The steamer Geo. R. Vosburg, which left Nehalem on Friday for Astoria, had 1000 cases of salmon on board for S. Elmore & Co., and had in tow a raft of spruce logs, containing about 150,000ft.

The steamer W. H. Harrison came in from Astoria on Tuesday with freight, in the place of the Sue H. Elmore, which is under repairs in Portland. She is not carrying passengers, having no license to do so.

The stage broke down in the mountain on Tuesday and did not reach Trask House until five o'clock on Wednesday morning. It was late in reaching this city, being 11 o'clock before the mail was distributed.

C. Ben Riesland and J. D. M. Abbott, of Portland, have entered into an agreement with the publicity committee of the Lewis and Clark Exposition to publish a magazine, to be known as the Lewis and Clark Journal.

Frank Redding met with a bad accident on Monday while working in Fred Burton's logging camp. In attempting to remove a post from under a log, it suddenly broke, and striking Redding's arm with considerable force, broke both bones between the wrist and elbow.

The Truckee Lumber saw mill at Hobsonville has closed down for the winter, and Mr. J. E. Sibley will leave in about a week to superintend the rebuilding of the company's saw mill at Truckee, Cal., which was destroyed by fire the first of the week. The mill here may run occasionally.

Fred Skomp was in the city on Saturday and we are not surprised to hear he is getting somewhat tired of hatching. If Cupid would intercede in Fred's behalf it might be possible to add an interesting and important bit of furniture to the farm. Ladies mustn't throw googoo eyes, however.

W. E. Page, the second hand man, has been on the sick list this week and we are glad to see him out again. The editor does not wish to make light of a person's sickness, but he is a little curious to know whether those second hand coffins our neighbor expected on the "next boat" arrived, for certainly he will not require one now he is better.

Mrs. C. E. Hadley gave a whist party on Friday evening to a number of her friends at the home of her mother, Mrs. G. W. Grayson, when a pleasant evening was enjoyed by those present. The most pleasing event of the evening was the dainty and tempting supper, the guests being Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Case, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Grayson, Mr. and Mrs. H. Crenshaw, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Holden, Messrs. Wm. Stephens, Maud Stall cop, Ida Edmunds, Kathryn Edmunds, Misses Hope Nolan, Bessie Hunt, Telie Anderson, Dr. J. P. Sharp, Messrs. Rollie Watson, Fred Christensen, P. B. Vantress, L. B. Zeimer and Walter Baker.

Attorney-General Crawford has rendered an opinion in answer to questions propounded by Superintendent of Public Instruction J. H. Ackerman, in which he holds that where a pupil is transferred from one district to another, it is the duty of the Board of directors to transfer that pupil's proportion of the school funds to the district to which the child removes. If the Board of Directors of the first district refuses to transfer the money a mandamus proceeding may be brought by the parents of the child to compel the directors to perform their duty. It is also held that where the child is transferred before a county apportionment, the County Superintendent must distribute the money according to the school census and the transfer be made afterward by the district officers.

Where are the $5,000 coming from to build and equip a Christian American hall in which to give a royal reception to the prodigal son on his return?—J. C. Gove.

What a difference between the kingdom of God and the church, one is what men make it and the other is what God makes it. When the lost son came home to the father's house, he was met on the way with the best robe, a ring and shoes, the fatted calf was killed, and they began to be merry, with music and dancing. But how in the church when one goes trembling to the merry seat where he gets pumped full of wind, prayer, and shouting and is for ever afterward expected to wear that dejected look of a whetted calf in the spring of the year after a hard winter.—J. C. Gove.

Sparks from the Headlight.

The assessed valuation of Tillamook City is about $174,000—$98,000 being for real and $76,000 personal property.

Did Dan return to the city boatless or gaol-bred on account of the blamed stuff or the bag of wind evaporating in Portland.

It used to be that a person was sold into bondage. The new idea is to vote whole districts and cities into bondage—to the money power.

The gentle and incessant patter, patter of the rain reminds Tillamookers that the wet season is here and this part of the Webfoot state is happy.

The Oregon Press Association and the W.C.T.U. were in session last week at Salem. That was tough on the pencil pushers, who were out for a good time and incidentally to sample the "microbes" in Salem's water system.

This we can safely predict, for there are instances already to prove it, that a large part of the timber land, after the timber is removed, will fall into the hands of the county on account of the owners refusing to pay taxes any longer.

It is stated that the democrats of Clackamas county will have a straight party ticket next fall, the first in 12 years. Probably the democrats in Tillamook will do the same, if they can be induced to ignore the advice and assistance of sore head office seekers.

For the information of those who are laboring under a wrong impression, he sides having the ordinary qualifications of electors to vote to bond Tillamook City, the voter must be a bona fide taxpayer of the city, as shown by the last preceding county assessment roll.

What is Tillamook City doing by way of encouraging new industries? Although a wide awake, up-to-date city in other respects, it lacks enterprise and push in an effort to encourage new industries, and consequently a weekly payroll that goes to make a live business city.

C. Ben Riesland has taken up journalism—until such time as he drops it as he would a hot potato to jump into something else. We wish him success, however, for if hustling for advertisements is required, he certainly will be right at home. The HEADLIGHT doffs its hat to Bro. Riesland.

It is a question whether the owners of the meat markets keep the numerous dogs in this city, but we have made up our mind that it is the meat markets. As they are so obliging, just as well strike them for the dog license. How is that, Clyde, as you have the biggest gormandizer in the city?

General Gillespie, chief of engineers, in his annual report, recommends an appropriation of $10,000 for dredging in Tillamook Bay. That is a small sum where there is so much necessary work to be done. Possibly this can be double if the proper pressure is brought to bear on the Oregon delegation.

It is said that Hammond is trying to sell the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad to Harrison for $3,000,000, and it is presumed Astoria people will look on in wonder as they see their land grants and subsidies go into the hands of the Southern Pacific, said to be at the back of the project from the start.

We hope the numerous bank robberies are not depriving the bankers of sleep and giving them a night mare kind of a feeling in the wee small hours of the night. That is where the editor has an advantage over the banker, for he has no fear when he tucks himself between the sheets that his sanctum will be burglarized.

We are informed that the road across the mountain is in bad shape, and from all accounts the road across the bar—we mean the Tillamook bar—is in much the same condition. Will congress please take pity on the sufferings of Tillamookers, who have been bottled-up and unable to develop the vast timber resources for want of harbor improvements?

It costs $3.50 a ton to ship flour from Portland to China, and $5 a ton from Portland to Tillamook—about 160 miles. The new rate for lumber on the Southern Pacific from Portland to San Francisco and California points is $7.50 per ton on the cars, while from the inland towns along that railroad it is but $3.10, which is a prohibitory rate from Portland.

Tillamook City don't know where it is at on the bonding question, as the initiative and referendum clause is incorporated in the law giving the city power to borrow $60,000, as the state supreme court has to render a decision whether the law is constitutional or not. As the attorneys are all at seas as to this popular theory, it will be presumption on our part to step in and say who is right.

It is now in order, as nothing has been said about it, to ask, why the Eastern syndicate that Mr. Remington represented failed to take up the bonds offered by the Portland, Nehalem & Tillamook Railroad Company? We hope it will not give W. Reid and Colonel McCracken another railroad spasm to hear that other parties are still wanting rights-of-way with the object of building to Tillamook.

Some of the Irish political leaders are making the astounding statement that the Irish working classes in the United States are in a worse condition than those in Ireland. That settles it, then, for there is no longer any necessity to deplore the condition of Old Ireland if the working classes and peasantry of the Emerald Island are better fixed than their brothers in this country. This is sure to have some effect upon the periodical appeal for money in the United States, and thereby cut off from the Irish political leaders the snags of war.

Hold ups and bank robberies are getting to be so frequent that it is time that radical measures were adopted to prevent them. Public safety demands it. It may look a bold and barbarous thing to recommend in this enlightened age, still for all that we believe it will have the desired effect, and that is the public whip ping post for the cowardly, murderous thugs. It would make the public feel good if they could hear the culprit groan with pain as the lashes were applied one after another on the bare back of the culprit. That kind of medicine would soon have a good moral effect.

There is no need to anticipate hard times, to be brought about by financial panic and industrial stagnation, and at a time when the United States is enjoying one of the most prosperous times in the history of the country. Well, some people can't stand prosperity, for they see the hard times bugaboos even in their own shadow. There's no sense in talking hard times under present conditions, and even should it come again in the future, Tillamook will feel little or none of its dire effects, for this is a favored section of Uncle Sam's domain where hard times have never been felt.

County Judge W. W. Conder and Commissioner G. W. Bodiford attended the good roads convention in Portland last week. That was a good move and we hope they obtained some practical ideas which will be of benefit to Tillamook. We are glad to see the members of the county court showing commendable enthusiasm in regard to good roads. We all see the benefit of good roads, but it costs money to obtain them, especially in this county. Isn't that so, judge? Well, let us encourage the county court, all we can, commend it for what it is doing and would like to do if it had the money to improve more roads, and let the a knacker because one piece of road is improved and another is not. The world wasn't made in a day.

Which is the most urgent: A new water system or a sewerage system for Tillamook City? If the filthy condition of privies could speak, with their miasma and fever breeding germs, it would not be hard to decide. Probably, should the city vote to bond for a new water system, the taxpayers will be asked to vote a like sum for a sewer system, for no matter how one may argue the point, in the opinion of sanitary authorities, it is freely admitted that a water and drainage system should go together. There is good logic in the argument. Will someone, who has microbes on the brain, start in and agitate to bond the city for $200,000 for a sewerage system, for it is just as necessary, if not more so, than a new water system, if the health of the citizens of Tillamook City is a matter of consideration. And it should be.

A number of complaints have reached this office about the bad condition of the Trask toll road, the poor condition of the teams on the stage, and the frequent break down in crossing the mountains. This was again exemplified on Tuesday night when the stage became stuck in the road in the mountains and the team unable to pull it out, thus compelling the passengers to remain all night in a cold and damp atmosphere until assistance reached them. To allow the stock to run down and the toll road to become in bad shape at this season of the year does not look very inviting to the traveling public, but something should be done to improve this state of affairs by the mail contractor and lease of the road so as to prevent this in the future. The public should have some assurance, when they buy a ticket to be conveyed across the mountain that they will reach their destination on time, and not be dumped off in the mountain in the darkness and the cold and wet and to remain all night.

Choice Flowers and Plants. Mrs. Olsen, who will soon leave Tillamook, will dispose of her choice assortment of flowers and plants. This is a good opportunity to secure a nice variety at very little cost. See Mrs. Olsen.
