Sinzig; a Belgian Count killed an aged man at Brühl, and a child was run over and killed at Paenderich on the Moselle.

Portland is a "crimp" city and has a bad reputation in shipping circles all over the world. It is a disgrace to that city and a public scandal when the boarding house people can entice sailors from the ships in port and the captains have to pay the "crimps" $90 for every person they supply in their place. When ships are put to unnecessary expense, it is generally conceded in the end that the wheat growers have to foot the bill. Now that the government is on the war path it is expected that the sailor boarding house keepers will be a little more careful in causing ships to be held up in Portland.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has made a ruling to the effect that the dealers who sell oleomargarine which paid a tax of 2 cents a pound prior to July 1, 1902, must take out a license $480 a year for wholesalers and $48 a year for retailers, instead of $200 and $6 respectively. The only dealers who pay the minimum license rate at $6 and $200 a year are those who deal exclusively in oleomargarine which has paid the tax of one-quarter of a cent a pound.

The total cost of the Boer War to England up to March 31, 1903, which is the date covered by the present budget is £222,974,000, or about $1,100,000,000. The Telegram says the Cobden Club recently issued a pamphlet showing that this enormous sum would have been enough to establish and support fifty universities, while Oxford and Cambridge are now so desperately poor that they are scarcely able to pay current expense.

When Russell Sage says he does not agree with Mr. Morgan regarding the consolidation and combination of all the great interests, it must be taken for granted he sees danger ahead which should not be overlooked, so he makes this dark prediction: "Combinations of all great industries are a menace to the government. They are not only a menace but they are oppressors of the people. Should an era of combination ensue the American people will certainly revolt against them, and if they do there will be financial ruin such as the people never dreamed of in the history of the world."

Cholera appears to be claiming a good many victims in the Philippine Islands. Between June 25 and July 10, 72 deaths occurred among the enlisted men of the Division of the Philippines. Of the total number of deaths, 35 were due to Asiatic cholera. The War Department has received this information from General Chaffee at Manila, together with a list of those soldiers who had died. In addition to the 35 who died of cholera, 17 died of dysentery, six of malaria fever and the remainder of various other diseases. Of those who died of cholera, nine were Philippine scouts and natives.

The Oregon State Press Association has ended its session at Newport and the Oregonian is mean enough to remark that it had three real editors in attendance. Perhaps if the convention had declared for Harvey for United States senator, it would have been so different.—Astorian News. Do not be unprofessional and ungenerous, gentlemen, for it takes all kinds of people to make up a world; therefore, if Harvey does show a crabbed spirit at times toward the pencil pushers of the state we are charitable enough to believe he cannot help it, for he was built that way. But we don't think none the less of him for that.

Oh, yes, tariff is a difficult problem. When the democrats want to monkey with it that party howls free trade, but when the republicans want to tinker with the tariff, at one time it is under the guise of protection and at another under that of reciprocity. Reciprocity is only another word for what democrats call free trade, when in point of fact we cannot have free trade without abandoning all import duties. We think most people have come to the conclusion that the present protective tariff is instrumental in creating monopolies. And as it is to the interest of the trusts not to want the tariff tinkered with. The wheat grower, is of necessity a free trader, because the markets of the world determine the price of his product.

There is a chance that the reports of American immigration to Canada are exaggerated, yet there is undoubtedly a movement of considerable proportions in that direction. A bulletin from the land office of the dominion at Ottawa says that 25,000,000 acres in the Canadian Northwest have been purchased in recent years by persons from the United States, and 5,000,000 acres of this area have been sold in 1902. One-fifth of this purchase for the present year has been settled upon, while the rest of it is in the hands of American land companies, which are expecting to dispose of a large section of it soon. According to this bulletin 21,000 Americans have located in the province of Manitoba and neighboring territory between January 1 of this year and June 1.

J. J. Hill, the railroad magnate, is not at all impressed with the idea of constructing an isthmian canal. No one expected that he would be. He believes that if the money to be expended on the canal was used in improving rivers and harbors at home it would do more good. We have no objection to that if congress will appropriate enough money to improve Tillamook bar. Every person in Tillamook knows that it is urgently needed. We must admit there is some good sense in Hill's remarks, which people in Tillamook can better understand, for there is such a thing as expending large sums of money improving water ways in foreign countries and neglecting what is really wanted in the matter of improving our rivers and harbors at home.

Local Snap Shots.

We are wondering if the board of equalization, when it meets in October, will have time to whittle wood, as in previous years.

We suppose the cattle buyers are laboring under the impression that the early bird catches the worm, by the way they are gathering up the young stock in this county.

We were told last week by a visitor that Tillamook City is getting quite a reputation on the "outside" for gambling. That is a bad reputation to place alongside that of Tillamook cheese and butter.

One of our correspondents wrote last week that all the men were "Going, going or gone!" This would be a good time for the editor to put on his best big top tucker for the purpose of making a call and to console the "grass widowers."

A lady peddler boasted last week that she was making enormous profits taking orders for ladies' dress suits, and it was no trouble to do business. The greatest trouble will be when the men folk have to foot the bills, with the commission added.

As some of the adjoining counties were instrumental in stealing large strips of territory from Tillamook county, when, it is said, our representatives in the state legislature did not know what was going on, so we do not think it would be any great sin to steal it back, that is if we can do so.

The North part of Tillamook county, so long neglected in road improvements, appears to be getting a fair share of road work. Let the good work go on, and as soon as the county court can see its way clear we hope it will put a bridge across the Nehalem so as to meet Clatsop with a wagon road.

A visitor to Tillamook a few days ago was surprised to learn that the dairy herds in this county were fed only on grass and hay which is grown on the farm. And this accounts for the reason that a good cow gives its owner $50 a year income, without having to pay out $20 or more for mill feed.

We are informed that a party came to this city a little over a week ago with a check for a little under $100, and getting into a gambling game lost every cent of it, not having enough to buy a breakfast on Monday morning. But here is the funny part of it, the editor is considered a bad man for calling attention to such things.

"If you only had a railroad!" is a remark people who visit Tillamook for the first time are heard to make. "Ah; if we only had a railroad!" sighs every Tillamooker from the bottom of his heart in response. But patience, we are told, is a virtue, never possessed by woman and seldom by man. But the trouble is Tillamook is so near yet far away from the metropolis of the Willamette, that it is a great misfortune for this county that we are so situated. If Tillamook was as near San Francisco or the Sound cities as it is to Portland it would have had railroad connections years ago. But, alas, and alas, for Portland's want of enterprise.

Popping the Question.

A hundred years ago, and less, it was the fashion for a suitor to go down on his knees to a lady when he asked her to become his wife; which, with very stout gentlemen, was an uncomfortable proceeding, says a writer in Everywhere. The way in which Daniel Webster proposed to Miss Fletcher was more modern, being at the same time neat and poetic. Like many other lovers, he was caught holding a skein of thread or wool which the lady had been unraveling. "Gracie," said he (fancy Daniel Webster saying "Gracie"), "we have been tying knots—let us see if we cannot tie one which will not untie in a lifetime." With a piece of tape he fastened half a true-lovers'-knot; Miss Fletcher perfected it, and a kiss put a seal to the symbolical bargain.

Richard Steele wrote to the lady on his heart: "Dear Mrs. Scurlock (there were no misses in those days), I am tired of calling you by that name; therefore, say a day when you will take that of, madame, your devoted, humble servant, Richard Steele." She fixed the day accordingly, and Steele her name instead of heart to the suitor.

A Scotch beadle was the one who popped the question in the grimmest manner. He took his sweetheart into the graveyard and, showing her a dark corner, said: "Mary, my folks lie there. Would you like to lie there, Mary?" Mary was a sensible lassie and expressed her willingness to obtain the right; to be buried near the beadle's relations by uniting herself with him in wedlock.

A grave old deacon was not so fortunate. He conducted a prime spinster, upon whom he had matrimonial intentions, to his family cemetery, where he already had three wives sleeping demurely and peacefully in a row, with the long sound of the vowel "o." "Now, Miss Priscilla," he inquired in grave tone, "wouldn't you like some time, to mingle your dust with ours?" "Not on your life!" (or something equivalent), the lady answered, and left him with the remains of such wives as had already accumulated.

Blasts From Ram's Horn.

The light needs no label. Destiny depends on origin. Innocence is no character. Treachery leads to tragedy. Disposition is more than position. Silence often the sign of strength. The man who thinks leads the crowd. Pride needs to look out for puncture. Piety does more than pity the needy. Many a small engine has a big whistle. The church is a chisel and not a statue. Better a fair failure than a false success. Your life will be worth what it costs you. Better a clean sinner than a dirty saint.

Notice to Taxpayers.

Notice is hereby given that on Monday, the 6th day of October, 1902, the County Board of Equalization, will convene at the office of the County Clerk, of Tillamook County, Oregon, said board to continue in session from day to day for one week, and publicly examine the assessment rolls, and correct all errors in valuations, description, or qualities of land, lots or other property, and all persons interested in said assessment are hereby requested to appear at said time and place, for the purpose of correcting any errors that may appear in their assessment, as no errors can be corrected after the adjournment of said board.

Dated, Tillamook, Oregon, August 19th, 1902.

J. S. STEPHENS, County Assessor.

A Snap in Real Estate.

For sale, a most desirable farm, on the Nehalem beach, containing 97 acres and well improved, with house and barns, fine lake of twenty acres, cranberry patch and fruit trees. Splendid location for a summer resort. To be sold for $2,000.—Erbin Carter, Garibaldi, Or.

Whittled to a Point.

Gladys—It must be awful nice to have money enough to be charitable.

Ethel—Yes; then one doesn't need to be charitable to make folks think one has money.

"Ethel" said Mrs. Subbubs, sternly, "after that young man had said 'good-night' to you on the porch last evening I heard several sounds like kisses."

"Yes," replied the girl demurely. "Oh! I know. What you heard was the noise he made pulling his feet out of the mud as he walked down the path."

"Oh my!" exclaimed the pretty type writer. "I'm afraid I'm a wretched speller."

"Ah, no," sighed her enamored employer, "you are mistress of all sorts of spells."

"I don't care if I do die," said the patient, despondently.

"Oh, you may linger several weeks," replied the physician comfortingly.

"Great heavens!" exclaimed the man who had vision of a prodigious doctor bill; "in that case I'll get well at once."

Don't laugh at the young man who lets his curly brown hair grow down until it hangs upon his shoulders. He may be a poet and can't afford to have it cut.

"He was delighted with the service at your church last Sunday. He told me that at certain portions of it he felt actually transported, absolutely oblivious to his surroundings."

"Yes, I noticed his obliviousness when the plate was being passed."

"You told our summer boarders that we never skim any of our milk," said Farmer Cornstossel's wife in a tone of gentle reproach.

"I told 'em the truth," answered farmer Cornstossel. "We buy it already skimmed from the dairyman."

Mrs. Benham—This new bathing suit of mine is a poem.

Benham—Well, it's unfit for publication.

"I don't want poverty, and I don't want riches," said the old colored voter. "All I want is plenty of political campaigns en candidates a-runnin' all de year round."

"He used to think of nothing but wining and dining."

"He seems to be more temperate now."

"He has to be. Things are just reversed now. He's a chronic dyspeptic and he does all his whining after dinner."

Wantanno—So Miss Mudgeford is a popular girl, is she?

Duzno—Popular! I should say so. And she deserves it. Why, she's so nice that her own brothers like her.

"Ee man dat pretends to be smarter dan any one else," said Uncle Eben, "is like a man dat's runnin' in debt. He kin enjoy hissef a heap as long as his credit lasts; an' after dat he's in trouble."

Mistress—Why didn't you stay at your last place?

New Girl—The missus insisted on having a model kitchen like the one she read about in a household magazine, and she discharged me because neither of us could ever find anything we wanted in it.

Bright's Disease.

The largest sum ever paid for a prescription, changed hands in San Francisco, Aug. 30, 1901. The transfer involved in coin and stock $112,500.00 and was paid by a party of business men for a specific for Bright's Disease and Diabetes, hitherto incurable diseases.

They commenced the serious investigation of the specific Nov. 15, 1900. They interviewed scores of the cured and tried it out on its merits by putting over three dozen cases on the treatment and watching them. They also got physicians to name chronic, incurable cases, and administered it with the physicians for judges. Up to Aug. 25 eighty-seven percent of the test cases were either well or progressing favorably.

There being but thirteen per cent of failures, the parties were satisfied and closed the transaction. The proceedings of the investigating committee and the clinical reports of the test cases were published and will be mailed free on application. Address John J. Fulton Company, 429 Montgomery St., San Francisco, Cal.

Sewing Machines.

Now is the time to buy a new Sewing Machine for $22.00, with drop head and all the latest improvements at MCINTOSH & MCNAIR'S. It is the BONITA SEWING MACHINE, and they range in price from $22 to $35, with ball bearings. They are little beauties, perfectly made and something new on the market. These machines are a better article than the peddlars are charging $65 and $75 for.
