A WILD AMERICAN:

Eccentric Millionaire Shocks Japan with His Queer Ways.

Lives with Grave Diggers and Outcasts, Surrounded by Every Form of Vice—Buys Boys and Monks to Fight.

In a paper on defectives, read by Dr. Martin W. Barr, chief physician of the Pennsylvania school for feeble minded children, before the summer school of philanthropy at the charities building, a remarkable instance was mentioned by him of eccentricity that has caused comment in scientific circles. It was the case of an American multimillionaire who is living in far eastern countries and leading a life of such peculiarity as to be almost incredible, says a New York report.

According to Dr. Barr, this man is a neurotic. It is estimated that his fortune is in the neighborhood of $10,000,000, but no attempt has been made to have him declared incompetent; he is left free to run his course. His family are refined and socially prominent. Whenever they speak of the son's course, they refer to it as his "nervousness." They will not admit that he has a deranged intellect, though he has left friends and position here to take up a life among the "Hainins," the grave diggers and social outcasts of the far east.

"He was a physician, rich, handsome, cultured, of aesthetic tastes," said Dr. Barr in his paper, "a graduate of one of the most prominent medical colleges in America, and a man who had made a pronounced hit as a specialist.

His fortune enabled him to secure every medical appliance known to science and for some years he enjoyed phenomenal success. Wine and women proved his bane. He sank lower and lower. His peculiarities no longer tolerated at home, he drifted from capital to capital of Europe, and finally established himself in Japan. With an appetite still unsatisfied, he exhibited new phases of moral degeneration, causing his body to be tattooed with wonderful skill, every picture a work of art. His back bore a huge dragon. The shading of every scale showing perfection of detail. This, on revisiting America, with utmost vanity he shamelessly exposed. He was turned out of the clubs.

Returning to Japan, he bought a performing bear and wandered from place to place clad in the garb of Hainin, exhibiting himself and his bear, and distributing photographs of each and all in endless variety.

"This master of eccentricity," said Dr. Barr, "shocking both Europe and America, and astounding even Japanese next hired a squad of Japanese boys, practically buying them outright from their parents, who, attired in full uniform, are trained in military exercises. To these are opposed an equal number of monkeys, dressed as Chinese soldiers, and the war of China and Japan is constantly renewed for the entertainment of himself and his satellites, who watch in the ecstasy of delight the suffering of the poor brutes. Rewards are offered, and the more bloody the contest and the greater the atrocities, the more intense the gratification."

AN EXTRAORDINARY COW.

Josephine's Remarkable Display of Intelligence Greatly Pleased Her Proud Owner.

"It does me good to ride downtown with Slick in the morning," remarked a middle-aged citizen, according to a story in the Detroit Free Press. "He lives out in the suburbs and there is always something doing out there. Before Dick left town his wife and baby were the smartest on earth, and now that he has become a country jake his horses, cows, dogs and chickens are the smartest on earth. There he is now; just you go and sit by him and start him on his cow."

"Hello, Dick, how are you? How's the farm? How's your cow?" asked the mean man, who went over to sit by the farm novice.

"Oh, the farm's all right; and the cow—" replied Dick; "well, she ought to be teaching school—that's a fact. She's the smartest cow I ever saw. Last night, sir, when she came up to be milked—she's not one of these silly, feeble-minded cows that have to have somebody drive them up to get their feed—no, sir, when Josephine came up she was alone—the little Jersey heifer, Daisy, that we bought to keep her company in the pasture, was not with her. We didn't worry, for we thought Daisy had loitered and would come along soon.

"But Josephine acted strangely. We couldn't get her in the barn at all; she stood in the lane looking toward the pasture and bawled and bawled and bawled. We thought she was only calling Daisy to hurry up and come home. Still she wouldn't go in and still she kept on bawling. Then somebody suggested that Daisy might be in trouble of some kind; so we all left Josephine and went down into the pasture.

"She stopped bawling as we started down the lane, and, sure enough, at the farthest corner of the pasture, in a little triangle of land where three wire fences cross each other, making a queer little pen, was Miss Daisy. She had got in, out of girlish curiosity, and couldn't get out. We had to pull down a piece of fence to get her out. Now, wasn't Josephine smart? I think so."

The other men all said that Josephine ought to have a telephone out in the pasture so she could call up the house when Daisy got in trouble.

Mad Battle For Wealth.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Conditions almost anarchistic prevail in the United States, according to John H. White, Episcopal bishop of North Indiana. In a sermon at Grace Church yesterday he declared that the American people had forgotten their duties in a mad rush for wealth and fame.

"It is every man for himself," he declared. "The typical American is heedless of how he achieves his end. Those that came in the way are trampled upon or pushed aside. It is this lack of respect for the wishes and rights of others that has brought about conditions in this country that border on the anarchistic."

Irreverence, declared Bishop White, was responsible for the exciting evil conditions. He declared that the American education tended to create irreverence, and that the strenuousness of American life had the effect of increasing the irreligious spirit.

"Our institutions," said the bishop, "have had such a rapid growth, and our progress has been so wonderful that we are filled with an admiration of ourselves that surpasses our admiration for anything else."

The most severe snow storm of the year is raging in the northern part of Montana, and the Great Northern Railroad is compelled to use its rotary plows to keep the tracks clear. All hope of finding Superintendent E. F. L. Egan has been abandoned, and the Great Northern Company has offered a reward of $500 for the recovery of his body. It was first stated the reward of $1000 had been offered, but a bulletin issued places the sum of $500.

An exchange says that of cigarette smoking boys, 60 per cent had poor memories, 40 per cent were liars, 60 per cent unmannerly, and 90 per cent stupid. This accounts for 250 per cent of them. How about the balance?

After having been incased for six months in a plaster cast, which covered his entire body except his head and the lower parts of his legs, the Rev. Horace Porter, victim of a bicycle accident, has returned to Plymouth Church, where he is assistant to Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis. The accident which occurred in 1900, caused the drawing up of Mr. Porter's limbs so that he was unable to stand. An extraordinary operation, the cutting of several important ligaments, was performed, and the pastor, after six months in a plaster cast, is now able to walk with crutches. These probably will be discarded shortly.

Joseph Siegenthaler, of Beaverton, Ore., aged 17 years, while out hunting Saturday afternoon, near his home, in company with Henry Voss, accidentally discharged his shotgun, the charge taking effect in the abdomen. Death resulted four hours afterwards. The coroner, Dr. C. L. Large, was notified and the cause of death being so evident, deemed an inquest unnecessary. The young man was born near where the accident occurred. His father is now in Mexico. There are three sisters and three brothers, who live at Beaverton.

"Political corruption" was the subject of an address before the People's Institute at Cooper Union, N.Y., by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of Portland, Or. "The most prolific source of political corruption," he said, "is the spirit of blind, bigoted partisanship. Men think today parties are ends in themselves. They are only means to the end which is the country's good. Political corruption could not last an hour if the so-called respectable classes did not tolerate and support it. Let us have an end to this Irish-American, German-American or Zulu-American. We are all Americans. I am an American. In my religion and moral teachings I am a Jew, but I would not vote for a Jew unless he were three times as good as his opponent for fear that he might discredit that religion."

An investigation that has been made by the War Department into the allegation by the antimperialistic committee, delivered at the Lake George conference, to the effect that Father Augustine, a Catholic priest was killed by the water cure in the Philippines, has apparently confirmed the main fact that the man died as the result of the administration of the cure, but it also has been found that the persons who administered the cure to secure insurgent funds, of which he was the custodian were volunteers from Vermont, and are now beyond the reach of military justice, having been mustered out of service.

By order of the Supreme Court in an opinion handed down by Chief Justice Moore, Henry St. Rayner, an attorney well known in Portland, in connection with the McDaniel murder case, was ordered debarred from the courts of record of the State of Oregon, Justice Moore says that the evidence, in which St. Rayner is charged with having substituted two sheets of testimony in preparing his bill of exceptions, is so conclusive that the Supreme Court is forced to its unpleasant conclusion. This means that Henry St. Rayner will be obliged to leave the state, if he desires to continue his law practice, and that he may even then be refused admittance to practice, should this matter come to the ears of the court or the attorney's.

A special agent of the Interior Department is soon to be sent to Oregon to investigate the alleged frauds in making entries under the timber and stone act. Agents detected similar fraud in states further East and succeeded in straightening out some tangles months ago and suits are pending to conceal patents in certain cases now. Probably the procedure will be followed in Oregon, under the order recently issued suspending entries under the timber and stone act in Oregon. Applicants will be obliged to show cause why the entries should not be rejected, and the special agents will make independent investigation for Secretary Hitchcock, who is determined to stamp out this fraudulent practice.
