

TILLAMOOK JOTTINGS.

Walkover Shoes at Todd's. *
 H. T. Botts, for abstracts. *
 Blankets and quilts at Todd's. *
 Gordon Hats, $3.00 at Todd's. *
 Ladies' and children's shoes at Todd's. *
 All silk goods greatly reduced at Cohn's. *
 Those wishing wood sawed phone Ed. Walker. *
 New line of shoes just arrived at Todd's. *
 New millinery this week at Mrs. Sturgeon's. *
 New stock of clothing and overcoats at Todd's. *
 Emma Gill, of Chase, was in the city on Monday. *
 C. B. Hadley returned from Portland on Wednesday. *
 E. R. Townsend was in from Sheridan on Wednesday. *
 Miss Bessie Gray, of Nehalem, was in the city on Monday. *
 A first class A. B. Chase organ for sale. Inquire at this office. *
 W. S. Hostetter, of Portland, was in the city on Tuesday. *
 The best hat made for the money. "Gordon," at Todd's. *
 County Clerk H. Mason is having the vault watched at night. *
 W. J. Perry left for Elma on the steamer on Wednesday. *
 The schooner C. P. Hill came in on Monday to load lumber. *
 Rev. J. Looser has returned to the city from a visit to California. *
 G. M. Cobb, wife and son were down from Nehalem on Tuesday. *
 50 per cent discount sale on all dress goods remnants at Cohn's. *
 B. L. Eddy left for Portland on Saturday to attend the Bar Association. *
 The city county has given the band boys permission to use the city hall. *
 S. Scovell is down from Nehalem, also William Tubbesing and G. M. Cobb. *
 Our $2 hat is the best thing ever offered in this city for the money at Cohn's. *
 A marriage license was issued to Lindon E. Whiteman and Minnie M. Pentler. *
 J. S. Stephens is the agent for the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. *
 Todd & Co. are the dealers in every thing in the line of men's wearing apparel. *
 Baths for ladies and gentlemen, at F. H. Davis' bath room, opposite the Allen house. *
 Our big stock of outing flannel and other remnants at 50 per cent discount at Cohn's. *
 Steel ranges $5 less than any other store in the city.—At C. E. Reynolds, the Stove Man. *
 Choice of 50 pictures, 16 by 12 inches, $2.50.—At C. E. Reynolds, the Boss House Furnisher. *
 Steamer Geo. R. Vosburg left on Wednesday for Astoria, having a number of passenger on board. *
 Mrs. W. J. Smith was down from Wilson on Saturday and Mrs. Ada Ebrman, of Seaside. *
 J. S. Stephens returned from Portland on Wednesday, his wife still being in the Portland Sanitarium. *
 You will find the largest and finest assortment of umbrellas at the most moderate prices at Cohn's. *
 Ladies, if you are looking for bargains, don't miss Cohn's 50 per cent bargain sale on dress goods, etc. *
 F. H. Davis, the barber, has put in a nicely fitted bath room in his old stand opposite the Allen house. *
 Judge W. H. Cooper has rented the offices previously occupied by C. Ben Riesland, where he will have his law office. *
 T. B. Turney has opened a shoe shop at the back of E. Jenkins' store and is prepared to do all kinds of boot and shoe repairing. *
 A city caucus, for the purpose of nominating a city ticket, is to be held at the opera house on Monday evening, November 30th. *
 Owing to being up to his neck in new goods, E. T. Halten, did not have time to write his advertisement. Watch out for his advertisement next week. *
 Prices right for Jewelry - and watches at Franklin's. *
 For large assortment of Watches see Franklin.

The newest designs in silver ware of the best quality at Franklin's. Call and see them.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Olsen are packing up and will leave shortly for Mexico, and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cohn will go with them on a visit to that country.

Mr. G. W. Kiger has charge of Mr. F. R. Beals' real estate office during his absence, who has a complete list of the best dairy farms in the county for sale.

Found, in my store, a roll of paper money. The person who lost the same will please call and establish loss and pay for this advt.—Carl A. Patzlauff.

The steamer Sue H. Elmore came in on Monday loaded with delayed freight for the merchants. She left again Wednesday. The steamer W. H. Harrison came in on Tuesday.

Dr. Birch, of San Jose, Cal., one of the best known eye specialists of the Pacific Coast, will remain in the city another week, and can be found at the Larsen House, his office hours being 1 to 5.

Commissioner L. Parrish returned from Albany on Wednesday and we are sorry to hear that he entertains very little hope of saving his wife, who underwent an operation recently for cancer at Albany.

Rollie W. Watson received notice this morning that he had been granted a pension of $17 per month, with $204 back pay, this being the maximum that is granted for disability in the Spanish-American war.

As Geo. Davis was crossing the Wilson river last week, during the recent heavy rains, one singletree gave way, and before he returned with repairs his wagon and load of lumber had drifted away down the river.

At the regular meeting of the city council on Monday evening, an ordinance was introduced and passed to its final reading to submit the bonding of the city to a vote of the taxpayers, the date for which is set for December 21st.

The new millinery parlors of Jones & Lindsey will be opened next Saturday with a new and up-to-date assortment of millinery goods, ladies' neck wear, etc. We make a specialty of hand made hats. Ladies are cordially invited to call upon us.

Miss Lottie Freeman is having a large supply of candies, bon bons, etc., for Christmas holiday, come in on the steamers. This is the place to buy, for they are all fresh. Also will have a large supply of home made pastry, cakes, etc. Give her a call.

A O. U. W. dance (and supper) thanks giving night, on Thursday, November 26th, at the opera house. Jenkins' orchestra will furnish the music. Dance tickets, including supper at the Allen house, $2.00. Tickets on sale at C. F. Franklin's, Sallie Smith's and Henry Crenshaw's.

A number of law books, and some borrowed from R. & E. B. Williams, of Portland, which were left in the court house and were used there during the circuit court, were burned. Most of them belonged to Claude Thayer. Mr. Eddy had taken his books away, so had Mr. Cooper, the latter being shy one book that had been borrowed.

D. T. Edmunds and family left on the steamer on Wednesday for Oregon City, where they will remain during the winter and Mr. Edmunds will look after his saw mill interests there. He has never missed a copy of the Headlight since 1888, like a large number of citizens, consequently he is having his paper sent there. We wish him good luck in his saw mill venture.

Married, on Sunday, at South Prairie, at the home of the bride's mother, by Justice Alley, Mr. William Miller and Miss Sadie Johnson. A number of intimate friends were present and participated in the wedding festivities. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Curtis Johnson. Both are well and favorably known in the county and their friends wish them all the joys of married life.

The electric storm that passed over this city on Saturday struck the telephone lines of both companies and put a number of telephones out of business, as well as injuring the switch boards and setting fire the fixtures in Mr. Thayer's bank and residence. It seems that the storm was general on the Coast, for the Pacific States Telephone Company estimate the damage to its system at $20,000.

For large assortment of Watches see Franklin.

The churches of Tillamook City will observe Thanksgiving day in union services at the Presbyterian Church, at 10 o'clock a.m., Nov. 26th, 1903. Hon. B. L. Eddy will have charge of the service. Reading of proclamation, Rev. E. M. Patterson; invocation, J. S. Rhoads; sermon, Rev. A. J. Hollingsworth. The service will be supplied with music under the care of Rev. E. M. Patterson. All invited.

On information furnished by the officers of the revenue cutter Commodore Perry, fines of $200 have been imposed by Collector Robb, of Astoria, on the schooner Effic M. and the steamer Geo. R. Vosburg, charged with violating a rule of the Treasury Department which requires steamers to carry fog horns and fog bells and provides that sailing vessels shall carry fog bells. The fines have not been paid, but ten days are allowed in which to do so.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where the body was found is strewn with railroad ties, which have washed ashore lately. Coroner Reynolds buried the remains at Woods and has written to the parties in Rochester, N. Y.

Coroner C. E. Reynolds returned from Woods on Friday, where he held an inquest upon the remains of an unknown man washed ashore near McPhillips place, between Woods and Sandlake. H. Finnegeen found a life buoy on the beach, and not far away saw the sea gulls pecking at something, and going up to the object, found it was the body of a man, which had been in the water about a month. Finnegeen dropped the life buoy, and while he was gone for assistance the tide took it to sea, so it was not ascertained what vessel it belonged to. The man had been wearing a life preserver which had come off. He had no coat on and wore a black shirt with pockets in the sides, two pairs under pants, black pants and overalls. In the pockets were $8.80, a small pearl-handle pocketknife and a registered letter receipt, the writing on which was obliterated with the exception of the number, which was 3890. Coroner Reynolds has since dried this receipt, and with the aid of a magnifying glass it is believed to be J. C. Wright, addressed to Mrs. J. C. Wright, Rochester, N. Y. He wore a No. 7 Douglass shoe. It is thought the unfortunate man was one of the victims of the steamer South Portland, which was wrecked a little over a month ago. The beach where