Wedding Bell.

Cupid visited the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hellenbrand, on Thursday, October 30th, when Hugh Gardner carried off their charming daughter, Blanche, as a happy bride. Hugh and Blanche were both old residents of Little Nestucca, and are well and favorably known by all. The room was beautifully decorated in evergreens and flowers. At 12 o'clock Mr. Gardner took Miss Hellenbrand from the arm of her father and led her to the altar, where the Rev. K. Bailes made them husband and wife. After the ceremony all were seated to a groaning board laden with ducks, chicken and every good thing to eat and a good deal more than could be eaten.

The bride and groom took the head of the table and an hour and a half of fun and frolic followed, when the bride and groom started for Amity, from thence to Portland, where they will spend their honeymoon.

The bride was tastefully attired in white organdie trimmed with lace and ribbon.

Those present were: Bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Hellenbrand and daughters, Cora, Edith and Maude and son Oscar, Mrs. C. F. Keller and sons Carl and Robert, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Whiteman and daughter Grace, Miss Gertrude Gardner and Dick, Rev. K. Bailes and wife, R. J. Desmond.

The newly married couple were the recipients of several beautiful and useful presents.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and restoring nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Hand Cream Separator.

When co-operative creameries began cows were not numerous, writes John W. Becker of the Ohio Dairy school. A farmer had but a few, and in order to get enough cream to make the business pay, a cream gatherer drove through the country twenty, thirty or forty miles. The next day he made a trip the same distance in another direction, and the third day in still another point of the compass. The cream was raised in shotgun cans, set in cold spring water. In western Wisconsin there were a number of creameries that built up a business, making 2,000 to 3,000 pounds of butter a day. Then came the centrifugal cream separator, where the milk was hauled to the factory and skimmed. In the old gathered cream method, the cream three or four days old was often sour, mouldy or off-flavored, and the butter sold for 1/2 to 2 cents less than separator creamery butter. By the deep setting gravity method from 0.5 per cent to 1.5 per cent, with an average of about 0.8 per cent fat, was lost, while by the centrifugal method but 0.1 per cent fat was lost. Thus the centrifugal separator beat the gathered system in both quantity and quality of butter.

But the separator system had its objections. The milk must be carted to the factory and then back again, and the expense of keeping up a rig to haul the milk and the time lost in waiting for skim milk was considerable, while the skim milk would be of less value for feeding than if separated with a small separator at home. A few patrons got such small separators and took the small amount of cream to the factory. They believe that the increased value of the warm skim milk over that returned from the factory, was enough to pay the cost of the separator and the labor of running it. Some of them exercised their bulls in the tread powers which ran the separators while the men were milking.

The old gathered cream factories have been coming around to hand separator cream. A young man in La Crosse, Wis., began buying hand separator cream a year ago and churning it in a hand churn. This summer his business has increased to 2,500 pounds of butter per day. Only lately we have heard of an eastern firm that is making and shipping out of Minneapolis a car load of butter per day, made from hand separator cream.

The hand separator will skim just as close as the factory machine, the skim milk is in much better condition for the young stock, and one man can take the cream from the milk of half a dozen patrons to the factory with no more work than that of each of the half dozen men. It is economy all the way round if done right, but that little word "if" is the door to the settlement of the whole problem. "If" the separator is kept clean; "if" the cream is properly cooled; "if" the cream is delivered to the factory every day, then, and not until then, can we expect to have as good butter as by the creamery separated system.

It is all a question of whether the dirty, shiftless, careless methods will prevail over the most economical method. We are making dairy history. What will the historian of 1910 write in this matter?

Those who talk of the waning influence of churches should ponder the fact that in Shamokin the pastor asked for coal and the miners immediately went to work and put eighteen tons of anthracite in the church cellar. Morgan could do no more.

A report that J. P. Morgan is about to buy up a share in the Staffordshire coal fields, has created lively interest in England. The greatest reticence is observed, but it is stated that a meeting of local coal owners will be held on Wednesday to consider the matter.

PRESIDENT'S THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

Thursday, November 27th, is Designated as a Time to Give Praise to God for Blessings Enjoyed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29th.—President Roosevelt to-day issued his proclamation designating Thursday, November 27th, as a day of thanksgiving. The proclamation is as follows:

"According to the yearly custom of our people, it falls upon the President at this season to appoint a day of festival and thanksgiving to God. Over a century and a quarter has passed since this country took its place among the nations of the earth, and during that time we have had, on the whole, more to be thankful for than has fallen to the lot of any other people. Generation after generation has grown to manhood and passed away. Each has had to bear its peculiar burdens, each to face its special crisis, and each has known years of grim trial, when the country was menaced by malice, domestic or foreign, when the hand of the Lord was heavy upon it in death by flood or pestilence, when in bodily distress and anguish of soul it paid the penalty of folly and a froward heart. Nevertheless, decade by decade we have struggled onward and upward. We now abundantly enjoy material well-being, and under the favor of the Most High we are striving earnestly to achieve moral and spiritual uplifting.

"The year that has just closed has been one of peace and overflowing plenty. Rarely has any people enjoyed greater prosperity than we are now enjoying. For this we render heartfelt and solemn thanks to the giver of good, and we seek to praise Him, not by words only, but by deeds, by the way in which we do our duty to ourselves and to our fellow-men.

"Now, therefore, I, Theodore

Roosevelt, President of the United States, do hereby designate as a day of general thanksgiving Thursday, the 27th of the coming November, and do recommend that throughout the land the people cease from their ordinary occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks unto Almighty God for the manifold blessings of the past year."

INDIAN OUT $22,000.

Robbed by Cultus Montana White Men.

BUTTE, Mont., Nov. 2.—A special to the Miner from Butte says that one of the most sensational robberies that has ever occurred in the history of Western Montana was enacted at Plains yesterday, news of which has just reached this place. A wealthy Flathead Indian named Machell was robbed Saturday night of $22,000 in cash, the money consisting of $100 bills and $20 gold pieces. Machell was a visitor in Plains Saturday night, and during his absence, at about 10 o'clock at night, a man dressed as a squaw visited his home on Camas Prairie and engaged in conversation with Machell's squaw. Mrs. Machell noticed that the visitor was not an Indian squaw, but a white man, as he could not talk good Flathead, but she did not suspect anything wrong until she saw two men run from an outbuilding, carrying something with them. Then it was that her suspicion was aroused, as the wealth had been stored in that building. The robbers jumped on their horses, which were near by, and the one that had been talking to her joined them, and the three rode hurriedly away.

As soon as she reached the Plains with the news, several of the white citizens of that place accompanied Machell to his home to find if the story was true, which was proved on their arrival there. A score of young Indians started out to try to locate the robbers, but no clew has been found.

Machell is the wealthiest fullblood Indian on the reservation. He has large herds of cattle and horses, and was always known to have money, but few people knew that he kept it at home. It develops, however, that the old Indian was afraid to trust his money in the bank, and kept it in an old trunk in an outbuilding at his home.

The Pacific Cable.

Rapid progress is being made in the laying of the Pacific cable and the indications are that the promise of the company as to the time in which the work would be completed will be fully carried out. It was promised that the line to the Hawaiian islands would be laid by November and it is probable that the company will not be to exceed a month behind that time. Two years was named as the period within which the line would be completed to Manila and it is said that the company will, if there are no unforeseen accidents, do very much better than promised.

It must be assumed, remarks the New York Journal of Commerce, that the work will meet with no further obstructions from congress or any of the executive departments. The urgent necessity that exists for direct communication between the United States and its possessions in the Pacific will doubtless lead the government to use every effort to advance the work. The commercial interests, also, that are concerned in the completion of the cable are constantly growing in importance and will of course exert their influence against any obstruction, should it be attempted, since the consummation of this enterprise will mean a very decided saving to merchants doing business with the Far East. The Pacific Cable company is certainly prosecuting this important work with remarkable energy and direct communication with Manila a year hence is altogether probable.
