

DIED TOGETHER.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Bacon Pass Away the Same Night.

Tuesday evening about 8:30 Mr. Cyrus Bacon died suddenly at his home at Forest Grove and three hours later his aged wife also passed away. They were old people who moved into Forest Grove last fall from their farm at Bacons, on Dairy Creek, eighteen miles northeast of there. They were in about usual health for old people until a few weeks ago. Mrs. Bacon was taken with the grip and since then she has been confined to her bed considerable of the time. The old gentleman, though quite feeble, had been around as usual. Tuesday evening he had been waiting on his wife, and sat down by the bed. As he sat there he leaned over and vomited into a vessel, then leaned back into a chair and his head dropped. Friends came to his assistance at once, but he gave only one gasp and did not breathe again. Dr. Via was called but could do nothing. He thought death was due to cerebral hemorrhage.

Mrs. Bacon was greatly excited at seeing her aged companion pass away and got out of bed trying to aid him. She talked constantly about it and wondered what would become of her. She grew gradually worse and at 11:30 she too breathed her last.

Mr. Bacon was about 80 years of age and his wife about 70. Eighteen years ago they came west from Illinois and settled on their farm which had been their home until they moved to town in the fall. They leave nine children, all of them living and all out on this coast except a daughter in Kansas and a son in Illinois.—Forest Grove Times.

Hanging of Lyons.

EUGENE OR., April 17.—The execution of E. E. Lyons, the murderer of Sheriff W. W. Withers, took place in the jail here this morning. There were present the Sheriff's jury and about 120 invited persons.

Lyons displayed more nerve than was expected. Yesterday he seemed in a light frame of mind, and even joked with his guards. He ate a hearty dinner last evening and slept lightly during the night. This morning he took a light breakfast, but showed signs of emotion. Rev. H. A. Green and Rev. F. E. Billington visited him in his cell this morning and administered spiritual comfort, spending the time up to the hour of execution in prayer and consoling talk.

At 9 o'clock Sheriff Fisk entered the cell to read the death warrant. Lyons was lying on the bed, but arose and listened to the reading of the warrant without any manifestation of emotion, wearing a blank expression upon his countenance and saying nothing. Shortly before 9:30 the prisoner was brought from the cell and walked to the scaffold, attended by the two clergymen. Sheriff Fisk and Deputies H. E. Bawn and Shelton Jenkins. His step was quite steady as he ascended the scaffold and took his place on the trap, and he stood unsupported while the straps were buckled on his limbs.

Sheriff Fisk asked him if he had anything to say, and he simply said in distinct tones, but with some emotion: "I am sorry for what I have done. May God forgive you all, for you know not what you do." The black cap was then adjusted, and the Sheriff placed the noose about the man's neck, carefully adjusting the same and holding it with one hand while with the other, at 9:31, he pulled the cord and the murderer dropped to eternity. The neck was broken by the fall, the body quivered for a few seconds, then hung limp and lifeless. After 15 minutes the pulse ceased to beat, and Drs. D. A. Paine and F. M. Day pronounced life extinct. The body was then cut down by the Sheriff and turned over to the undertaker, who had been engaged by the brothers of Lyons to prepare it for burial.

There was no demonstration from the large crowd that gathered about the inclosure, and all the details of the execution passed off according to plan and on time to the minute.

Hit by a Squall.

WYOMOUTH, April 17.—Misfortune, which seems to have pursued the Shamrock III, culminated today in a gust of wind which dismantled her and leaves the beautiful challenger lying tonight a wreck in Portland Harbor. The accident will necessitate a delay of a month and probably of six weeks in the challenger's sailing for America, but Sir Thomas Lipton said to the Associated Press correspondent to night that the accident would not be allowed to interfere with her presence in New York in time for the cup races.

"My injuries," added Sir Thomas, "are painful. I was badly shaken up by the fall and have a severely smashed hand, but everything is insignificant compared with the loss of poor Collier" (a brother-in-law of Captain Wringle, who was killed in the accident) "who has been in my service since the time of the first Shamrock. You can rebuild a yacht, but you cannot replace a man."

Sir Thomas Lipton was the recipient of over 200 telegrams of sympathy. King Edward wired his regrets at the injury to Sir Thomas and his grief at the loss of life.

The Harvest and Money.

The one thing that overtops every other in its relation to the future welfare of the country is unquestionably the crop condition of this year. If the output of agricultural products in 1903 shall be large a continuance of prosperity will be absolutely assured. Of this there is now the most favorable promise. Reports from the wheat and corn belts are of the most satisfactory character. While of course nothing more can be made at this time but an estimate, yet the forecast of the experts is to the effect that only the most abnormally bad weather conditions can prevent the largest crop of wheat by many million bushels that was ever harvested, particularly in the southwest. In fact, all the early spring indications point to a record-breaking crop this year, although there can of course be no estimate yet of much value as to the proportions of the corn crop. Assuming that what is now indicated will be realized, the United States will produce this year one of the greatest crops of breadstuffs, if not indeed the largest, in its history. In that event the continuance of national prosperity for the next two or three years at least will be absolutely assured.

Great crops required for their marketing an abundant supply of money. Whether or not this supply will be sufficient is a matter of the first importance. There is some apprehension in regard to this. It is feared that increasing the demand upon our currency resources, which cannot for the ensuing year be materially augmented, except for the uncertain accretions of gold, will prevent our producers from reaping the benefit of large harvests and thus hamper prosperity. There may prove to be some substantial ground for this fear and yet it is quite possible to exaggerate it. Enormous crops will of course require a large amount of money for their transportation and marketing, but it is to be borne in mind that great crops mean great exports, great transportation, great activity in every direction. If we can count upon a vast surplus of wheat and corn for which there will be a European demand, there probably will be no difficulty in discounting the export of this surplus grain and so utilizing those discounts as to provide much of the money that is needed for the moving of crops.

So far as the monetary situation is concerned there seems to be a general opinion among the most thoughtful financiers that the conditions next fall will not be more serious than they have recently been, while there is a possibility of improvement if the conservative policy now being observed shall be maintained. There is no doubt that there is an ample supply of currency to take care of the legitimate business of the country, the danger of a paralyzing stringency being in excessive speculation. At present very little encouragement is being given to speculation and if this conservative policy on the part of the banks and the loaners of capital generally shall be maintained there need be no apprehension regarding the immediate future.

As a result of his visit to Baker County to look into the reports of a prevalence of lumpy jaw, State Veterinarian Dr. William McLean ordered one heifer killed on the Perkins farm. The animal was in bad shape with the disease, and one member of the family owned the animal admitted that it ought to have been killed some time ago. The doctor found no generally bad condition. "There is nothing in the conditions as I found them near Baker City," said Dr. McLean on Saturday, "to warrant excitement or alarm about a general spread of the disease among cattle or humans. I think there is no more of this disease in that section than in any other county of Oregon there is one or more cases of lumpy jaw. It is an old disease, and may arise unaccountably in cattle from ray fungi, where the conditions favor the disease."

Oil properties involving between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 in the Trenton rock fields are to be transferred to a French syndicate under a deal just closed. The property, thousands of acres of leases, hundreds of wells and a production of thousands of barrels, pipe lines, tank cars, refineries and all equipments. The negotiations have been conducted by William L. Russell, of Lima, O., and Charles B. Russell, of Laporte, Ind. The syndicate will operate with the United States Petroleum Company and the National Consolidated Oil Company, and will control most of the crude oil in Ohio and Indiana. The transaction makes the syndicate a formidable rival of the Standard Oil Company.

The report of the commission of British workmen who were taken to the United States at the end of last year by Alfred Moseley, a wealthy Englishman, to study labor conditions here, presents the views of 23 delegates, who separately synopsized their deductions. The report shows a lack of unanimity except that all agree that the British workman has nothing to learn from the American workman, while British employers are not as far advanced as the Americans in the treatment of the employees. Mr. Moseley says that the American workman has a far better education, is infinitely better paid, housed, fed and clothed, and moreover, much more sober.
