Peter's Diamond Brand Shoes are the Best—Haltom sells them.

Postmaster A. W. Severance returned to the city on Friday after several weeks vacation spent in Portland and Yakima, Wash. We suppose the Headlight owes him an apology, for he did not return "spliced," but the printer's devil says nit, for the woman went back upon him.
Friend Rollie was chasing ducks Sunday and claims to have killed 18, but as he was all petered out when he returned home on Monday the ducks must have led him a merry chase. The only kick the editor has he did not get a chance to carve the ducks which were promised him.
Mr. Carl Haberlach has opened a law office in rooms over the store previously occupied by the Famous Clothing Store. Since he came to this city, he has been connected with the Tillamook Abstract and Trust Company, but being through with the work on the abstract books, he has started in business for himself, and being a young man of intelligence and industrious, he is deserving of support.
It is expected that the boys, who have organized themselves into football teams and have started into practice, will give a public exhibition of their prowess chasing the pigskin and getting themselves bruised and muddled up, but that is all prerequisites with football players as long as they can secure the plaudits of the crowd and the smiling praise of the ladies.
The Chief of Engineers, in his annual report, states that the money appropriated for Tillamook Bay will be expended in completing the present project and making surveys of the bar with a view of making estimates of the cost of securing channels of 15 and 20 feet depth, respectively. A few years more of determined work and patience Tillamook will have the bar improved.
It is certainly deserving a word of praise for the artistic manner in which the opera house was decorated for the dance on Thursday of last week, being a marked contrast to the cold, dark and barn like appearance of the hall on previous occasions. Mr. C. Ben Riesland was the genius who changed its appearance and made it pretty and attractive with bunting and flowers. From what we can learn of the dance and supper, all were highly pleased who attended.
Has gambling got so awfully bad in Tillamook City that even the saloon keeper's bondsmen will not take the risk of being pulled any longer? Read G. P. Wilt's withdrawal in the city council's proceedings and ask yourself whether it is not time for the citizens to rise in their majesty and demand that the laws be rigidly enforced and the gambling games, which disgrace and lower the moral atmosphere of Tillamook City, should be put a stop to. Tillamook City, even on the outside, is getting a reputation as a "wide open" tough gambling place.
R. M. Watson has brought suit in the circuit court against Fred C. Baker, editor of the Tillamook Headlight, for $6000, Watson claiming that he is outraged and his business is damaged that amount by an article which appeared in the Headlight on the 23rd ultimo. The case will not come up at this term of court, as the papers were not served in time, but when it does there is plenty of evidence to substantiate what the Headlight has printed. In all probability a counter suit will be filed against Watson for a number of libelous articles he published in the Herald against the editor of this newspaper.

When some of the citizens of Tillamook City, who have done considerable gambling, go to Mayor Brodhead, and recommend that gambling be put a stop to in this city because the games which are now being run are fleecing those who participate in them, it is remarkably strange that those who are in the habit of gambling should substantiate what the Headlight has been asserting and advocating for months. The editor is no spasmodic reform crank, and in advocating the enforcement of the law he is only advocating that which he considers for the best interest of the city. The law should be enforced, and it could easily be done if the citizens would make up their minds and see that it was enforced, for they have the power in their own hands if they will only exercise it.
In renewing his subscription, Mr. Geo. Mower, well known in this county, but now of Calistoga, Cal., writes: "I have been waiting, thinking that George would be wanting to come back to Tillamook to get that drink of Tillamook sparkling water that the editor spoke of about a year ago. But I have not seen the time that I have had any desire to return to Oregon again. I can make a living a great deal easier here than to go to Tillamook and pull cow teats for a living. I am not confined night and morning. My fruit is growing, whether I am under the trees or away. Our crops have been good, and we don't lack for rain. There was nearly four inches of rain fall here this last week, and unless it holds up now, which looks fair, it will injure the grape growers, as the grape crop in this valley is only about two-thirds gathered. There is quite a number of Tillamookers settled in this county of Napa and all seem to be well pleased with the exchange."
It will be very unsightly, when the new school building is erected, to see one corner of the block filled up with water of a stagnant and germ breeding character. The Headlight advances this suggestion: That the school directors and city council put in a drain pipe (a square wood box until some of our enterprising citizens succeed with their experiments in manufacturing brick and pipe) from the northeast corner of the school grounds and carry it west by the Gangloff and Shuffer tract. A drain pipe in that direction would be of great benefit, especially to the property owners whose land may happen to lay a little lower than his neighbors, consequently when a heavy rain falls the ground which is lowest acts as a drain for the land which is only a foot or so higher. This is not right. Anyway, it would not be such a great expense to put in a drain, for the water near B. C. Lamb's residence, the school building and near Mr. McNair's residence is an eyesore to the city in the rainy season and something should be done at once to drain it. The Street Commissioner might ascertain the cost, and with a little assistance from the school board, city council and some of the property owners it looks to us a very easy matter to drain that little basin from the school grounds to the west of town, for that is the natural direction and will benefit the greatest number of property owners.

A communication was read, signed by Geo. P. Wilt, as follows:
"I am informed and believe that A. B. Allison is conducting his saloon in your city in violation of the ordinances of the city and of the laws of the state; therefore, as one of his bondsmen; I hereby notify you that I do not wish to be responsible any longer as such bondsman, and would respectfully ask your honorable body to take such steps as are necessary to relieve me from any further liability on said bond."

As Allison filed a new bond, with W. H. Eberman and C. McKillip bondsmen, which was approved, Wilt was relieved of all liability after that date.
Then the city council took up the matter of obtaining the water rights in Killham creek for the proposed new water system for the city and unanimously adopted a resolution authorizing the mayor and the recorder to enter into an agreement with the property owners on that creek for their water rights.

Held Up and Robbed.
Having been held up and robbed, I ask those who are indebted to me to call and settle at once, either by cash or note secured.

The worshippers in a church at Auburn N. Y., found it difficult to extricate themselves from the varnished pews. It is not an uncommon thing, if we may believe the veracious reports, for people to be glued to their seats by the eloquence of the person addressing them but in the present instance the controlling cause appears to have been a case of matter rather than of mind.
