C. H. Wheeler came in on the steamer on Wednesday. He took another raft of logs from Nehalem to Astoria on Sunday. Mr. Wheeler has been experimenting as to the best system of towing the logs and has come to the conclusion that in an ordinary weather there will be no difficulty in towing logs from Tillamook to the Columbia river. He has applied for a patent for one system he has adopted and thinks by next spring, Shoalwater Bay as well as Tillamook, will be towing logs to the Columbia river.

The bride looked prettily, her wedding attire being a beautiful white albatross gown. Her bridesmaid was Miss Pearl Farmer, who was dressed in white. H. Morton was best man. The house had been nicely decorated for the occasion and presented a pretty appearance when the justice pronounced the happy couple husband and wife and their relatives and friends gathered around them to congratulate and to bid them bon voyage. Mr. and Mrs. Phelps served a dainty wedding dinner to the wedding party, after which the bridal couple drove to this city, where they were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Jenkins and a number of friends. Both are respected young people and well known throughout Tillamook, and their friends join us in wishing them a long life of happiness.

Back from Old Mexico.

C. A. Bailey, who went to Mexico with W. and L. Olsen, is back in Tillamook for the purpose of taking his wife and family with him when he returns there in about four weeks. He gives a splendid account of the country, having travelled on horse back over 1600 miles through it. It is the most fertile country he has ever seen, and is more than pleased with its productiveness and one can hardly conceive what Mexico is like until they go on a tour of inspection away from the railroad. He brought samples of corn with him, oranges and wood. The corn grows exceedingly tall and the size of the ears was a surprise to people of this city. Mr. Bailey says two and three crops of corn can be raised every year. Dairying is carried on in a primitive style, yet for all that butter and cheese is $1 a pound and milk 65c. per quart, and cows net from $1.50 to $3.50 a day (Mexican money), and there is a ready market for dairy products, for Mexico consumes all she produces in that line. Sugar cane, rice, fruit, vegetable, grass and most everything grows to perfection in Mexico. A large part of the country is held by individuals, who hold large tracts, and it is hard to get hold of small pieces for farming. Native labor can be obtained for from 25c. to 30c. a day. W. Olson, L. Olson and C. A. Bailey, who went to Mexico from Tillamook, with parties in San Francisco, formed a corporation, known as the Vallarta Colonization and Improvement Company, and bought a tract of land of 200,000 for $600,000 in the southwestern portion of the State of Jalisco, and not a great distance from the Coast. The price included several thousand head of cattle and hogs, and the land is mostly fine agricultural, with some valuable timber. About 200 families are employed on the place. Mr. Bailey informs us it is not the company's intention to colonize the tract, as has been so often stated, but will improve it themselves. Mr. Bailey is more than pleased with Mexico, as is also W. and L. Olsen, who do not want to return to Tillamook where they resided so many years.

Editorial Snap Shots.

Ralph went and did it on Sunday—no wonder it stormed on Monday.

What makes Tillamook people so awfully skeptical when they see it is reported there is only 12 feet of water on the bar?

Rain is always welcome in Tillamook, but not so much of it thus early in the season. Evidently the weather prophet has hoodooed the weather this fall.

The next time the city "soaks" get on a buster it would be as well to confine their diet to bread and water, for three meals a day at the hotel is too much like luxury for those who seldom get a square meal.

Will the railroad companies oppose an appropriation for Tillamook bar? It is more than probable, and for that reason it is well that the citizens of Tillamook adopt some plan whereby the bottled-up condition of this county be placed before the river and harbor committee by our own citizens.

"Oh, yes, let's bond the city for $60,000 for a new water system," argued one person. "Why, my good man," argued another, "we haven't paid off the $2,000 on the old school building yet; when do you expect the taxpayers to pay off $60,000?" And chimes in another: "And what is the use of having a fire company when there is not enough pressure to fight fire?"

But few people who come to Tillamook for the first time, and who are observant of the resources of the county and bright future before it, go away wondering why such a resourceful country is left without harbor improvements and railroad connections. It need not be a great surprise, however, for the Southern Pacific, it is said, claims this as her territory, and as it will not build nor allow any other company to do so, Tillamook is not being developed as it should be.

Editor Rollie returned from his hunting expedition on Monday and failed to bring the HEADLIGHT man a China pheasant. Well, it serves us right, for the "grass widower" lost a favorable opportunity to go deer hunting while the Herald man was away and invite his best girl home to partake of a venison supper—for them there nasty Chinese things ain't no good, anyway. It shan't happen that way again when Rollie goes gunning on the outside, for we shall have some fun as well—that is if we are a "grass widower" at the time.

Engineer Chase has conveyed the impression that Tillamookers "claim to cure all diseases by eating," for he says that everybody here is fat, or soon will be. He's right, to some extent, for Tillamookers believe in keeping up a good inside lining by feasting on the best that the market affords. But then we hope his remarks will not convey the impression that we are fat and lazy, for that would be wrong, although Tillamookers may be fat and sassy, and probably they have a right too when they have fat purses. That is the reason they dine, and some wine, sumptuously every day, and never rob their belly to put it on their back, like some of the city folk do to keep up with the freak fashions of the times. But Engineer Chase showed he had a warm spot in his heart for Tillamook—and the pretty girls at Trask.

Even if the secretary of agriculture is correct in his prediction that we are likely to be without forests in ten years, no apprehensions need be felt of any decrease in the supply of the kind of timber of which candidates are made as long as public office continues to be a good thing.

The tenant farmer system in this country is certainly working very badly. The number of rented farms, we learn from statistical resources, is increasing. That would not be any matter for regret if the system were managed on a basis that would maintain the fertility of the farms. Such, however, is not the case. If the present system of renting continues to prevail the condition of the farms will certainly go from bad to worse, as there is no inducement held out to the tenant to seek to maintain fertility in the land.
