Should have Condensed Factory.

Probably for the want of some one to set the ball rolling, a condensed milk factory enterprise is something which should be of particular interest to Tillamook people, especially to Tillamook City, for it is plain to most everyone that, as the city is growing and the business houses are becoming more numerous, it will require a weekly pay roll to sustain and for the city to hold its own. Besides giving employment to a large number of persons in the factory, we are informed that the dairymen would receive more for their milk, which is another big consideration. We would like to see some of our progressive business men and dairymen discuss the matter to see if something could be done. We do not think there would be the least trouble in raising more than sufficient money, provided the right people took hold of the enterprise. From what information we have gained it would take but little more money to start a condensed milk factory than it cost for a large butter and cheese factory. If a condensed milk factory will be the means of giving more employment and will be the means of enhancing the price of milk, then Tillamook people should not rest until we have a plant started in this city. Others would soon follow in other localities.

To Raise Asparagus in Tillamook.

We are glad to hear that Mr. Sannel Elmore has decided to start a new industry in Tillamook, that of raising asparagus, and to do so he is going to convert his farm, which is made up of rich bottom land, into asparagus beds. The work of turning the sod and preparing the ground is to commence at once, so as to prepare for the first crop next year. Tillamook river bottom land, of which there are thousands of acres in the country, is peculiarly adapted to raising asparagus and those who own this kind of land have become interested in Mr. Elmore's new enterprise, especially as the experts and experienced persons who were brought from California have declared that soil and climatic conditions in Tillamook are adapted to the growth of asparagus. That is worth knowing, for it will not necessitate the expenditure of money in making experiments, which would, of course, take several years to determine. If we are rightly informed, and we believe we are, asparagus can be grown in Tillamook with the same results as it is in California, where 85 per cent of the asparagus which is canned is put up in that state. That it is a profitable and paying industry can be seen by the big jump in the price of land where it is raised. Land which could be bought for $100 down per acres is now worth $1000 an acre in California. Should the enterprise in Tillamook turn out as satisfactory as it is predicted it will, there is every reason to believe that the bottom lands in Tillamook can be made just as valuable, for when once it can be demonstrated that raising and canning asparagus is a profitable industry, other vegetables can also be raised and canned, especially if a cannery is kept for that purpose. We hear a great deal about Hood River strawberries, but Tillamook can raise just as fine a strawberry, so if there were facilities for canning them this, too, could also be made a profitable industry and would bring many thousand dollars into the country every year. As we have said before, it is a problem as to what use the rich bottom lands of Tillamook county will eventually be used for. True, it affords splendid pasture for dairy stock, but we do not believe it will always be used for that purpose. Whether Mr. Elmore intends sowing seed to make his asparagus beds, or will put in plants, we have not heard. It will take two to three years for plants to mature from seed, but there would be a saving of one to two years time in the production if plants were used. The average bunch of asparagus contains about 15 shoots, measures 13 inches in circumference and weighs about two pounds. To give some idea that the industry is a profitable one we understand that growers in California received 4 cents a pound for asparagus. Each plant will produce from 1½ to 2 pounds, which depends to a great extent, as in all other industries, upon how the plant is cultivated. Mr. Elmore is not going into raising asparagus for a hobby, but is simply a business enterprise with him in which he expects to make a good interest on the money. The Headlight would suggest that those who have land suitable for raising asparagus procure a few hundred plants, or sow seed. Before doing so, however, it would be well to obtain all the information on the subject so as to obtain the best results.

Look Favorable for Eddy.

The speakership question continues to be a subject which the Portland newspapers are occasionally writing about. They say: "The Speakership is no settled affair. There are three prominent candidates—Eddy, of Tillamook and Yamhill; Harris, of Lane, and Davey, of Marion. Eddy is supposed to have the support of one faction, and Harris of another. Harris wished to go to Salem as a State Senator at the coming session, but the powers that be, in his particular county, induced him to forego the ambition and accept a nomination for Representative instead, promising him, it is understood, the Speakership. As for Davey, he is not backed by either of the Republican factions, but counts upon the unattached Republicans for his support and believes that at this time he has more strength than either of his rivals. The Multnomah delegation, of course, will have the deciding voice, but no one appears to know which way the Multnomah men intend voting. It is said that the delegation from Multnomah favor Eddy, and will support him as a unit, but there are several members in the crowd who assert that they have made no pledges and will cast their ballots independent of any dictation that may be attempted. The election of a Senator, however, will enter into every deal in the organization of the House and Senate, even down to the appointment of committee clerks in many instances."

THE HAT GOES.

We'll take the bet. While the "Tillamook Eddy" keeps whirling round and round, as eddies usually do, he will be so badly harassed and handicapped by the strong following of the Lane county man that he will not be able to get out of the whirlpool of politics by the speakership route over which Hon. L. T. Harris, of Lane county, will hold the practically undisputed right-of-way.—Eugene Register.

Is that so? Our friends over in Lane county are putting on a brave front—we expect them to do that—but it is evident the Lane county statesman is on the anxious seat and the Register is in the same predicament. Cry aloud, brothers, peradventure the political gods are asleep or are on a journey, so cannot hear you. What an admission, "The hat goes!" It must be to Tillamook.

How awfully wise and inconsistent. We have laws prohibiting fishing for trout at certain seasons, when it is a well-known fact that trout are a serious menace to the salmon industry, for which the state legislature and the government are appropriating money to keep up the supply by establishing salmon hatcheries. Trout devour innumerable eggs in the spawning grounds, in fact, those who have watched salmon spawning in the rivers of Tillamook county tell us that trout keep right on the track of the salmon and it is almost impossible for them to get away, consequently the trout are not long in destroying the eggs. It looks to us a little ridiculous to prohibit trout fishing when trout are a menace to salmon and a detriment to an industry which the state and the government are trying to foster.

Give Lane County a little more time and she will want the whole thing before the state legislature meets. Besides hanging out L. T. Harris' shingle for speaker of the house, that county has also put out R. A. Booth's shingle for United States senator. Is there anything else you would like, gentlemen. Eastern Oregon has a big reputation for wanting everything in sight, but Lane county appears as though she is running neck and neck with that part of the state with the expectation that she can hog the whole business.

Deputy Fish and Game Warden Hardesty caught four Episcopalian ministers fishing for trout after hours in the Necanicum. Of course he bagged the lot and marched them back to Seaside as though they were the worst criminals in the land, where one of the reverend gentlemen pleaded guilty and was fined $15. It must be said in their behalf they were ignorant of the stipulations of the law, as a great number of persons are, but the joke is on them, anyway, for they had only caught four insignificant trout.

There are now three pronounced aspirants for United States senator—Fulton, Geer and Booth. It cannot be said that Harvey Scott is a candidate, for he has an idea that to be the editor of the Oregonian is a more important position than that of United States senator, but it would not surprise us much to see the friends of Mr. Scott push his name well to the front at the proper time.

C. P. W. Neely, who was among the Americans recently liberated under the general amnesty proclamation at Havana, has sailed for New York on the steamer Morro Castle. He will go to Washington and demand the $6000 which was found on him when he was arrested in connection with the Cuban postal frauds.

There is a good deal of discussion going on about the needs of Oregon. In this neck of the woods the greatest need is the improvement of Tillamook bar?

General News.

The 12-year-old son of M. Parrett, of Klamath, was drowned in the Klamath River at the mill-dam. He had been fishing, and accidentally slipped into the water. The body has not yet been recovered. At the mill-dam the river is a swift and heavy stream.

Jack Cooper, of Hoquiam, who has been in Alaska for the past three years, returned home. He was one of the first men to reach Nome City and located several claims there. Just before leaving there he sold out his interests for $30,000.

The principals in a hand-to-hand fist fight at Baker City were George B. Small, of the Democrat, and Manager C. W. Hill, of the Herald. The row occurred over an article that appeared in the Herald, to which Mr. Small took exception. Small went to the Herald office and accosted Hill about the matter. Finally a general mix-up ensued and Hill called for his gun, but a stenographer grabbed the desired weapon and bolted out the back door. Several blows were exchanged by the principals, but no one was seriously hurt.

There are two log rafts at Stella belonging to the Robertson Raft Company which are ready to be towed to San Francisco. The tugs Tatooch and the Richard Holyoke will tow the smaller while the larger raft will be taken down the coast by the steam schooner Arctic. The latter is owned by A. B. Hammond who is also part owner of the Robertson Raft Company but whether it will be able to make a success of towing a raft 700 feet long down the coast is much doubted by those who should have a knowledge of that kind of business.

Gen. Fitzhugh Lee says Cuba, in its own and the United States' interest, will have to be annexed. It is necessary, he remarks, to round out our boundaries in the south. That was the view which Jefferson took of the matter nearly a hundred years ago. Most of the leading American statesmen since then have had this view. Things are shaping themselves in Cuba, too, which may bring annexation soon. The troubles in the little republic are raising up friends of annexation through it. All the business element have favored annexation from the beginning. When Cuba knocks for admission to the Union the Republican majority of the United States will declare solidly for it. In any case, therefore, Cuba's future is bright.

President Roosevelt wants Republican harmony in all the states, South as well as North. This is right. Nearly all the factional fights which are under way anywhere in the Republican ranks are due to jealousies or disagreements which should be removed. Even in states like Texas, in which the Democrats are overwhelmingly in the preponderance, factional quarrels are injurious to the party. Occasionally there is a chance for the Republicans to win a congressman from Texas, but, of course, a wrangle in the party in any part of that state will injure it in all of it. The Republicans all over the country should get together.

At Garfield, 18 miles north of Colfax, Wash., burglars entered the O. R. & N. depot Friday night, blew open the safe and escaped with $75, without leaving a clue. The work was evidently done by experts. The depot stands near the business center of town, but the robbery was not discovered until this morning. The safes in both the O. R. & N. and Northern Pacific depots at Garfield have been blown open a half a dozen times in the past few years. Garfield is only nine miles from Palouse, where the postoffice safe was recently blown open and $800 taken. It is believed a gang of experts are at work in that county.

Secretary of State Dunbar announced his decision disallowing the claim of Mrs. Wagoner for finding and returning Convict Merrill's body. All the papers in the case are set forth, and after a lengthy review of the facts Mr. Dunbar concludes as follows: "In view of the foregoing, after due consideration, the claim is hereby disallowed for the reason that from the facts and evidence offered it does not appear that the claimant rendered the service claimed, or by her act in finding and returning the body of Merrill complied with the provisions of the law or the offer of reward, and is therefore not entitled to the amount claimed or any part thereof."

Dr. Vernon Lyman Kellogg, head of the department of entomology, who accompanied Dr. Jordan on his summer trip to Samoa, has returned to the university, bringing with him many specimens of sea and island life to be added to the National Museum at Washington. His most important work in Samoa, however, from a practical point of view, was his investigation of the fallaria, a wormlike animal living on mosquitoes and producing in human kind the dread skin disease, elephantiasis. Almost half the native population of Samoa are afflicted with this disease, and at the suggestion of Captain Sebree, U.S.N., Governor of the American Islands, Dr. Kellogg has devised a plan looking to the removal of the scourge by preventing the use of infected water, etc., by the natives.

John Hawkinson has just made a rich strike on his Blue River mining properties, over which the camp is much excited. The discovery is on the Blue Bird and Red Cloud claims, where Hawkinson has been tunneling for several months, and a few days he reached the ledge which he has been seeking. When the ledge was struck it was found to be 15 feet wide and of greater richness than was expected, free gold being found in a number of places on the face of the ledge. The discoverer now believes his ore is the richest that has yet been discovered in that district. These properties were formerly owned by Portland men, who did considerable work on the claims and ran one tunnel quite a distance into the mountain. They became discouraged and abandoned the claims, thinking them to be of no value. Hawkinson located on the abandoned claims and went to work, and now has a fine ledge to show for his labor.

Bright's Disease.

The largest sum ever paid for a prescription, changed hands in San Francisco, Aug. 30, 1901. The transfer involved in coin and stock $112,500.00 and was paid by a party of business men for a specific for Bright's Disease and Diabetes, hitherto incurable diseases.

They commenced the serious investigation of the specific Nov. 15, 1900. They interviewed scores of the cured and tried it out on its merits by putting over three dozen cases on the treatment and watching them. They also got physicians to name chronic, incurable cases, and administered it with the physicians for judges. Up to Aug. 25 eighty-seven percent of the test cases were either well or progressing favorably.

There being but thirteen per cent of failures, the parties were satisfied and closed the transaction. The proceedings of the investigating committee and the clinical reports of the test cases were published and will be mailed free on application. Address John J. Fulton Company, 429 Montgomery St., San Francisco, Cal.
